Local Bond Chrmn.
Jones Has Good News
Concerning 'E' Bonds

"The latest extension offered on the oldest Series E Savings Bonds at a full 3-3-4 per cent annual rate is a boon to the thousands of people in this county who still hold bonds bought between May 1941 and May 1949," Mr. Otto Jones, County Volunteer Savings Bond
Chairman, said today.
He referred to the recent announcement by the Treasury dealing with E bonds that begin to reach the end of their extended maturity in May of this year. This second 10-year extension was promised back in 1959, but the terms and interest rate were not announced at that time. Under the new ruling, these bonds will return 33/4 per cent each year, compounded semi-annually, based on their current cash value (well over face value).
All of these bonds bought between May 1941 and May 1949 originally drew 2-9/16 per cent interest.
Mrs. Otto Jones continued. In their first extension, they have been earning from 250 to 347 per cent if held to extended maturity.
Now those loyal bond owners who have kept their E bonds for the full 20 years will be rewarded with a full 3-3-4 per cent return EACH year on the full current value of their bonds. This should encourage them to reap the benefits of this high rate for another full 10 years.
The County Chairman said nearly $15 billion in the 1941-49 E bonds are still outstanding in the country as a whole.

Adventists To Have District Rally Here

According to W. Rendall Caviness,
Pastor of the Clanton Seventh-day Adventist church, there will be a District Rally at the local church next Saturday, April 8.
Guest speakers will be Elder Don
R. Rees, Atlanta, Georgia, President of the Southern Union of Seventh-day Adventists and Elder LeRoy J.
Leiske, Meridian, Mississippi, President of the Alabama-Mississippi Conference.
Out of town guests will include members from the Tuscaloosa and the Selma Seventh-day Adventist churches.
A covered dish lunch will be served in the church basement for the noon meal.
Pastor Rees recently spent several weeks on an inspection tour of Seventh-day Adventist schools and hospitals in Africa.
While there, he photographed pictures in color.
"I have seen his pictures and they are outstanding," said W. Rendall Caviness. These include life of the people today, how they live, how they worship and how they work.
Also, his pictures of natural wildlife are fresh and new, taken only a few weeks ago.

Higgins Writes ...

Since this most important phase of the work has apparently not yet been accomplished, we are gravely concerned that nearly three months time has been lost. Senator Graham and Representative Speaks have stated that they will seek an appropriation to cover the cost of this trade school, and they are hopeful that you will soon furnish them with this information which they urgently need.

"I believe that most of the members of our committee would like to see the trade school problem considered only on its own merits.
We believe that if this matter is confused with any other issue, Chilton County will surely lose its opportunity to get this trade school.
It is obvious that authorities who are willing to help us with Federal and State support will drop us and select another county of the confusion and lack of coordination in Chilton County continues.
"It is sincerely hoped that the meeting which is scheduled for April 11, 1961 will result in a better understanding of this problem throughout the county, and a uniting of all our efforts toward one construcive objective - to provide an opportunity for trades training for both high school students and adult in Chilton County."
Sincerely yours,
President
John M. Higgins.

Local Youth Eludes Police In 4-Day Spree

LARRY Mahan, 18, of Maplesville was apprehended at Selma on Friday, April 7th after having spent four days running back and forth between Alabama and Tennessee in stolen automobiles.

On Monday night, April 3, according to Sheriff Hugh Champion's report, Mahan took a white 1956

Ford belonging to Luther Mims, from in front of the First Baptist Church in Clanton. He drove by way of Birmingham and Cullman to Tennessee, arriving in Nashville on April 4th. He abandoned the car in Tennessee because "I think I buried it up," he said; "It was losing power!"

Mahan stole a 1960 model Chevrolet which he drove to Alabama and wrecked. He took the car while it was parked beside a police squad car. He has admitted to breaking and entering the Isabella School and taking about nine dollars from a refrigerator there. He also entered the home of Jim Wade in Clanton, where he was found asleep on the dining table.

He hitchhiked to Selma where he ate breakfast at the morning of the 7th and bought some clothes. Soon afterwards he was taken into custody by the Sheriff of Dallas County. He was turned over to the FBI and is being held at Montgomery at this time, according to latest reports from the Clanton County Sheriff's office.

The wreck of the stolen 1960 model car took place on Highway 22, south of Stanton. Mahan was then on his way to Selma.

PROGRESS REPORT ON COURTHOUSE

IN an interview with Probate Judge J. C. White last week-end the News learned that the construction of the Courthouse, which is to be completed in August is about a month behind schedule, but the contractors are confident that they will make up the lost time and be ready for the scheduled opening, around August 15th.

One-half block south of the new Courthouse building is the new County Jail, taking shape rapidly now and according to our report is a good bit ahead of schedule. Plans are being made to have a big "Open House" ceremony and dedication program when both buildings are furnished and ready for occupancy.

Enthusiasm— It is evident from talking to Probate Judge White that he, as well as all the other members of the Board of Revenue and all County officials, the gaining enthusiasm

Thinning Plays Key Role In Quality of the Chilton County Peach

Chilton County peach producers should consider seriously the necessity of protecting superior quality fruit in 1961. This is important if we are to compete on the national market.

The job now most urgent is that of thinning. Remember the earlier varieties should be thinned first. The first rough thinning should definitely be done before the May drop, and the final thinning can be done about the time the May crop occurs. The mid and late season varieties can be delayed until May drop, but if time and labor is available it is advisable to rough thin these varieties also. The eventual spacing will depend on the varieties.

Those varieties that are difficult to size should be spaced wider while those varieties that naturally tend to produce larger fruit can be spaced

★ Story of the Week ★ Reporting Cuts Law Violations

SOME people in Chilton County are of the obvious opinion that law reporting in the local newspaper is taboo! The News is definitely not of this opinion and the following is a good example of just what our opinion on the matter is and how the newspaper, working with law enforcement, can literally cut down on arrests, fines, traffic accidents and human misery in general.—THE EDITOR.

Here Is What Can Be Done With Cooperation

A group of Alabama newspaper editors and a cooperative Highway Patrol will try this summer that the typewriter is mightier than the reckless driver.

Other law enforcement officers throughout the state will be invited to lend their support before a massive publicity campaign gets under way June 1 to remind motorists daily of the terrible price of accidents and the traffic violations which cause them.

Costly Habits

Remind motorists often enough and forcefully enough that bad driving habits are costly—both in human misery and in traffic court fines—and some it will rub off.

And if it does, a motorist who otherwise might run a stop sign and

All Traffic Arrests

Day after day, for a week, their readers saw a stepped-up campaign of accident reporting and a detailed breakdown of all traffic arrests in the 11 counties of the Decatur Highway Patrol district.

Sheriffs and city police throughout the district joined the highway patrol and made daily reports of their arrests as well as accidents.

Said Patrol Capt. Roy Bradford, "It made the public law-enforcement conscious. It made an impression when people read how many were arrested for running a particular stop sign or speeding on a particular street or highway. And it reminded them that officers were there enforcing the law."

No Fatalities

As a climax, the 11-county area went through the Fourth of July weekend without a traffic death.

Wally Fowler To Appear Here

The American Legion is bringing another all night singing to Chilton County.

Mr. Wally Fowler and 5 great quartets will be at the Clanton Airport, Saturday, April 22. Advance tickets will be on sale at Ray's T. V. Shelton Motors' and at Liberty National. See next week's paper for complete details.

County demand that we give their children the best training and education possible." And he indicated his desire for a Trades School and his support of it.

"Alabama ranks ninth from the bottom (having come from fourth recently) in the nation in Rural Development," said Area Rural Development head, M. R. "Red" Glasscock. He indicated a belief that a Trades School would attract industry and otherwise bring increased prosperity to Chilton County.

Mr. James L. Lawson, specialist in Rural Development from Auburn University said: "Rural areas (some 45 counties) lost population in the five-year period from 1954 to 1959. Incorporated areas grew; some enormously."

In the late 1940's Chilton County came to the very threshold of acquiring a Trades School for this area when political string-pulling caused the program to expire, as far as Chilton was concerned. The State agency's involved in assisting in this program have indicated that they cannot wait another 13 years for Chilton County to make up its mind as to whether or not they want a Trades Training Program. They were assured by Coordinator John M. Higgins that they would not have to wait much longer.

"Does the welfare of the people of Chilton County come ahead of all these other things?" said Mr. Ingram. Whatever your answer, he feels that this "Pilot Program" will be of great value to our County and perhaps be a stimulant for other

Services in Washington To Honor Alabama

Washington - In the medieval atmosphere of the great Gothic Washington Cathedral, the state of Alabama will be honored on Sunday, May 28 at both the 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. services.

The National Cathedral Assn., in announcing the observance of Alabama State Day, called attention to the major building program now being undertaken by the cathedral.

Prominent Alabamians serving their government in Washington have been invited to attend the services and many visitors from the state are expected.

Miss Elvira McMillan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. McMillan of Brewton, and Miss Rosalind Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Reynolds of Cottondale, will serve as color guards for the state flag of Alabama.

State Flag Bearers
The two young ladies, students at the National Cathedral School for Girls, will follow the state flag and the United States flag in the colorful procession of choir and clergy down main aisle of the 104-foot-high nave.

An Alabama State Flag was presented to the cathedral in 1934 in memory of Mrs. Rhett Goode, former national president of the Children of the American Revolution.

Special prayers will be offered at both services for the work and welfare of the state of Alabama and its citizens.

USDA Moves To Get New Feed Grain Program Under Way

Following the signing into law of the emergency feed grain program, Secretary of Agriculture, Orville L. Freeman moved quickly to put the legislation into action in the field. Three area meetings with field personnel were held on March 23, 24 and 27, in Omaha, Denver, and Atlanta, with the Secretary attending the meetings.

Also attending were representatives of USDA offices in 43 States, including State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committees and State ASC office technicians, as well as state Extension Service personnel.

In announcing the feed grain program, Secretary Freeman said the legislation represents a workable response of the Congress to the request of President Kennedy to stop the drift toward chaos in the feed grain and livestock sectors of the economy.

"I am sure that farmers appreciate the action and will cooperate to make the program effective. With about 3 billion bushels of feed grain in government loan and inventory stocks, representing an investment of more than $4 billion, it is time for action in the interest of the farmer and the other taxpayers."

"Unless the present drift is stopped, it promises to become only worse and threatens the entire feed grain and livestock industry. It ultimately threatens the consumer as well."

"These stocks will be reduced by the new program, but they will still be large. Consumers can rest assured that their interests will be protected through continuing abundant production of meat, poultry, eggs, and dairy products."

According to Eddie Owen, chairman, County ASC Committee, the new program in general provides for payments to producers who divert a specified amount of corn and grain sorghum acreage to a conserving use. Only those corn and grain sorghum producers who cooperate in the program will be eligible for support prices on their normal production of these two crops this year. In addition, corn and grain sorghum producers will be eligible for support on the other feed grain (oats, barley, and rye) only if they participate in the feed grain program. The diverted acreage cannot be harvested or pastured, and it must be in addition to the average 1959-60 acreage devoted to feed grain.

The payments will be in the form of negotiable certificates for which producers may receive grain or a cash equivalent of grain. Half of the estimated total payment for a farm will be offered to the producers as soon as he signifies that he will cooperate in the program.

Chairman Owen said that details of the program and the county payment rates will be sent to county ASC offices as soon as possible, so that farmers may learn how they may participate in the program.

Price supports for 1961-crop oilseeds have been set at national average supports of $2.30 per bushel for soybeans, $2.80 per bushel for flaxseed and $4.99 per ton basis grade (100) for loans on farm-stored cottonseed. The cottonseed support is $45 per ton basis grade (100) for purchases from producers, which appropriate differences for purchases from ginners to reflect normal handling costs.

Eddie Owen, Chairman, County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, explained that the 1961 oilseed supports reflect approximately 79 percent of the March Parity for soybeans: 73.5 percent of parity for flaxseed, and 78 percent of parity for average quality cottonseed.

Supports for these crops in 1960 were $1.85 per bushel for soybeans, reflecting 64 percent of parity, $2.38 per bushel for flaxseed or 62 percent of parity; and $38 per ton loan rate to producers for cottonseed and $34 per ton purchase price, both basis grade (100), reflecting about 57 percent of parity.

In announcing the support levels, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman said, "The 1961 support price for soybeans has been increased 45 cents per bushel from last year's support to gear production of this important oil crop into the 1961 emergency feed grain program and to meet anticipated needs."

"The requirement for vegetable oils are tremendous throughout the world. In view of this, there is need to encourage a better balance between acreages of soybeans and of feed crops for which production is out running current needs."

Fluoridation Of Community Drinking Water

It is not difficult to see why many dentists are finding themselves very impatient with those people who allow themselves to be led by misinformation into opposing fluoridation of community drinking water. The most important thing to be considered when discussing fluoridation with people outside the dental profession is that an open mind and appreciation of their opinion must be ever present. However irrational their argument may be, we must attempt to show them the true aspects of the matter. As can be very plainly seen, the opponents are working very actively and very strongly throughout Alabama and it is becoming more and more difficult for a dentist to assume a passive or disinterested attitude. If you are thoroughly convinced of the effectiveness of fluoridation, then it is necessary to speak out definitely and clearly. Hesitation and timidity have been shown to be the strongest undermining causes for the failure of many communities to fluoridate.

There are many Alabama communities where dentists have been fervently and tirelessly working to try to convince their city governments to initiate a fluoridation program.

Miscellaneous Shower For Miss Paula Margaret Hayes

One of the prettiest entertainment this spring in Thorsby was the miscellaneous tea shower honoring Miss Paula Margaret Hayes at the home of Mrs. Akins Collins Sunday afternoon, April 9.

The entrance to the beautiful Collins home, held baskets of dogwood and bridal wreath in all white with potted ferns placed at intervals. The mantel in the living room held a low arrangement of pink and white carnations flanked by five branched brass candelabra holding pink burning tapers. The refreshment table held the crystal punch bowl from which was served pink sherbert punch. Individual cakes frosted in white and holding a single pink rosebud was served with pastel mints and nuts. Mrs. Judy Mac Johnson and Miss Doris Smith served the refreshments. The table was covered in a hand worked cloth and centered with a crystal epergne holding pink burning tapers and pink and white carnations.

The display rooms under the supervision of Miss Julia Smith, Miss Cydell Allen and Miss Geraldine Jones were decorated in bridal wreath, white and blue iris and carnations.

Mrs. Jackie Sorrel met the guests at the door and introduced them to those in the receiving line, the honoree and her mother, Mrs. Estelle Hayes and the hostess.

The guests were registered at a table marked with pink and white carnations in a gold vase, by Mrs. Joyce Wells Lowery.

The honoree and all who participated in the shower wore waltz length evening dresses.

A large number of guests registered and the bride elect received many lovely and useful gifts.

The wedding will be April 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Thorsby Methodist Church.

THE YELLOW HAMMER is Alabama's state bird. During the last session of the legislature our state flower was changed from the Goldenrod to the Camellia. There was quite a fight before the asthma sufferers won. Most of us don't know we have our own fish. Alabama adopted the Tarpon in 1956 and thus became the first state to have a state fish. This was done at the suggestion of the Mobile Junior Chamber of Commerce which annually sponsors the Alabama Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, in the Dauphin Island area. This year's three-day event will begin July 28th.

Tell-Tale Gray Clothes Can Be Whiten Again

There may be 8 or 10 different reasons why your used to be white clothes are now "tell-tale" gray or yellow.

Discoloration can result from water temperatures that are too low, using too much or too little soap or detergent, hard water (without water conditioner), an overloaded washer, heavily soiled spots that have not been pretreated, switching from one brand of washing compound to another, and not sorting clothes according to types of fabric, color-fastness, and degree of soil.

Fabric grayness can result from a build-up of material not rinsed from the clothes, says Auburn Extension Clothing Specialist Jeanne Priestner. Often hardness minerals in the rinse water will combine with left-in suds to form a washing film in the fabric, making the clothes gray. Then the heat of the dryer and the iron speed up the yellowing process.

To prevent this add water conditioner to the first or deep rinse to wash away this graying film.

It's too late for prevention—that is, you already have gray clothes—don't be too alarmed. The clothes can be reconditioned to some extent, Miss Priestner says. Try removing the discoloration by putting the "clean" clothes in a washer with one cup of water conditioner and one-half cup of sudless household ammonia in place of the usual washing compound.

The water conditioner helps to free the soap, detergent, and dirt by pulling the hardness minerals away from the washing film. The released washing compound will burst into active suds that can be rinsed away taking with it some of the unwanted color and grayness.

For the last 15 lettings, Highway Director Englehardt said department estimates were $101,525,709.91 and low bids totaled $95,581,468.09—or $5,944,239.82 under the estimated costs. Low bids were less than the official estimates, in fact, on 14 of the 15 lettings.

On one bidding, the bids were $803,000 under the $8,600,000 estimate.

Sparkman Seeks To Insure All Eligible Veterans May MAY QUALIFY FOR VA LOANS

"Many Alabama veterans who are for Veterans Administration direct home loans have never sought them simply because during the last eight years the program was held to a minimum," Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.) observed today.

Pointing out that 322,000 World War II and Korean veterans in Alabama had been declared eligible for G. I. home loan benefits, Sparkman said only 75,800 had taken advantage of the V. A. guaranteed loan program and only 5,212 have been able to take advantage of the direct loan program.

"Because of the scarcity of funds for direct loans in the recent past, I have introduced a bill which would provide more money and extend the fund authorization through the middle of 1967," the Senate Housing Subcommittee Chairman state. He explained that direct loans from the veterans Administration are made only in areas where private loans are unavailable. Sparkman sponsored the legislation which set up the program in 1950.

BULLETIN:

Shell Research scientists reveal how they got 168.47 miles per gallon

One hundred and sixty-eight miles per gallon must be a world record. Like most world records, it took enthusiasm and hard work.

The two Shell scientists who hold this record have told us how they managed it. They have also added some tips on how you can increase your car's mileage. Not by using their own outlandish techniques. But by careful driving and today's Super Shell gasoline.

SHELL scientists thrive on competition.

Some years ago, an argument as to who could get the most miles out of a gallon of gasoline boiled up into a challenge. And Shell's Mileage Marathon was born.

Shell scientists have competed in this Marathon for several years. Not as a publicity stunt. But purely as a private contest. They use their own cars, time and money.

Not for everyday use

The best mileage recorded so far is a resounding 168 miles per gallon.

Many of the things contestants did to achieve this world record are not recommended for use on the public highway. But they do throw some light on what makes a little gasoline go a long way.

Record-breaking car cost $35

Shell's record-breaking car was a highly modified 1924 coupe (see cut). It was rescued from a junkyard for $35.

The only requirements that had to be met to qualify for the contest were simple.

The car had to have four rubber-tired wheels. It had to weigh no less than 2,000 pounds. It had to have at least 100 cu. in. piston displacement. And it had to use gasoline that anybody could buy at a Shell service station.

After that, no holds were barred. The car that won used a standard carburetor from an old one-cylinder engine.

Tire pressures up to 110 pounds

Some contestants inflated their tires as high as 110 pounds per square inch to reduce road-wheel friction.

Such crazy pressures would, of course, be quite unsafe under normal road conditions—and hideously uncomfortable, too.

But, under Shell's carefully controlled Marathon safety rules, the only ill effects were an embarrassing bruise or two.

Pressure problems for the champs

Dave Berry and Fred Schuette, who eventually set the existing record, had to be satisfied with something less spectacular in the tire department.

Their coupe's beat-up tires couldn't possibly take more than 50 pounds. But there was a helpful mileage dividend in the old, wood-spoked wheels.

They took tires that were nearly a yard in diameter. This moved the car forward an extraordinary 9½ feet at every revolution.

Muffled radiator and no fan

Many competitors went as far as to remove their engine's water pump and generator to save engine load. But Berry and Schuette ignored this refinement.

However, they did muffle their radiator completely to save heat.

As anybody knows, all cars go better when properly warmed up. But did you know that fast warm-up is specially provided for in today's Super Shell? It contains a gasoline ingredient called "Pentane Mix." This acts in your engine much like kindling acts in a log fire.

NET RESULT: Your car delivers top performance in a hurry.

One push and wheels spin for 30 minutes

Since the contest had nothing to do with wear, many liberties

Dave Berry and Fred Schuette, in the rebuilt 1924 coupe which set the world mileage record. Its original frontal area was reduced by about 75 per cent to cut down wind resistance.

On the winning car—the wheel bearings were lubricated with light engine oil to reduce drag. It worked.

When the front wheels were jacked up and given an experimental push, they continued to spin for half an hour!

Of course, no Shell serviceman would ever approve of such liberties being taken with your own car's lubrication.

The champs' "on-and-off" driving

Shell's record was set in two trips over an 11.94 mile course. The run was almost a walk.

The winning car was accelerated to 20 miles per hour, at which point the driver cut his engine and coasted in neutral.

Only when the "speed" dropped below 5 miles per hour was the engine restarted and the cycle repeated.

All acceleration was done in high gear. There was little choice. All other gears were removed prior to the contest.

Serious—or scientific fun?

You already know the result. But, since "on-and-off" driving is illegal on the public road—and since most marathon modifications are positively dangerous for normal use—you may be wondering if Shell's Mileage Marathon has any point.

Is it a serious test? Or is it merely a scientific picnic? The answer is—a bit of both.

Knowledge passed on

When Marathon Day rolls around at Shell, there is certainly a picnic atmosphere at the testing grounds.

But remember that the Marathon is only a climax to months of serious work. Not everybody sets a record. But every contestant learns a little more about the care and feeding of automobiles. Which, after all, is Shell's main job.

Eventually, every bit of this knowledge is passed on to you in the form of better products.

Today's Super Shell is a shining example. Thanks to continuous engine studies and mileage tests, Super Shell now contains a special mileage booster called Platformate.

Among Platformate's components are benzene, toluene and xylene. These three components alone release 11 per cent more energy per gallon than the finest 100-octane aviation gasoline.

The lesson is obvious. The first thing you do to get extra mileage is to put extra energy into your fuel tank, by using today's Super Shell. Then, if you want even more mileage, take these tips.

1. Don't race your engine when stationary. Every revolution is pure waste unless it is taking you somewhere.
2. Avoid jack rabbit starts. They waste gasoline by holding automatic transmissions in low gear too long.
3. Drive at moderate speeds. Your car uses about 40 per cent more gasoline at 60 mph than at 35 mph.
4. Keep an even speed. Ragged driving uses fuel without using the power it generates.
5. Keep tires up to their proper pressures. Soft tires soak up power like a blotter soaks up ink.
6. Get your Shell man to make these checks. Your carburetor should be adjusted periodically. Spark timing should be correct. Fuel filters and air cleaner should be clean. Brakes should be properly adjusted. And your thermostat must be in working order.

Use today's Super Shell and follow these suggestions. You may get as much as 30 extra miles per tankful. We can't guarantee this saving. But, unless you're a millionaire, it's worth thinking about.

FOLKS and THINGS About Town

One of the greatest tests of any man's character is his behavior in the face of adversity. It is in the times of trouble that we learn to know a man. It is in the times of trouble that we learn to know a man. It is in the times of trouble that we learn to know a man.

There Is A 'Bug' In Chilton's Peach Trees

THERE'S an unknown parasite working away in Chilton's million dollar peach orchards and it is killing trees. The County Agent's office stated Wednesday morning that an expert was in the field now working on the trouble; they thought they had found what it is; but they declined to make any statement on the matter at this time.

Abnormal Rains Slows Down Peach Spray Schedule; Thinning Emphasized

Due to frequent rains in recent weeks, some peach producers have probably missed one or more scheduled sprays. Even though the rains were applied, it stands to reason that their effectiveness was reduced because of excessive rain.

How can they prosecute and put in jail, an individual for photographing and selling pictures of an obscene nature when anyone can buy the same thing on the newsstands? They classify these as legitimate magazines. That just doesn't sound like sound logic to us and there's certainly not very much justice in such a procedure. Something's lacking somewhere!

SOME wives are like some fishermen, they think the best ones got away!

ONE trouble with democracy is that too many Citizens suffer from mental paralysis. We are a generation of spectators when we should all be 'playing the game' and giving our all!

ADVERTISING in your newspaper is good sales insurance, but it takes an alert, wide-awake merchant to realize it!

THE problems of life are usually those matters which, after all, do not amount to very much! But only experience teaches us to practice this philosophy, and then, sometimes it's too late!

A-h-h Sweet Mystery

WONDERFUL, beautiful, cautious Spring—this year we're having some of it! There is nothing to set the heart at ease, the mind content and the body to humming like the first, faint and soft sounds of a Spring morning.

For several years folks in these parts have complained about not having any Spring. It seemed as though one day winter was with us and the next day the hot, humid summer had arrived. This year it's different! When the birds sing in the morning, softly but ever so distinctly and the trees and flowers come forth as if they are feeling their way to be sure it's time... it is Spring friend! Get up early and enjoy the wonders of creation and the contentment that only a Spring day awakening can bring.

The Younger Generation

WE will not impose on the younger folks and ask, "what's becoming of the younger generation", but we would like to impose a question: "Why does a child of six or seven years possess the desire and the willingness to be plain-old unadulterated vicious and brutal?" We don't understand it. Unday we watched two young fellows fighting, wrestling at first. Eventually however, one got the other down and literally kicked the wind out of him with his hard shoe right in the old bread basket. Now, we ask you, is that brutal or is that brutal?

It is not natural for a child to be inclined to be brutal towards another. Mean perhaps, but never brutal! If it isn't natural, then is must be unnatural and to be unnatural is to be unhealthy to our way of thinking. We just want to dump it into the laps of the young parents of these young children. How about it parents? Why?

It Takes Men!

THE lot of the American taxpayer, or anybody else for that matter, is not going to improve greatly until we return to the system of majority vote in the House and Senate of the United States. That system is now smothered with side rules, regulations, factions and partialities which do nothing for the American people but run around in circles at an expense of several million dollars per hour. We don't understand it, if there is any logic in the system that has developed, out it does seem that the men sent to Washington to represent the people would be able to observe first hand the uncalled for and completely unsatisfactory situation and set about to do something constructive about it, regardless of their political ambitions. Where are the real men of America?

Green Forests Mean Buildings In Future

IT is a worn-out phrase, so to speak, to say "only you can prevent forest fires". But it's a fact! And with the dry season coming in a few weeks, it is very important that we each take an accounting of our attitudes with matches, cigarettes and campfires out in our woodlands. A single careless act can burn down millions of dollars worth of timber. If you multiplied this carelessness by very many, we'd have a serious shortage of wood! Take care in the woods!

Dry cleaning, winter clothes, rugs, and drapes at home can be dangerous. Remember that "most dry cleaning agents are flammable and give off poisonous fumes." Never allow these fumes to concentrate in one area—give them air!

Clear Understanding Brings Results

AFTER the most recent meeting concerning the Trades Training Center for Chilton County it is evident that the only thing that could stop us from acquiring same is our own indifference or lack of cooperation. Even the hint of uncooperation which has accompanied the project for these several weeks was dispelled greatly at Tuesday night's meeting of quite a number of Chilton citizens.

We have heard it said, since that time, that some had wished the problem could have been settled without the meeting. And thereby hangs the tale of every project undertaken in Chilton County for the past twenty years. There are always those (there seem to be an abnormal number in our County) who, through some quirk of their own imagination, think that the best way to accomplish anything is by handling the whole affair in secret; under the board; only a few heads together! They seem to be possessed by the idea that "the less the people know about it, the better for them."

There is nothing more ignorant than to believe that ignorance breeds accomplishment! It does not. If our County and its people are to forge ahead in the future, we must strive in every way possible to keep them informed about the things that concern them. The best way in the world to completely kill an idea is to "hide" it under the false pretense of "helping the people" by not telling them about it!

A very good example of what we are talking about is the One-Cent Sales Tax for education which the people of Chilton County imposed upon themselves more than a year ago! This was a most significant achievement for a County considered backwards and high on the list of antiquated methods and procedures. It brought our County out of the depths of dilapidation into a world on the move more than any other single factor in many years. One of the greatest influences on this decision of our people was information. They were literally saturated with information on the needs of our schools and this "education" presented to them in a most effective manner, with the support of the Board of Education and many individuals as well as the community newspaper, led the way in getting the revenue that was needed through taxation.

People don't mind being taxed as long as they know for what they are being taxed. If it is for the best interests of their community they will usually come through. Chilton County has been unique in this respect because it has outdone much larger communities and cities considered to be much further ahead than they in the field of education.

Needless to say, we are proud of the people of Chilton County! But, we are ashamed of the fact that some of our "so-called" community leaders insist on complete secrecy when anything is to be accomplished. If it concerns the farmer in the field, then the farmer should know about it. If it concerns the teacher in the school, then that teacher should be informed. We will not accomplish anything important unless we uncover the true facts of the matter and let the people know about them. It is wrong to assume that the people are not intelligent enough to make their own decisions. Given half a chance the people can make a much clearer decision than can some of our loud-mouthed would-be politicians and social leaders. The greatest trouble is, of course, personal gain. It is a monster, but not one that cannot be licked through proper display in a strong clear light.

Community and civic knowledge is a great force in our efforts to improve our lot and this fact should neither be over-looked nor underestimated by our ambitious "leaders" in the community who would keep us uninformed so they can play "big shot"!

The Sermonette

BY RAY FELKINS, Pastor
Mulberry Baptist Church

Christ, the Servant

In the thirteen chapter of the Gospel according to John, the writer introduces Christ as the Servant. It is in this chapter that we see Christ descending to the lowest social level of his day, and assuming the role of a servant as he washes the disciples' feet.

Christ and his disciples were eating the last Passover together, and the customary courtesy had not been performed. This was the washing of the guests' feet by the servant of the host. Since there was no servant to perform this customary duty, Christ does it himself. He laid aside his garment, girded himself with a towel, poured water into a basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet and to wipe them with the towel. This he did, not so much for the purpose of cleansing their feet, holding to the custom, but for the sole purpose of cleansing their thinking and their attitude.

Remember, that just prior to this incident, some of the disciples had been discussing among themselves as to who would get to sit on the right and left of the Lord in his Kingdom. Their minds were set on being served instead serving. They were thinking in terms of self rather than others, and Christ knew it. Thus he performs this act, and then says, "Know ye what I have done unto you? Ye call me Master And Lord; and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet ye ought also to wash one another's feet. I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done unto you."

The foregoing statement of Christ is yet a controversial statement, to some extent, on the part of Bible interpreters. All agree as to the act of Christ being an example, but just literal it should be practiced, is the controversial issue. I am of

Alabama Politics— THIS WEEK ON CAPITOL HILL

Carl Goggins

Prospective gubernatorial candidate George Wallace likes to think of industry, jobs and the biblical story of David and Goliath when the possibilities of his running the next Governor's race comes to mind.

Although he apparently doesn't want an official candidacy statement in print yet, if you talk at length about the 1962 chase with the former Barbour County Circuit Judge he quickly dispels any rumors he plans to play the role of the "Crown Prince" until qualifying time and then drop down to the Lt. Gov. or other minor position.

Unquestionably, Wallace wants only the top spot. Indications are he feels he would be "politically dead" if he waited another four years or ran for another in '62. Consequently, he talks with fervor about the Governor's chair—and why he thinks he's the man who should occupy it in 1963.

Probably another chief reason Wallace will more than likely be a candidate in '62 is that he wants it known by everyone, "I'm as anti-Folsom a man as there is in Alabama. And the day after I qualify, every single person in the state will join me."

The little Judge is extremely confident that if he decides to make the race, "It will be between me and Folsom." There appears to be no doubt in his mind when he boasts: "I'd rather run against Folsom than against Patterson."

Wallace is working to attain his goal. Although he says he never attends gatherings where people meet "just to shake hands," he claims his speaking invitations are increasing each week.

A good deal of his speaking time is presently being spent in the highly-populated north Alabama counties, he reports. Most of his talks deal with industry that has come into the state under the Wallace Act, the industrial destiny of Alabama and how more jobs for Alabamians are needed.

To Wallace, "This is a new day. Alabama's intelligence has risen. It's the era of the young man." Listening to him enthusiastically expound his ideas, you can't help but sense here a man who wants to tell fellow Alabamians a story, that here's a man who could wage a fiery, colorful and vigorous campaign.

From an organization standpoint, Wallace insists. "Things are really shaping up. I've been more encouraged to run the next Governor's race than during the last one. Yes, the people who are going to vote against Folsom will vote for Wallace."

Thus, if and when Wallace enters the '62 Governor's race, he wants to go into the campaign as the "underdog." Perhaps this is so because he can't help but recall the outcome of the battle between little David and the giant Goliath! Next week another prospective gubernatorial candidate will be interviewed.

Overheard this week at the League of Municipalities meet in Tuscaloosa... Former Sen. E. W. Skidmore is still planning to run for Lt. Gov. in '62. This year's League session was one of the most successful ever staged by Executive Director Ed Reid and company.

Among the host of political dignitaries and private citizens who were in-troducing in Tuscaloosa were Congressmen Albert Rains, Carl Elliott, Armistead Selden and Kenneth Sobers; Gov. John Patterson, former Gov. James Folsom; Lt. Gov. Albert Boutwell; Sam England; R. C. Bamberg; former Sen. Richmond Flowers; former Rep. Pete Matthews; Sec. of Treasury Angus Baggett.

Rays Of Hope

Virginia H. Stover

The rain came down in torrents as I almost ran from store to store trying to do my shopping. Inwardly, I gumbled at my lack of common sense for having chosen this bad day to go into town. I suppose I could have won a medal for being the grumpiest woman around.

Darting into a department I turned to the steps leading to the downtown store, with one thought in mind: to finish my errands and return to the warmth of home. Then I noticed my way was partly blocked by a cute chubby little girl sitting on the stairs, clutching a bag of candy. I halted and smiled at her and then she turned her face toward me. It was then I saw the sightless eyes.

The conviction of the majority and that conviction is, that the example is in the principle, and not in the act. Let us follow this example of humility and service each day of our lives. Christ has shown that, though he is Christ, the Master, Lord and King, he is also Christ, the Servant.

Report from Washington

BY
ARMISTEAD SELDEN
Congressman, Sixth District

Several bills of interest to veterans were passed by the House of Representatives last week, the chief one being an extension of the veterans guaranteed and direct home loan programs. The action taken by the House calls for channeling up to $1.2 billion more into the direct home loan fund over the next six years.

The purpose of the bill is to liquidate the long waiting lists and meet the home loan needs of veterans residing in small towns and rural areas. During House debate, it was pointed out that in 1960 the veterans housing loan program received its lowest point in 15 years despite the fact that more than 14 million veterans of World War II and the Korean conflict have not used their loan privileges.

A review of the Veterans Administration's guaranteed and direct loan programs as of January 1, 1961, shows that the programs have made money for the taxpayers and the U. S. Treasury. After repayment to the Treasury for funds used, plus interest and deducting all losses, the VA programs have made a profit as of the first of this year in excess of $59 million.

Sanctions Against Cuba

During Pan American Day observances in the House last Thursday I spoke on a resolution I had introduced earlier the same day requesting the President to initiate action through the Organization of American States to impose sanctions against the government of Cuba. Such sanctions would include the exclusion of Castro's

I saw her sitting on the stairs,
Her pretty curls bent low;
As if she listened for some sound
That only she would know.
I spoke only to her and then she turned
Her face a bright sunrise;
And as I took another step
I saw the sightless eyes.
Instantly I was ashamed,
That I sin wondrous blind;
Should fail to smile and bring cheer
To those who were depressed.

Had learned a better way to live,

THINGS

We see and hear by BOB

WE enjoyed Brother Lloyd Kimbrough's "spare tire sermons" Sunday morning, but were disappointed that he didn't tell us all about Washington, D. C. and what was going on thereabouts. He was there last week on a representative assignment for this Conference of the Methodist Church. We will probably learn many things in the coming months about the world situation from what he has gathered from his meetings. Only thing he told us Sunday was that "JFK didn't even know LHK was in town!" That was truly a disappointing bit of news! Glad you're back, and with us Brother K.

BEST exercise in the world is walking hello to a friend across the street, even with an everyday acquaintance. Strangest thing is, it's the only exercise in the world done by one person, that is beneficial to two! Try it! It starts a sort of chain reaction!

A. J. Cox, a friend and fan of the CCN let us in on this one the last part of the week (when he came by to renew his subscription). It seems a woman found out her deceased husband had gone and not left her a red cent, leaving it all to someone else. She immediately ordered the husband's tombstone inscription changed. "Sorry," said the monument maker. "You've ordered 'Rest In Peace' and that's what we've gone with." "Well then," said the widow, "Just add under it: 'Till We Meet Again!'"

GETTING out a newspaper is no picnic. If we print jokes people say we are silly. If we don't they say we are too serious. If we clip things from other publications we are too lazy to write for ourselves. If we don't we are stuck on our own stuff.

If we don't print every word of all contributions we don't appreciate community genius. If we do print them the columns are filled with "junk."

If we make a change in the other fellow's write-up we are too critical. If we don't we are blamed for poor editing.

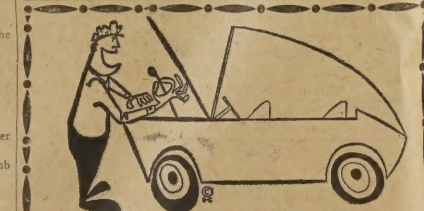

We're sure some guy is going to say we swiped this from some other place. yep! Compliments of Mr. Joe Jackson. See, he appreciates us!

THERE'S nothing we like more than a neighbor who moves away. And is still neighborly! Le Price is one in a million. Somehow or other, she knew that our idea of being neighborly was to bring us something good to eat. It's a habit we have. Anyways, she brought us a cake the other day that was what a gourmet would call supreme and we surely do appreciate it. Course she brought it to the win and kids, but we can look pretty hungry sometimes and we got to junk! It was g-o-o-d Lee; much obliged!

WE'll let our father do his own thinking when he gets to feeling up to it; but we'd like to do some of it. It is most rewarding to have folks be concerned about any number of one's family and we certainly have been rewarded during the past two weeks. We need not go into a long speech to convey our feelings... thank!

MET a new friend Sunday afternoon. Mr. Cecil Armstrong who lives just a throwes south of us! We like the gentleman very much. That's a first impression, but a sincere one!

MRS. Etta R. Apperson, who is our roving representative tells us that there sure are a lot of folks in Chilton County who are broke. She tells us this every time she comes in from out over the County raising up subscribers for the Chilton County News. Heck we could tell her that without her even having told her that. She's a good representative through, and a lot of folks have spoken to us about her coming to their home and giving them the chance to pay their subscription without them having made a special trip to town. Etta (that's what we call her) will be in your neighborhood one day soon, so save up that three dollar and subscribe to the best doggone community newspaper in the state of Alabama. Or anywhere's else for that matter! We'll see you now!

YOU CAN DEPEND ON YOUR CAR ONLY AS FAR AS YOU CAN DEPEND ON THE MAN WHO SERVICES IT!

Your car represents a sizeable investment and should be handled with care, by experts. We can't always fix it, but we can service it 100% and can also suggest when something is wrong and should be fixed before trouble develops. Building Progress—

Chilton's New Jail To House Minimum Of 55 Prisoners

WORK is coming along rapidly on the new Chilton County Jail, as can be seen by its outward appearance. Probate Judge J. C. White assures us that the jail construction is well ahead of schedule, in spite of a couple of minor setbacks, one involving vandalism.

The prime coat of paint is on the "innards" of the new jail and completion of the entire building is at a matter of weeks away.

The living quarters in the new jail for the jailer, or even the sheriff if need be, is to be a most elegant addition to Chilton County's facilities. It consists of 2 bedrooms, a bathroom, a kitchen and a porch. The jail itself is of the most modern design. The doors to the cells can be locked or unlocked individually or collectively, as wished and is escape proof (naturally).

It will have an office for the jailer, a vault, mechanical room, storage room, 2 receiving cells with two bunks in each, a woman's cell with 2 bunks, an isolation cell with 2 bunks, one padded cell for the insane, 2 colored cells with 8 bunks each and a day room and a visitors corridor for the colored. There will also be 4 cells for whites with 8 bunks each and they will also have a day room and a visitors corridor. The new County Jail, though nothing to be proud of for residential use, is still a memorable milestone in Chilton County's history of better facilities for the people of this County.

Watch the weekly progress report on the jail and courthouse in "Your Community Newspaper".

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

TRY CHRIST'S WAY—IT'S THE BEST WAY

All through the New Testament Christ points the way to abundant life.

The Scriptures tell you that Christ loves you. He wants you to accept Him as your Saviour. He is eager to guide you along life's way. He is eager to show you how to handle life's problems. Only through Christ can you gain abundant life.

Jesus makes many promises in the New Testament. He tells of a glorious life after death for those who accept Him. He shows how His way is the best way, the victorious way, the bright way, the way that points to Heaven and a glorious, eternal life after death, with our Father in Heaven.

Jesus said, "Come unto me... I will give you rest" (Matthew 11:28). He tells you how to find abundant life in Matthew 6:33. "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness."

Jesus says in Mark 1:14, 15: "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel."

And Jesus makes you a promise: "Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out" (John 6:37).

Jesus' way is the best way, for we read in Colossians 2:

9, 10: "For in him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily. And ye are complete in him."

Christ's way is the victorious way, for in Philippians 4:13 we read: "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

When you choose Jesus' way, you choose the bright way. "He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life" (John 8:12).

When you choose Jesus' way, you choose the way to Heaven. "When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory" (Colossians 3:4).

Yes, all through the New Testament Christ points the way to abundant life. Abundant life can be obtained only through Jesus Christ, Son of the living God.

If you want to get started on the road to abundant life, then accept Christ and walk with Him.

Christ's way is the best way. Christ's way is the only way to eternal life.

When you try Christ's way, fear cannot harm you. Doubt cannot defeat you. Peace and joy will flood your soul.

Christ is abundant life.

ACIA Set Requirements To Bag Certified Seed

Some producers of certified seed are not obeying the bagging requirements set by the Alabama Crop Improvement Association, says Melvin Moore, Auburn Extension Service seed marketing specialist.

Moore points out that it is unlawful for growers to put seed that is not certified in bags carrying the ACIA emblem. Although certification is void on any bag unless it also carries the certification tag and seal, the use of the emblem on uncertified bags of seed is misleading and a violation of the state law, he adds.

All growers should make arrangements now for new printed bags carrying the emblem of the ACIA to put all of their 1961 certified seed in, says Moore. And he adds that all bag manufacturers either have copies of the emblem or can get one from the ACIA office.

Spring Best Time To Spray For Tea Scale

Early spring is the best time to spray for the control of tea scale—the most common and the most damaging of the scale insects.

Auburn Extension Service Horticulturist Harold Thornhill says that the leaves of pines infested with this insect will have yellow blotches on the upper side and a white cottony mass on the under side.

There are several light oil sprays on the market—such as Volck and Oils— which will control the scale, says Thornhill. And all of them should be used according to the manufacturer's recommendations.

The secret of controlling tea scale is the method of applying the spray, says the horticulturist. Start spraying at the bottom of the plant and proceed up in order to cover the lower surface of the leaf. After reaching the top, turn the spray nozzle over and completely wet the upper side of the leaves.

Woe unto them that call evil good and good evil; that put darkness for light.— (Isaiah 6:20)

Mistaking evil for good is one of the traps into which those who follow Communism have fallen. To them, anything that helps the Communist cause—no matter how base it may be—is "good." Followers of the Bible know that only thoughts and acts conceived in love and brotherhood are good in the eyes of God.

One hundred years ago this week, April 17, 1861, President Jefferson Davis proposed the offering of letters of marque against United States commerce. This plan for commissioning privateers to prey on United States merchant ships may have caused Northern merchants to turn against the Confederacy.

Also this week, following the moderate bombardment and occupation of Fort Sumter on April 13-15, other influential Northerners were assuming a more hostile attitude than they had previously had toward the Confederacy. The noted Boston orator Edward Everett, having remained undecided a few days after the fall of Sumter, started April 17 and 18 his decision to support Lincoln's call for 75,000 volunteers. The alternatives, Everett had concluded, were between "supporting the government and allowing the country to fall into state of anarchy."

One reason for Edward Everett's adoption of an anti-Confederate attitude may have been a famous speech reportedly made by LeRoy Pope Walker of Alabama, Confederate Secretary of War, threatening that the Confederate flag might soon wave over the Capitol in Washington.

In Baltimore, one hundred years ago this week, April 19, 1861, bloody riots broke out when the 6th Massachusetts Regiment, passing through that city, was attacked by persons opposing Lincoln's call for 75,000 volunteers. Maryland never seceded, but the population of Baltimore included many pro-Confederates.

Also on April 19, 1861, T. R. Cobb of Georgia, member of the Provisional Congress of the Confederacy, wrote his wife from Montgomery as follows: "The opinion is pretty general here that we shall

Confederate Memorial Day At Mt. Creek 22nd

Chilton County joins the local Jefferson Manly alknar Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and the Fighting Joe Wheeler Camp of the Sons of Confederate Veterans of Birmingham in celebrating Memorial Day at Mountain Creek on April 22, at 11:40 a.m.

The Centennial Commission, observing the hundredth anniversary of the War between the States scheduled to be celebrated for the entire four year period of the war, headed by Gov. John Patterson with the Executive Chairman Dr. A. B. Moore of the University of Alabama has requested that each county in the state should commemorate some day or event of the war years pertaining to that county.

The Battle of Ebenezer Church was fought at Stanton in the last days of the war. It was a delaying action to prevent the capture of the arsenal at Selma. Union Gen. James H. Wilson lead a raid through the heart of Alabama to destroy railroads, iron furnaces, machine shops, and arsenals. He passed through Elyton, Montevallo, Ashbyville, Randolph, Maplesville, Ebenezer Church, Plantersville, Sumnerfield and then Selma. There was almost constant fighting along the way. Another holding action was fought just outside Selma. But the Arsenal and much of Selma was doomed to go up in flames.

The old-timers are only recently dead who claim to have seen the smoke of a burning Selma from the roof tops of houses here in Chilton and Coosa counties.

But the event long remembered and still vivid in the hearts and minds of the people of Chilton County is a direct result of the War between the States. That is the active days of the Old Soldiers Home at Mountain Creek. Here many veterans of this section and many other southern states lived out their last days and lie buried in the two cemeteries left there.

The old custom of celebrating Memorial Day at Mountain Creek was revived in 1957. So the people of Chilton, the governing bodies of each municipality in the county, the members of the State Legislature, the members of the Board of Revenue and Control, and the Executive Branch of the county government are not only cordially invited but urged to attend these services beginning at 11:00 a.m. Saturday, April 22.

A basket lunch will be served at noon. A program will be presented by the Fighting Joe Wheeler Camp of Birmingham. The Jefferson Manly Falkner Chapter of UDC and the County of Chilton are hosts for the day.

Increase 4-H Awards In Expanded Junior Leader Training Program

Sears Provides 12 Scholarships, Trips to Chicago

Completed three years of club work with emphasis on leadership projects.

The state Extension staff will name state winners. A committee of 12 Extension workers will judge state winners' records to determine those worthy of national awards.

From the outset of organized club work in the 1920's, Junior leadership training has been recognized as a vital component of 4-H growth, according to Mr. Mindrum. Definite leadership projects were offered by a few states as early as 1923.

The present leadership awards program is being amplified, Mindrum said, and it is expected that current enrollment will exceed the 170,000 boys and girls who participated in 1960. Of this number, approximately 100,000 served as assistant or project leaders.

Leadership training is directed by the Cooperative Extension Service and carried out by volunteer adult leaders in each club.

It is estimated that 25 percent of the 302,500 adult volunteer leaders now serving 4-H were former Junior leaders, Mindrum declared.

Additional information regarding the 4-H leadership awards program can be obtained from county Extension agents, local leaders, or the state Extension office, he said.

Crucifixion Scene Presented At Maplesville Good Friday

On Good Friday, March 31, between 5:00 and 6:30 p.m., the "Crucifixion Riders" MYF of the Cox Chapel, Plantersville, Jones, and Maplesville Methodist churches presented in the parking lot of the Maplesville Green Roof Cafe a "live" re-enactment of the Crucifixion of Jesus Christ. Those participating were Carl Ratliff, Buck Ratliff, Alan Wilson, Linda Wilson, Sue Wilson, Margaret Wilson, Brenda Sample, Randy Lovelady, Alan Morgan, Larry Lovelady, Ann McKee, and Brenda Ratliff.

These young people worked many hours in preparing the crosses, making costumes, providing a place of presentation, deciding on make-up, etc. The town government of Maplesville co-operated by arranging for music to be played during the time of the performance, and the Vocational Agriculture department of the high school installed the public address system. About half way through the presentation the Rev. Frank T. Hyles, pastor of the Plantersville Methodist Church, read the crucifixion story. The wind was cold, making strenuous the task of standing on the crosses but no one complained. There was a sense of reverence and awe as a busy little town stopped for a short while and remembered the real meaning of Good Friday.

Mrs. Thomas's Six Grade Class Visits Mound State Park

Jerry Davis

During the year when my class was studying how Indians came to America, we decided to go to Mound State Park. We asked some mother to take us.

Mike Joiner, Charles Noah, Jan Jones, Susan Mitchell, Lorene Jones and I rode together. We played Cow Poker, and had a lot of fun. At the monument we saw a lot of Indian relics. A lady showed us a film and told us about the skeletons. They had a place where we could buy some souvenirs.

We had fun at the picnic area. The first thing we saw was a big barge on the Black Warrior River. Then we ate our lunch. After that we were off to Mound B. Mound B is the highest mound. The boys had a race to the top. Charles Noah won. The girls then had a race. Mary John Fields won.

At Smith Hall the class had a lot of fun. There were a lot of rocks on the first floor. On the second floor there were Indian relics and stuffed animals.

The Gorgas home was very big. There was a big oak tree where Dr. Gorgas used to play. Jason Shrine was a very small eight-sided building. That was the only building on the University Campus the northern army left in the Civil War.

Bryce Hospital was a beautiful hospital where the mentally ill are kept.

Beth Henderson

Throughout the year we have been studying Indians in our social studies. Because of this, we decided to go to Mound State Monument. When it was decided, we started immediately with the necessary preparations.

On our way we saw part of the Talladega National Forest, the C-80 River, and several swollen creeks. We played various card games, too.

At the monument we saw, over the door, the back of a hand with the all seeing eye on it. The Moundvillian got their cooper from far away, probably from Michigan. One of their religious symbols was a snake with wings. The Indians built their villages on water for transportation and for muskellunge for food. Tools, ornaments and coloring and tempering pattern. We learned that the Jivano Indians of the Amazon shrank heads. One was on display.

At the picnic area we saw a tug boat pushing a large barge up the Black Warrior River before we ate our lunch. Up Mound B we had races. Mound B was where the leaders temple was.

At Smith Hall Museum, which was founded, May 28, 1907, we saw the Hodges Meteorite, which fell at one o'clock the afternoon of November 30, 1954, near Sylacauga, Alabama. It weighed eight and one-half pounds. We also saw a coal tree found upright in a coal mine near Jasper, Alabama.

On our way home from Smith Hall Museum we saw Dr. Gorgas' home, the old Governors Mansion, Jason Shrine, Bryces' Mental Institute, Partlow School, Denny's, and the Confederate Monument.

Bascom Veneable

On March thirty-first of 1961 my class, the Better Speech Club of Mrs. Mary T. Thomas's class went to Mound State Park. A few months before our trip we studied about Indians and some of their habits.

As we were traveling, we played Cow Poker and told jokes. We all had fun on the trip and we are grateful to the mothers that took us.

At the monument we first talked to Mrs. De Jannette, our guide. On the inside there were glass cases displaying pictures and many other things of interest about the Moundville Indians. Then we went to a room where we saw films about the Indians. After the films, we saw bones of Indians.

The picnic area was located near the Black Warrior River. Here we saw a huge tug boat pushing a barge. Then we ate our lunch, after which we saw many souvenirs. Soon we were in our cars going to Mound B which is the largest mound at the park.

At Smith Hall on the first floor we studied rocks. There were many different kinds. On the second floor we saw pictures which demonstrated how the earth cooled, coal swamp formed and the first dinosaurs roamed. On the third floor we saw many stuffed animals. Some of these were snakes, birds and wild animals.

We also saw the Gorgas home, Jason Shrine or the eight-sided building and the large Bryce Hospital, where the mentally ill are kept.

Lots Of Action

ROBERT Mitchum stars in "The Sundowners" at the Clanton Drive-In Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, April 30 and May 1 and 2. It's a humdinger!

Lendell Thomas

If you would go to Mound State Park; You are sure to hear The song of a lark. We ate lunch near the Black Warrior River; Where the look of the water We saw the things The Indians could make; But then we also Had notes to take. We saw a cross at the top Of Mound B; And I looked away As far as I could see. We saw a barge go up The river; And then, again I Began to shiver. I want to go there again Someday; And I hope nothing will Keep me away.

Lendell Thomas

Linda Porter

The whole year we have been making preparations for a trip to Mound State Monument. We have been studying the unearthing of bones of Indians and decided we would go to see Mound State Monument.

On our way we saw places where the creeks had flooded over. We also played interesting games such as Cow Poker and the Alphabet game.

At the monument we saw pictures of how they lived and the all-seeing eye which was on the back of the hand. We saw disks, arrow heads and silver plates. We found out that they had dye materials such as gypsum, yellow ochre, green, and kaolin. Some other things we found were mussel shells, shell jewelry, pottery and other things of interest. We saw slides about the Indians and the bones they dug up.

At the picnic area we bought drinks and started to sit down and eat our lunch when we saw a barge go up the river. Then Lendell Thomas led in offering thanks before we ate lunch. When we got through we bought some souvenirs. After that we had fun climbing Mound B.

At Smith Hall Museum we saw all kinds of rock and other imitation diamonds and other precious stones. We also saw stuffed animals.

After leaving Smith Hall, we started home. On the way we stopped at a place where we could get some refreshments.

Weed And Grass Control Presents Labor Problem

The problem of weed and grass control is becoming more acute each year because of a dwindling labor supply. Auburn Extension Service, Peanut Specialist, Dean Bond says that Alabama peanut growers are now spending about $4.50 per acre for hand weeding. And this figure will rise as the labor supply decreases.

One answer to the problem is a chemical weed control program, says the specialist. In one test the use of herbicides combined with careful cultivation practices and some hand-hoeing cut weed infestations in the drill 74 percent and reduced hoeing 46 percent compared to the usual practices with no herbicides.

The specialist recommends Dinatrol, Seson, and Falone for weed control in peanuts. But he says that any farmer using a weed control program should apply these materials and prepare his land correctly. For more detailed information, Bond suggests that farmers contact their county agent.

YOUR EYES

To be without sight is one of the greatest personal tragedies, yet many persons constantly mistreat their eyes.

The eye is intended to receive and focus light rays and carry visual impressions to the brain. The eye thus brings knowledge of our environment to the brain and serves as a principal agent in keeping each of us in touch with the world outside our bodies.

Proper care of the eye is essential to general good health; and, conversely, good general health is important to the health of the eye. When some part of the eye is damaged, undue strain results in headache, indigestion, backache, nervous disorders, and other conditions.

In turn poor sight may be associated with disease, such as syphilis, arteriosclerosis, or diabetes. The normal process of growing old may affect the eye, especially the blood vessels, change with increasing age, leaving the eye less competent as a functional organ.

Persons with bad eyesight frequently have red and swollen eyelids, with constant watering, and blood shot areas in the normally white areas. Sometimes the eyelids will be crusted together after sleep. A tired eye is unable to work satisfactorily. It becomes easily irritated and is more likely to be invaded by foreign bodies, such as cinders and dust, because the tissues do not react normally to get rid of such foreign material.

The normal eye should see clearly and effortlessly at twenty feet and adjust itself readily to greater or lesser distances. But civilization, with its reading and industrial activity, is responsible for most of our eye work being carried on within twenty feet.

12,040 Rural Traffic Mishaps In 1960

The twelve month figures of the Central Record Bureau, Department of Public Safety reveals some interesting facts regarding rural traffic accidents last year.

During 1960, there were 12,050 rural traffic mishaps reported which resulted in 625 deaths, and 5,112 personal injuries.

The records reflect that a breakdown of the 12,050 accidents reveal that 89.8 of total crashes were caused by driver violation and in total accidents, 87.5 per cent of drivers were violating traffic laws.

Speed was a factor in 42 per cent of total accidents and 63 per cent of fatal accidents. Driving, under the influence of alcohol accounted for 18.3 per cent of all accidents and 30 per cent of fatal mishaps. Teen-age drivers were involved in 14.3 per cent of total accidents and 14.3 per cent of fatal accidents.

Floyd H. Mann, Director, Department of Public Safety said, "It is apparent that too many drivers are abusing their privilege of operating motor vehicles on the street and highways of this state."

Mr. Mann is calling for an awakening of all motorists and pedestrians to the responsibilities that are yours when using the streets and highways.

He concluded by saying, "The percentage of traffic crashes that occurred on weekends during 1960 are shocking. Fifty-five and two-tenths per cent of all rural traffic accidents occurred on weekends and 61.2 per cent of fatal accidents occurred during the same period."

Mr. Mann pointed out the fact that most traffic mishaps are the result of driver and pedestrian errors — And to show a substantial reduction in this needless slaughter of human beings on the roadways of Alabama will require use of operation of all highway users.

Certain Soil React Best To Irrigation

Wondering whether or not the soil on your farm is desirable for irrigation?

Auburn Extension Irrigation Specialist Lawrence Ennis says that highly fertile soils of medium texture with a sub soil only slightly finer textured than the surface are ideal for irrigation. According to Ennis, some of these irrigation "desirables" include sandy loam, fine sand loam, silt loam and loam. Less desirable are clay loam, silty clay loam, and loamy sands. And extremely sandy soils and deep sands generally are poor risks, too, he adds.

Ennis advises farmers to plan irrigation for 1961 now since it will take some time to get equipment.

Franklin Graduates From Air University

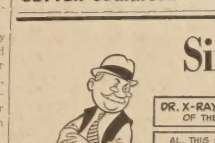

Ten Alabamians are among 827 officers graduating from Air University's Squadron Officer School Friday, April 14 at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

Highlighting graduation ceremonies starting at 8:45 a.m. will be a student review, an air show by the Thunderbirds, famous USAF aerobatic demonstration team, and an address by Maj. Gen. James W. Wilson, Strategic Air Command director of material.

Among the 10, one of Chilton's boys was 1st Lt. Reilous A. Franklin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reilous R. Franklin, of Thorsby, Alabama.

Work with good illumination, so that the eye is not strained. Get sufficient sleep to rest the eye muscles. Eat nourishing food, because the eye tissues, nerves, and muscles derive their health from the food you eat. While working, rest your eyes occasionally by glancing at some object more than twenty feet away.

Senator Graham...

James Kilgore and his brother Wiley Kilgore. The CSA veteran fought in such notable battles as Chickamauga, Snodgrass Hill, Peach Tree Hill and Lookout Mountain.

Also appearing on the program will be Senator Joe Graham of Maplesville who will welcome the honor guest and visitors on behalf of the County of Chilton.

The Reverend Mr. Paul Higdon of the Verbena Methodist Church will give the Invocation. A former Verbena Methodist pastor now retired and living in Prattville, the Rev. Mr. G. O. Hughes will give the Benediction.

Everyone is urged to come to the services and bring a picnic lunch. The Boy Scouts of Troop 232 and the Sharpshooters Chapter of the Children of the Confederacy will sell soft drinks. The proceeds will be divided between the treasurer of the two groups.

As has been the custom for several years, The Fighting Joe Wheeler Camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans, Birmingham will present the program. A wreath will be laid in honor of the CSA veterans buried in the cemeteries at Mountain Creek in the Confederate Memorial Park which is under construction there.

Chilton County and the Jefferson Manly Falkner Chapter, UDC will be hosts for the commemoration. They cordially invite everyone to attend.

County Rally..

ry Wyatt, Senior President of the County Council, presided over the morning activities. Judge J. C. White and Mr. John Sellers, County Agent, each gave a hearty welcome to the 4-Hers.

The presentation of awards to outstanding 4-Hers in the county was another interesting event. The girls and boys receiving 4-H pins in recognition of outstanding 4-H Club work were: Judy O'Neal, Stanton; Glenda Mims, Isabella; Eucine Littleton, Collins Chapel; Rebecca Hayes, Thorshy; Carolyn Minor, C.C.H.S.; Joan Green, Stanton; Barbara Ann Hudman, Cooper; Pat Wideman, Jamison; Carol Wendt, Verbena; Peggy Glenn, CCHS; Pat Brown, Maplesville; Frances Knowles, Clanton Elementary; Betty Robinson, CCHS; Joy Burkhalter, Verbena; Sallie Jane Headley, CCHS; Sherry Wyatt, C.C.H.S.; Ola Mae Thomas, Cooper; Patsy Enfinger, Verbena; Charlene Nance, Thomas Jr.; Jan Jones, Nanticoke Elementary; Jo Owens, Maplesville; Teena Lockhart, Isabella; Marie Chandler, Stanton; Franklin Shanefield, Collins Chapel; Joe Mims, Thorshy; Billie Gore, Jamison; Kenneth Robinson, CCHS; Richard Garrison, Maplesville; Clinton Hinson, CCHS; Larry Smith, Collins Chapel; Benny Bice, CCHS.

If you are looking for a good gift to send a young man at college or away from home, try a shoe brush, a forgotten but essential item.

Many people were responsible for the success of the 1961 4-H events. Special thanks to Mr. F. Spier for providing transportation to the principals and teachers for keeping the groups together, to Judge J. C. White and Sellers for taking time from busy schedules to give a special come, to Rev. T. J. Tolar for devotion, to the bottling company for providing personnel to help in the concession stands, to the Clanton for providing City Police to help with traffic and thus insure the safety of our 4-Hers, to Home Demonstration Club who helped in concession stands as judges, to Mr. Bill H. and William Wilkins who judged field events, and to members of Older Youth 4-H Club for doing field events, serving as canteen and score keepers.

VOLUME XXXIX

by Ben

I want to thank all of you wonderful people while I have been away and first I want to thank you for taking care of things for me the past three weeks. At present I'm like the Post Office, I'm just a little bit better each day and will be in Clanton again before too long. Care now, I haven't been back to check up on things, so I hope I'm not thinking anybody too much, but then, I'm an optimistic soul and I'm sure everything will be OK.

Now, I won't mention names, because I would take a little too much space, but I do want to thank these wonderful people who have been so nice to me. My God Bless you. Ben STILL pinch-hitting for the Boas. I'm coming along tolerable well, but I miss you, he's becoming unbearable to live with. A sure sign of improvement we think! He'll be at the old stand in a few days. She says he's worse than that, she's stuck his nose in a cupboard and didn't know the door was still to home!

THE chance of a lifetime! It comes. The big league talent scout will have their eyes on you. The big East-West Game here in Clanton. Dr. Honan, for the Lion Club says that the game will be on May 21 and 22. For this annual thriller will be of use soon. Now that's what will give you folks plenty of notice. It's for a most worthy cause, too! Sight Conservation!

AND speaking of baseball. Clanton's own Jay Carroll, the southpaw who pitches like P. T. Barnum (that's a joke son), and who was named in the Milwaukee Braves as a new in Danver, Iowa playing with the Squad City Braves. They're proud of Jay and rightly so. You don't see a pitcher like Carroll every day in the week.

WHILE we're making "pitches" like to take our turn at the bat, let us say that we are highly in favor of the methods being used in the Clanton Trades School. There is no better way to get something of this kind done than to inform the public of the proceedings and plans. We will need the active participation of all the citizens of this town. It speaks well for all of us that the officials that they really need and are pursuing the path of public information. It is the first step toward public affairs!

Miss Rita R. Apperson attended the Memorial Services at Mount Pleasant last Saturday and says she enjoyed the same program very much. We asked her how she felt at the time, she said, "I felt like I was at home." She caught us right and wouldn't give us the opportunity to ask how old she is. She said, "I feel as old as you feel, and in Miss Etta's case, she's still a young scout, 'cause she's sure nice like she feels young. She's a real fun to be with!"

HEAR by way of the horses that our good friend Roy Wick, the Coca-Cola man, is going out of the business after 15 years of service. He's going into the Queen business in Tuscaloosa (and who ain't), having owned the one now owned another. Another Clanton stalwart, Luke was going to do it. He didn't know, but there's something in that ice cream business between custard... and we snells a whole lot of lots of luck Roy. If you're fortunate, we can't think of more deserving guy!

Peach Tree Killer Is Identified

Work Begun On Stopping Marauder in Many Orchards

During the last few weeks numerous calls have been made to the County Agent's office to inquire about the many dead or weakened peach trees showing up in Chilton County. The number of affected trees runs into several thousands. Not having a definite answer but recognizing what the cause might be, it became necessary to call in Dr. D. A. Peterson, United States Department of Agriculture, Pathologist assigned to the Botany Department of Clemson College, Clemson, S. C. With the help of Dr. Peterson and the Agriculture Experiment Station of Auburn University, the following information has been compiled. The conditions observed in Chilton County peach orchards are symptoms most distinctly associated with Blast and Crown Rot.

Bacterial Disease—
Blast is a bacterial disease but it is not related to bacterial spot. The most obvious symptom of the disease is the death of twigs, one or more limbs, or the entire tree above ground. Infected trees often show an abnormal production of water sprouts on the lower limbs, the crotch, and on both above and below ground portions of the trunk. These water sprouts are most evident early in the growing season.

Cankers Easily Seen—
Similar cankers are produced as a Man Barely Escapes With Life at Jewell

THURSDAY, April 20 at 9:35 a.m. Paul L. Kilgore of Jewell barely escaped with his life when the truck he was driving struck another pickup about one mile north of the Jewell City limits at the intersection of U. S. Highway 31 and Alabama 155.

The other vehicle, driven by Troy Cobb of Route 1, Jewell was stopped in the road waiting to make a left turn onto highway 155 from U. S. 31 when the truck Kilgore was driving ran up behind him too fast. Kilgore swerved to miss Cobb but hit the rear of the truck on the right side and proceeded on into the yard of one W. C. Martin. The 1958 Cobb Brothers Hardware truck hit a gas line in the Martin yard, which burst and gas spewed forth.

According to authorities who investigated, Kilgore could have been burned alive if the gas had ignited. He escaped, however, with a fracture of the hip on his left leg. Kilgore, 21, was taken by Martin's Ambulance of Clanton to the University Hospital in Birmingham. Cobb was uninjured.

Both vehicles involved in the accident were 1959 Ford. Officer W. J. Lawrence, Highway Patrol, investigated.

Cost Not The Issue--

Trades School Is Sound Investment

ON Monday night of this week, a committee, most of whom were appointed by Superintendent of Education W. A. Lecroy, met at the Dixie Cafe in Clanton to iron out the problem of where the estimated $150,000 to build a Trades Training facility for Chilton County would come from.

Representing the State Department of Education was Mr. W. O. Hulsey, supervisor of the department of Trades and Industrial Education. Some 50 to 60 Chilton County citizens, representing every corner of interest of Chilton County, were present also.

PLEASE MR. FARMER; THIN THOSE PEACHES

"Many peach trees that I have observed have set far more peaches than the tree can develop to good marketable size," says County Agent Sellers. A good thinning job will be necessary if we are to avoid a large volume of undersized fruit which will depress the market. Some early varieties such as Hiland, Cardinal, Dixired, etc. have reached the stage for thinning. This should be done before the pits begin to harden. Space peaches at least 6 to 8 inches apart. Early varieties must develop in a shorter period of time than later varieties, making it especially important that they be thinned.

It takes 383 peaches 1 1/4 inches in diameter, 293, 2 inch peaches, and 159, 2 1/2 inch peaches to fill a bushel. The 1 1/4 to 2 inch peaches usually bring about half as much as the 2 inch and up size. With a large crop in prospect for this year, it may be difficult to move the smaller size.

C. on July 31 to compete in the National Finals through August 3. Winners were announced at the awards banquet held Saturday evening at Bob's Restaurant. Officer W. J. Problem of Bond—
The Board of Education in Chilton County is having a problem with their building program because the estimated taxes on the 1c sales tax, which the people voted on themselves is not coming in at a sufficient rate to retire the bonds on the program. Some $500,000 is being "frozen" at this time, of the County's funds, to protect the County's interest in the matter. It has also been brought up, numerous times, that those funds which were earmarked for school buildings, should and would not be used for establishing a Trades Training Center in this County.

Two Different Matters—
Representative Francis Speaks has made it clear, as has Senator Joe Graham, that the two programs are entirely separate when it comes to funds for building purposes and that they should be pursued down two different avenues entirely.

Money Needed—
The number one approach to the Trades School building program at this point, as it was proposed by Clanton's Mayor Hollis Jackson, is that our Representative and our Senator seek a Special Appropriation from the State in the amount of $150,000 for the purpose of building and equipment the Trades School. The Mayor also added that "should this fail, I think the 2-mill ad valorem tax plan should be presented to the people." The 2-mill tax in question here was originally designed for hospital purposes and has since been discontinued.

Mr. Resort—
Mr. J. Pone Payne, Chairman of the Board of Education stated that he "would like to see the 2-mill ad valorem tax only as a last resort." "If it comes to that," he said, then (CONT'D ON BACK PAGE)

YOUR Newspaper—

(Following is an editorial concerning the community spirit, as it accepts its community newspaper. Though the opinion was written 30 years ago, it still holds true today; possibly even more significantly than ever before. We present it proudly, as it appeared in the News, in the hopes that it might provoke a little thought on the part of some in the community who seek to "support" their community by turning their back on their community press.—THE EDITOR)

It is more than true that business men and citizens generally should not fail to realize that newspapers are in the public service—they are not parasites living for their own profits, and that the community needs for a newspaper are such that, should there be no newspapers as a private enterprise, then the public, for its own benefit, must tax itself to provide themselves with newspapers. It is too often that we find businessmen who regard newspapers patronizingly as an institution that lives and thrives off their business. They look upon newspapers as something that they more or less privileged to forget if the times are dull, and something they can recall to mind in those days when richer profits are seen.

A newspaper is a function, reciprocating service in the community in which it is located, in integral factor in everything it assists to motivate, therefore it is as worthy of its hire as the judge in his docket, the treasurer or the tax collector. In fact, a newspaper as an institution, is far more embracing than any or all, being the completed expression of the daily rounds of Life, which without, we would have to go back to the real chaos of disorganized society.

Such facts as those are recognized by the advanced type of person, but is also sometimes ignored by the ignorant or indifferent. The latter aim to keep the newspaper "in its place" by withholding a more just tribute. That is due, perhaps, to them having their own inferiority complex to contend with and their only object is a kind of self satisfaction that comes from retarding the wheels of progress.

These un-named opponents of the printed enlightenment usually demonstrate the fact that they need the inoculation of the very high-idealized spirit that goes to make a real newspaper. And while they are keeping the newspaper "in its place" they are keeping themselves there also. Such backwardness of theirs will be clearly indicated by their tenacious clinging to such outworn practices, slow conceptions of competitive requirements.

Let the community that wishes to step ahead, make its newspapers the staunchly supported banner carriers of its forward movement. The newspaper always gladly undertakes the many challenges to leadership and will invariably push forward against every obstacle. The only time the newspaper shows signs of weakening is when those it serves are weak.

Proof Of Chilton's Aims—

The officials of this County stand 100% behind the trades school program and most of them have stated this fact openly and publicly. The thing hounding each and everyone of them at this point is "Where are we going to get the money?"

Our Senator and our Representative are very willing and most capable in helping us to solve this problem. The State officials, along with the Federal authorities are cooperating all the way to establish Chilton County as a Pilot County in this venture.

All that remains is the doing!

It is our confirmed opinion that this is the chance of a lifetime for our County and its people. If we miff it, we will never realize what it could have meant to us. If we push it through, with the people united all the way, we will realize, in years to come, just what we have accomplished.

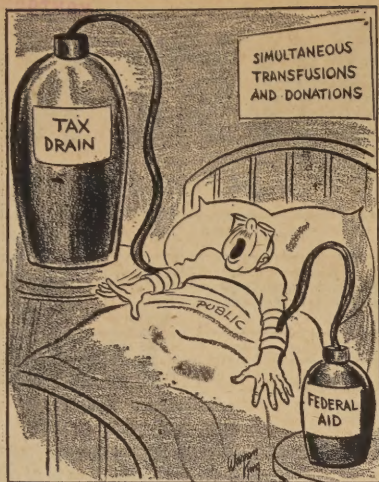

We are down to the meat of the matter and it is evident that the leaders in the community are willing to go to "extremes" of any reasonable character to insure this program for the County.

An important factor to keep in mind is that they must have the backing and support of all the people of this County or their hard work and planning will be for naught.

The problem has been accepted by the proper authorities. Now we have all got to join forces to solve the problem. It will be easier if we all understand it.

What Alabama Makes!...

Makes Alabama

It's A Bloody Mess—

In a letter to the folks back home, Congressman August E. Johansen (R-Mich.) poses this provocative question:

"Would it make sense for a patient to be receiving a blood transfusion and giving a blood donation at the same time?"

It's the Congressman's opinion that such a practice, aside from being extremely dangerous, would be entirely objectionable.

"In a word," says Congressman Johansen, "it would be medical quackery." Then the Michigander "I wonder whether we are not indulging in something just as ridiculous and perilous in the area of government and economics."

"I refer to the continuously increasing simultaneous policy of Federal taxation and Federal aid—especially when resorted to as a supposed basis for improving economic health."

"Of course this policy provides a wonderful windfall of political power and profit for the Doctors of Big Government and Phony Economics who promote and administer the procedure."

Congressman Johansen couldn't be more correct. It is rugged for the patient—and it sure has the odor of economic and political quackery.

The Sermonette

BY RAY FELKINS, Pastor

Christ, the Great Consoler

You will notice from a study of the fourteenth chapter of the Gospel according to John, that the writer introduces Christ as the Great Consoler. It is in this chapter that we see Christ endeavoring to console his disciples, because they are disturbed about his going away.

I am sure that the first verse of this fourteenth chapter of John has brought comfort to more troubled hearts than any other passage of Scripture. This passage of Scripture is used at funeral almost without exception. It seems to be almost indispensable for such a time. Why is this true? It certainly isn't because Christ spoke these words at such an occasion, nor is it because they were primarily intended to be used then. They are used then, because there is so much comfort to be found in them. It matters not what your distress, sorrow or trouble may be, Christ is saying to you, as he said to his disciples, "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me." Troubled hearts are plentiful today, and seemingly on the increase, and because of this, these words of Christ are needed more and more because of the consolation that is found in them. Christ is simply saying that there is no reason for having a troubled heart. How can this be avoided? By having our faith in Christ. For when our faith is in Him all causes for troubled hearts will vanish.

Christ continues to console as he speaks about his Father's house with its many mansions or abiding room. And he utters words of assurance as he says, "If it were not so I would have told you." We, who have our faith in Christ, know that we can count on this assurance.

Christ goes on to say that, though his departure is near at hand, and he would soon return to the right hand of the Father he will also come again. This return has a purpose and that is, that he might receive his own, so that where he is, there they may be also. This is certainly a glorious fellowship to look forward to, but one must remember that, only those who are prepared for this prepared place, will inherit it. This preparation can be made by faith in Christ, the Great Consoler.

—THE OLD TIMER

Report from Washington

BY
ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

The first official foreign visitor of the year was received by the House of Representatives last week.

Constantine Caramanlis, Prime Minister of Greece, addressed members of the House on Tuesday while he was in Washington on a state visit.

Speaking in English, he told House members that when Congress approved the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan it decided the fate of democracy all over the world. He said these actions were proof that the fight for freedom is indivisible.

During his talk, he reiterated his country's friendship with ours and said the Greeks are our fellow-fighters in the front line for the defense of democracy.

New Judges Voted

Three major legislative measures were acted on in the House last week—a bill creating new federal judgeships, a measure liberalizing social security benefits, and an annual appropriation bill.

The bill providing for a total of 70 new federal judgeships was passed on a roll call vote of 336 to 76, all the negative votes being cast by Republican members. As approved by the House, the measure creates 10 additional circuit judgeships, 55 more permanent district judges, and five additional temporary district judges.

Because of heavy backlogs in litigation, the courts have urged the creation of new judgeships to help alleviate the backlog. The increase has also been recommended by the Judicial Conference of the United States.

The marked increase in litigation in federal courts has been caused by the population rise, as well as by new federal laws and enforcement procedures. Consequently, most courts report long delays in the administration of justice that cause hardships on the litigants and the judges. A number of courts reports delays in civil trials amounting to as long as four years.

A similar bill passed by the Senate last month provides for three more permanent district judges, bringing the Senate total to 73. A conference committee will be assigned the task of reaching a compromise between the two versions.

Aid For Retirees

Overwhelming support was given to the President's social security amendments bill, with House passage coming on a vote of 400 to 14.

In the form passed by the House the bill will raise minimum monthly retirement benefits from $33 to $40; increase the benefits for aged widows, widowers, and parents from 75 per cent of the worker's retirement benefit to 32½ per cent; ease eligibility requirements by making it necessary for a person to have worked only one quarter in every four between 1950 and the time he reaches retirement age. Another major feature of the bill permits men to retire on reduced benefits at the age of 62 instead of 65.

To finance the new benefits, the bill calls for an additional tax of one-eighth of 1 per cent on employers and employees and three sixths of 1 per cent on the self-employed.

Interior Funds

A total of $752 million was approved by the House for the Interior Department's use in fiscal year 1962. This was $30 million less than the amount requested by the Department.

"Your Health" is presented by your physician at a health service of the Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

HEART DISEASE

Each year more deaths occur from heart disease than from any other single cause.

Acting like a pump, the heart circulates the blood through the body. The heart itself is composed of a mass of muscles forming four chambers which receive the blood brought to it from the veins. This blood is first pumped to the lungs where it receives fresh oxygen and goes back to the heart, from which it is again passed out to every part of the body through the arteries.

After it has distributed its oxygen and other essential substances to the individual organs, it is collected into tiny vessels called capillaries, which feed it into the veins and thus back to the heart. The essentials of the circulation of the blood were discovered in 165 by William Harvey, an English physician.

The six most important causes of heart disease are rheumatic fever which may damage the valve system; high blood pressure which may overload the heart; sclerosis or hardening of the coronary arteries which supply blood to the heart muscle itself; syphilis which especially affects the first part of the great artery, the aorta; subacute bacterial endocarditis, due to infection of the heart valves; and congenital defects of the heart by a germ, Streptococcus viridans; and congenital defects, meaning those existing at birth. Other conditions may damage the pericardium or outer covering of the heart.

These certain diseases may cause damage, slight or great to the heart. Among specific heart conditions are angina pectoris, a pain in the chest which sometimes extends down the arm and which is caused by interference with the blood supply to the heart muscle; coronary thrombosis or occlusion, caused by a clot of blood forming

THE American Farmer, (especially the Chilton County farmer) is the most efficient farmer in the world. Take Russia for instance; today, the farmer in the Soviet Union produces enough to feed himself and one other person. The American farmer produces enough to feed himself and 25 others. Unless they have folks on the Moon who can produce like that, a fat lot of good it's gonna do for the Russians if they get there first.

CRUELY, home is where you can scratch any place that itches!

WE found out that the farmer is not the one who is running up the cost of food! In the last 10 years the cost of food per family has increased by $243. The farmer has increased that amount only about $3. Labor, handling and processing have created the greatest increase of $130 and of course government and taxes has thrown in its share. All in all, the farmer has done much to hold down the cost of food, — at his own expense, we might add.

FOR the month of March the ABC Road earned $85,569.64 on the three per cent sales tax on alcoholic beverages that is earmarked for education. There are a lot of people who don't understand why some people will "blow" so much money on alcohol when they won't contribute one red cent to the worthy charities and organizations which actually serve them personally. We don't understand it either and the amount mentioned represents a lot of money, at 3 per cent, spent on spirits to enlighten (?) the human brain!

In listening to Steve Allen's broadcast yesterday on the destruction of the earth by modern warfare, I gained some important impressions. The most important is that God will let man destroy himself—and that doesn't mean that God has abdicated to man. On the contrary God is still running things. He put a limit on man's doings. And in the case of nuclear war he put a limited amount of oil in the pockets in the earth and nobody knows how long it will take man to drain out these pockets. One of these days man will wake up and find out he's out of oil and is in total darkness. And another thing we should remember while we are contemplating the total destruction of man, God will leave male and female of all kinds to repopulate the earth as He did in the case of Noah's Ark.

THIS is a true story! We have changed nothing, and we hope protects the innocent. A Highway Patrolman stopped a tleman going in the neighborhood of 80 miles per hour and then a discussion about what kind of the officer tried to explain to man that though speed is not cause of many accidents it kills the most. He gave the an illustration: "If you are down the road at 50 miles per and another vehicle drives the a stop sign and you hit him, one will be injured. If you going 80 miles per hour under same circumstances, someone be killed! Who's fault is it? your answer is the man on the stop sign, you are only partly right. It is half his fault and the other drivers fault that one is dead! Speed kills. This is a clear indication that has nothing to do with it, — just as dead!

THIS is also true! A man way too fast was pulled over local patrolman and later that he had no brakes! He was going at an abnormal rate of with 'leak in his brake fluid system. There is every possibility the man, along with those riding man, was saved from a bad accident possibly death, by an alert who stopped him. ★ What Alabama Makes - Makes Alabama ★
Chilton Joins In Observing Alabama Industry Days

From cotton pickin' to cotton ginning - from automation to rocket propulsion, the industrial climate in Alabama is in charge.

A century or more ago when Northern industrialists looked at Alabama they saw natural resources, available unskilled labor, and favorable tax structures.

Today, when Northern industrialists look at Alabama, they still see the same abundance of natural resources, available unskilled labor and favorable tax structures.

What they don't see, and what they are looking for today is the trained personnel in the high IQ bracket necessary in the complicated plants of today and tomorrow.

Also missing from the picture is the desired educational facilities for plant employees.

When people talk about education and industry going hand in hand, they mean just that.

To the industries of the state, small medium and large; to the workers and stockholders in the industries; a salute goes out from the University of Alabama. The University, through support to higher education, have helped make possible the automation jump, and the industrial-education climate change in Alabama today.

Recently, a major city in Alabama was turned down by three large firms seeking plant locations in the South. This city had an abundance of what was needed except not enough in the way of higher educational facilities for plant employees.

Alabama is working hard to bring new industries into the state and to offer those new industries the raw materials needed to make successful businesses.

Alabama, through cooperation with industry, and industry, in cooperation with the state, can work together profitably for raising the standard of the economic pattern.

This means working for a strong educational structure in the state, particularly in higher education.

A U. S. Chamber of Commerce report on education reports a direct ratio between business vigor and educational levels of different states and different cities. Education affects everything from per capita retail sales to percentages of home ownership.

The industrial change now going on in Alabama, evidenced by the demand for more and more workers with skills and with technical and professional education, is also evidenced by the increasing awareness of the role played by higher education.

In general, in the United States, states with a tradition of maintaining good public schools, costing well above the national average, have high per capita incomes. This happens, even with limited resources of minerals and soil and relatively short growing seasons.

In Alabama, with all the inherent opportunities available, the state has not yet realized the full growth attainable from supporting education to the maximum.

People who have a good education produce more goods, earn more money, buy and consume more goods, read more magazines and newspapers and are more active in civic and national affairs, enjoy a higher standard of living and contribute more to the economy.

Amount of schooling	Median Income
Less than 8 years	$3,120
8 years	$3,235
High school 5 years	$4,887
College, 4 years or more	$6,980

These figures, from the U. S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of Census, point out the inescapable economic fact associated with education.

Industries already located in Alabama don't want to go out of state for trained executive personnel.

Industries thinking of locating in the state are screening educational possibilities and the abundance or lack of skilled labor.

Industrial leaders and educational leaders in Alabama know that basic research is the key to economic survival and progress.

Each industry will have to decide how important is the support of education to its future and to the economic future of the state.

YOU Can Bring New Industry To Chilton County!

Usually, all things that the progressive, constructive and of lasting benefit are accomplished only after laying the groundwork little by little over a considerable length of time. From day to day the results of this kind of work are not conspicuously noticeable, but eventually and what appears to be suddenly, the favorable results are obtained, the desired goals are achieved, and the community as a whole benefits permanently.

Chilton County is underdeveloped and needs new industry. There are many business organizations throughout the United States that are in a mood to expand or relocate in this general area. In addition to favorable site, transportation facilities, raw materials, skilled and capable people, there are many other things necessary for a community to attract a new plant.

We have a good community, blessed with many material and human resources. We have influential churches, good schools, efficient public officials, active civic clubs, productive and efficient agriculture and business, but these all need constant improvement. This can only be done by you, working little by little from day to day, giving freely of your support.

We do not have a centrally located trade school to train both high school students and adults in such skills as Electronics, Radio and Television Repair, Automobile Mechanics, Farm Machinery Repair, Cabinet Making, Carpentry, Brick Masonry, Practical Nursing, Welding, Cosmetology, and many other skills needed to raise the earnings capacity of Chilton County citizens. Many of these skills are qualifying for factory jobs. Chilton County has been offered a centrally located Trade School by the Director of Vocational Education, State of Alabama. Much work to establish this school has already been done by some, some are undecided or inactive. Now, what are YOU doing about supporting the Trade School?

We do not have public parks on the Coosa River equipped with paved parking lots, concrete boat launching ramps, concrete tables, benches, barbecue pits, and good access roads. All of these things would be for the use and enjoyment of Chilton County citizens and visitors alike. Do you agree that these parks would attract new industry and new tourist dollars to Chilton County? The Director of Conservation, State of Alabama, with the help of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service is ready to build us three of these parks in Chilton County at a cost of approximately $45,000.00, seventy five percent to be paid from Federal funds and twenty five percent from State funds. Your County governing body has pledged Power Company has tentatively offered to provide threatened because some of your fellow citizens. These petitions have been sent to Mr. Ed Hatch, Executive Vice President, Alabama Power Company, Birmingham, Alabama, in an effort to get this fine company to withdraw its offer to provide public parks for your County?

We do not have a Chilton County public library, although some towns have established limited facilities. Federal and State funds are available to match local funds for a mobile library or a library in a permanent building. Your Judge of Probate has suggested that the old jailhouse might be converted to library use. He has also suggested that the vacant lot owned by the County near Chilton County High School be made available as a library site for the use of all citizens of Chilton County. Do YOU agree that a public library would help in attracting new industry in Chilton County? What are YOU doing to support the library? What are YOU doing to support the library?

On the occasion of Alabama Industry Days we salute the new industries that have recently been established in Chilton County, appreciating Chilton County as a land of opportunity. We salute business, and pledge to all our continued efforts to help YOU make Chilton County a good place to work - a better place to live.

THIS WEEK ON CAPITOL HILL

Alabama Politics—

If and when prospective gubernatorial candidate MacDonall Gallion decides to make that race next year, you can be plans to wage a high-stepping "shoeleather" campaign at the grass roots level.

At least this is the impression one gets from talking to the present Attorney General about the matter. Yes, Gallion wants to go into the race as the "next winner" and not just a candidate seeking the "fictionalism" vote.

Gallion's conversation of the next Governor's chase leaves you feeling he is presently out to create a "sincerity" image—that is, his supporters are pointing out to people that Gallion works as Attorney General has been outstanding, that he has been the one candidate who has made a study of this state's problems, and that he always makes himself available to Alabamians to discuss their problems.

And harrng any unforeseen complications, Gallion presently appears to be absolutely one of the sure runners in '62. Why? It was put to this writer by Administrative Assistant Ed Strickland in the following manner:

As everyone knows, Gallion received about 77 percent of the total votes cast in the last state-at-large Democratic Delegate's race. That election was the "trial balloon" for Gallion.

Strickland explained that during the delegate race, the Attorney General did not have a card printed nor was there any money spent for any other type of political advertisement. The result was that his name-strength alone was apparently worth the top spot.

This was the third time Gallion's name has ever appeared on a state ballot. He acquired the Attorney Generalship with about 270,000 votes and no runoff against two contenders.

To Strickland, and other Gallion boosters, political performances such as these can mean only political potency. What is Gallion telling the public these days?

One of the main points Gallion is stressing in his speaking tours, which takes him to every section of the state, is that industrial development must be induced into Alabama through aggressive planning.

Gallion is confident such planning would be the answer to the state's tax and labor problems. Another major issue being presented is Civil Rights and Un-American activities.

The Attorney General, according to Strickland, has completely in these forces and resorts to actual investigation the activities of both name-calling of groups and individuals in many of his talks. He continually emphasizes the maintenance of the Alabama-Southern way of life.

There is no doubt in Gallion's mind Civil Rights should be a major issue in the next Governor's race and that all the candidates must give it more than lip service. And to Gallion's supporters, they boast he has established an outstanding record on this score.

Thus, you might sum up Gallion's early gubernatorial work as a man quietly chipping away at the 1962 gubernatorial rock, hoping that by the time the election rolls around there will be nothing left of the rock but tiny pieces for the other possible candidates to hammer at.

IPS Cartoonist Win High Honors
Cartoonist Warren King and Graham Hunter, whose Industrial Press Service editorial cartoons are widely used in America's weekly press, including Chilton County News have won again Freedoms Foundations awards.

Freedoms Foundation honor certificates will be presented to them for cartoons which the judges felt contributed to a better understanding of basic political and economic freedoms of the American Way of Life. Hunter's cartoon, entitled "Hitch Your Wagon", illustrated the choice confronting the American voter in last year's President election; King's prize-winner, "Let We Forget", eulogized George Washington's leadership. A year ago the cartoonists were recipients of the Foundation's George Washington honor medals.

Some legislators are wondering just where House Speaker candidate, Bibb Rep. Virgil Ashworth, stand on Reapportionment. The most common answer among the lawmakers concerning Congressional Redistricting has been, I don't know what will happen. Sen. Bob Kendall presently plans not to be a candidate for Lt. Highways so marked are clean and beautiful. Are clean highways more important than human lives?

The proposed amendment would not solve all traffic problems but it is practical, educational and economical and would reduce highway fatalities and protect millions of safe

One hundred years ago this week, April 24, 1861, one month before North Carolina seceded, the Governor of North Carolina wrote Confederate Secretary of War LeRoy Pope Walker, of Alabama, offering North Carolina troops to the Confederacy.

This same week, April 27, 1861, Henry W. Hilliard of Alabama arrived in Nashville as commissioner to Tennessee from the Confederate States. It was believed that Tennessee, as well as North Carolina, would secede and join the Confederacy. Both states had refused Lincoln's call of April 15 for militia Secretary of War Walker urged to be used against the Confederacy.

Also on April 27, 1861, the Confederate Congress convened in special session in Montgomery. They heard that day a long message from President Jefferson Davis.

Davis's message of April 29 reviewed Northern attacks on Southern economic interests, particularly on slavery. Davis indicated that these attacks on slavery had forced the South to adopt some course of action to protect its economic interests. Davis then discussed the formation of the Confederacy, the careful, law-abiding drivers and passengers in their cars.

If the above law is passed and rigidly enforced the highway patrolmen will not be subjected to the political repercussions now associated with the conviction of speeders, drunken drivers, and other traffic violators.

Why not use your influence with safety councils, automobile insurance associations, news editors, civic and church organizations to insist that the Alabama State Legislators pass Rep. Perry's proposed penalties amending act.

Junior-Senior Prom
It was an enchanted evening for the Seniors of Jemison High School when the Junior class entertained them at the school auditorium, Friday, April 21st.
The prom theme, Hawaiian Cruise was carried out in the entertainment and the decorative theme, Blue Hawaii.
The stage was decorated to represent Waikiki beach with southern palm trees, lush and exotic flowers. Beams from a silver moon were reflected in the placid water along the beach.
On each side of the dancing area, palm trees and lush foliage formed a background for small tables. Each was decorated with a tiny palm candle holders with a colorful candle and a blue magnolia flower. Lanterns cast a soft glow over the scene.
Guests were seated at the tables as they arrived. Miss Joyce Headley, president of the Junior class, gave the welcome speech. Dwight Cobb, vice president, introduced the seniors and their dates as they came down the gang plank.
As Arthur Pier, president of the Senior class and his leading lady, Miss Ann Porter reached the dance floor for the lead out, Miss Headley presented a bouquet of red roses to Miss Porter. Young ladies in Hawaiian costumes presented each senior and date with a colorful lei.
Miss Linda Thrash gave the Ideals of the lei. At intervals during the evening, Shirley Glass sang Hawaiian songs, accompanied by Joan Northcutt.
Judy Garner did a Hula dance, with Carolyn Vinzant and Ann Nelson in the background.
One of the highlights of the evening was the crowning of the Prom Queen, Miss Given Moore, by Miss Joyce Headley.
Hawaiian punch, open face sandwiches, potato chips, cookies and fruit kabobs were served from a table ornamented with blue magnolia blossoms.
The Montevello High School Orchestra was on hand to furnish delightful music.
The evening was made complete with fun, laughter, a trifle of sadness, too, as they said, Aloha.

Agronomist Gives Rules For Growing Bermuda Hay

There are four simple rules for producing top quality coastal bermuda hay—fertilize it well, cut it often, cure it quickly, and store it properly, says Auburn Extension Service Agronomist O. N. Andrews.

Coastal bermuda is one of the highest yielding hay crops, often producing as much as four to six tons per acre. But the agronomist adds that coastal bermuda often makes poor quality hay chiefly because it is too old when cut, or is not fertilized properly. And quality can also be reduced if the hay is rained on in the swath or windrow, says the specialist.

Andrews recommends the following steps to produce top quality coastal bermuda hay.

1. Test soil for lime and fertilizer needs, and follow laboratory recommendations. Or fertilize with at least 200 pounds nitrogen and 500 pounds 0-10-20 or its equivalent per acre each year. Apply 0-10-20 and one-third nitrogen now and the rest of the nitrogen or fertilizer after second and third cutting.

2. Make first cutting, when tops of leaves pulled to maximum height measures 18 inches above soil.

3. Make next three cuttings at monthly intervals. The last cutting in the summer may be delayed five to six weeks because of lower growth rate.

4. Leave hay in swath until dry enough to bale. Hay cures faster this way than in the windrow, and rain damage will be less.

5. If coastal bermuda is grazed in the spring and used for hay during the summer, drag pasture to scatter manure piles as soon as cows are removed. Also apply nitrogen liberally then. Mow and remove stubble before applying fertilizer to make top quality hay from the first cutting.

Cash receipts from farm marketing increased from about $572 million in 1959 to about $542 million in 1960.

by all means, let's have it.

James Duke Hedlin, member of the Board of Education made the suggestion that if the 2-mill tax were proposed, that we also include in that proposal the agreement that 1-mill of that tax be used for Industrial Development in Chilton County.

It is generally accepted, not only by this committee, but by the people of Chilton County as a whole, that we need some kind of training facility for those persons in our County who do not wish to go to college, or cannot, but who would like to learn a trade.

Greatest of Progress—

"It would be the greatest thing that ever happened to Chilton County," said Mayor Hollis Jackson and Judge J. C. White offered the proposal that "the opportunity to increase the earning capacity of our children should not be lost."

Not Really "Cost" Anything—

"It will not cost us anything in the long run" because the training offered by such a facility will not only bring new industry to the Chilton area, but will allow us to train and educate those persons whom it is impossible to thus educate at present!

Closer To Reality—

The Trades Training Center for Chilton is this much closer to reality. John Higgins, President of the Chamber of Commerce, offered a motion that "it is now time for the Board of Education to formally announce to the State and Federal authorities that we accept their offer or that we appreciate their kindness and patience with us. Also, that we are making definite progress toward solving the problem of funds necessary to build said school."

The Board agreed to build Mr. Higgins' proposal and he also provided in his motion that the "formal acceptance be published in the Community Press."

All Chilton County—

"Sectionalism has been a primary factor in this matter," said Representative Speaks. "But I am interested only in a facility for all of Chilton County. Not one that will benefit Thursday, or Jewson, or Maplesville, or Clanton only; but one that will prove profitable and usable for all of Chilton County."

And today, that is where the Trades Training Program in Chilton County stands.

Harmony, Now Apparent—

Money is our problem, naturally but every effort is being made, by nearly every County official, in his own capacity, to assure us of a Trades School.

If you, as a citizen and a taxpayer, have any suggestion or any thought on the matter, let us hear from you today. Write your newspaper concerning the matter and what your thinking is. It will be a public facility of Chilton County. All citizens should, not only show an active interest in this matter, but should speak their opinions as well!

Peach Killer ...

the southwest side of limbs. These cankers are usually continuous for a considerable distance, have parallel boundaries, and the margin between dead and healthy tissue is very definite.

All Age Trees—

Blast affects trees of all ages and so far as we know, all varieties. The disease is active during the cool months of the year - fall and spring. The bacteria are spread naturally by rain, especially wind-blown rain, and possibly by pruning tools. Prolonged periods of wet weather during the fall and early spring favor the production and spread of the bacteria and insure optimum conditions for infection. No control measures are known, but two suggestions can be made that should lessen the effects of the disease: (1) prune out and destroy dead wood early in the growing season. This may limit canker development and will aid in reducing attacks by shot-hole borers. All dead wood should be pruned out before normal leaf fall to reduce the risk of infecting healthy wood with pruning tools during the dormant season; (2) extra nitrogen around infected trees should promote more vigorous new growth and aid in healing cankers.

Crown Rot-Soil Fungi—

Crown Rot is presumed to be caused by one or more species of soil fungi. The most distinctive symptom is the appearance of small light green leaves and delayed shoot growth. Many trees also show a delay in fruit growth. Flowering and leaf development may be delayed. Most frequently, these symptoms appear quite uniform through out a tree, but it is possible that one limb or a half a tree will show them while the remainder appears normal. When the attack is severe the tree may not flower or leaf out. There are no above ground cankers associated with crown rot. In fact, even after death the woody tissues remain firm and green until they eventually begin to dry out and shrivel from the twigs back towards the trunk. However, there frequently is a thin layer of grayish-black tissue next to the heartwood of the limbs and trunk. The initial underground attack of the tree is on the tip feeder roots. If the attack is severe most of the feeder roots may be dead or senescent by the time the above ground parts are difficult to find. When the attack occurs in the fall and continues into the spring, the larger roots become infected and turn brown. The disease gets its name from a band of decay on the trunk anywhere from the soil line to several inches below. However, this symptom is rare on trees in Chilton County, presumably because much of the attack occurred this spring.

2 to 6 Year Old Trees—

Crown rot is usually most severe on trees 2 to 6 years old. It occurs on all varieties and all rootstocks so far as is known. If a tree is to survive an attack, it must produce virtually a new root system, especially if the crown girdle is present. Death of trees is gradual and can be expected throughout the growing season. Some trees may recover and some may seem to recover before they again decline.

Weather Conditions—

The same weather conditions that promote blast also favor crown rot, except that for the latter prolonged periods of excessive soil moisture during cool periods of the year appear necessary for a build-up of the suspected fungi and their attack on the tree. Thus, it is not surprising to find both diseases on the same tree. There is no control known for crown rot and such practices as severe pruning to reduce the top in proportion to the reduced root system and extra fertilizer applications have failed to reduce tree losses.

County Agent John D. Sellers said, "I am most pleased that Dr. Peterson was able to visit this area and help identify and describe the conditions as outlined in this article. Mr. Chick Carlton, Manager, Chilton Area Horticultural Sub-Station, was most instrumental in getting the services of Dr. Peterson. "Chick" has pointed out the necessity for getting a more intensive research program underway in order that these conditions, as well as others, might be controlled or eliminated at the earliest possible date."

ees presented the trophies and made the awards. Many dignitaries, along with the State President of the Jaycees, Wayne Gentry were present for this occasion.

Safe driving, the theme of this event, is taking a great step forward, thanks to organizations like the Junior Chamber of Commerce and individuals like Officer Lawrence and others who are willing to give of their time and talents in helping youngsters develop a habit and the ability to drive safely.

RESEARCH RESULTS

from Auburn University Agricultural Experiment Station

ment of Agriculture and is charged with the job of carrying out research information and conducting educational programs for the benefit of the people of the state. This scientific information is available to the people through the county extension agents. The Extension Service has as its purpose improving living conditions in the homes of Alabama, strengthening communities, and contributing generally to the national welfare.

Auburn University, formerly known as Alabama Polytechnic Institute, became Alabama Polytechnic College in 1872. Until that time it was known as Eastern Alabama Male College, having been established in 1856. In 1959 the name was changed to Auburn University.

At present, Auburn University has a student body of around 9,000 and a total enrollment of approximately 1,065. This includes those engaged in extension instruction, research, and Extension work in every county in Alabama.

Next month, we will discuss the circumstances contributing to the passage of the Morrill Act and thus the establishment of our land-grant institutions.

Plans are already under way to carry out such a broad scale program. The cotton program is being continued with even greater effort this year. We have also started an intensive campaign to improve feed production as a foundation to Alabama's rapidly growing livestock industry. Plans are likewise being developed to give a similar push to every other major segment of our agriculture. Alabama agriculture is on the move—and it is going to move faster and further than many people realize!

By Dr. J. G. Morrill

Specialist

MORRILL

Each state has at least one land-grant college which, as the name suggests, is financed from grants of land to the various states and annual appropriations by the state legislatures. As they exist today there are three distinct branches of these institutions. First, there is resident instruction which provides for regular course work and "on campus" instruction for students above high school grade. Second, the experimental and research branch whose primary duty is to conduct research and collect scientific information. Third there is the Cooperative Extension Service which also represents the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

ONE DIME COULD SAVE $100

ALABAMA cattlemen throw away literally a thousands of dollars each year by not carrying out a disease prevention program. And with the recent boom in the possibilities of curing diseases, especially blackleg and malignant edema, are multiplied during flood conditions.

Blackleg and malignant edema can live indefinitely in the soil and often spread during high water conditions. And for this reason, it is of great importance that producers make every effort to prevent widespread outbreaks of these two diseases. Bacterin might save a head of cattle $100 a calf for a producer.

PEANUT DISEASE CONTROL

Fungicidal controlled leafspot of Earl 1960 at the Wiregrass Station, Hattiesburg, Mississippi, with copper M-22, Cypress and Phal-tan sprays showed promise in disease control. All sprays were applied four times with an eight-row sprayer at 80 gallons per acre.

MAXIMUM CROPLAND USE

Corn for silage and oats for grazing can be produced on the same land to provide maximum use of cropland while growing out stocker calves. Oats utilized in this system have provided an average of 153 grazing days per acre. Corn silage yields have averaged 9.9 tons per acre.

MUSCADINES ARE FOREST PROBLEM

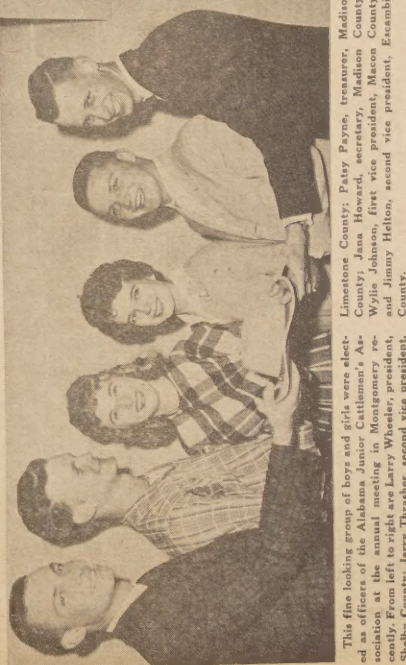

Opening hardwood timber stands by single stem treatment to kill unwanted trees favors growth of muscadine vines present. An area on the Fayette Experiment Forest was treated to kill inferior hardwoods in 1955. The muscadine problem seemed of little importance at the time, but since heavy vine growth has appeared with vines by 1960. Vines appear to be a weak vine can become a dense, healthy plant that damages or even kills, young pines.

VALUE OF PASTURE

Value of pasture is largely determined by the kind of livestock that utilize the forage. In turn, pasture value is influenced by price received for livestock on the market. Producing good livestock and pasture management.

Chicken Barbecue Hits The Spot

By Allen Brown
Specialist in Poultry

"CHICK-N-QUE!" Now there's a word full of romance and fun—especially at this time of year.

Everyone loves a barbecue. It suggests the mingled aroma of wood smoke hovering lazily over a charcoal fire, golden crusted chicken oozing with spicy goodness, the gay chatter of families sharpened by the fresh outdoors.

And barbecue is especially designed for taking care of those appetites. After a boy has had his first hair cut, he is big enough to eat one-half a barbecued chicken. Never serve him less.

Yn. You can serve these plentiful servings because chicken is very inexpensive. High quality chicken is available everywhere in convenient sizes and cut-to-order styles that need little or no preparation.

Chicken is not just isn't anything to compare with "chick-n-que" for large gatherings, such as civic, church, farm organizations, or community club meetings. Chicken for such occasions is easy and economical to prepare, and it doesn't take all day to do it.

Even here in the Deep South, weather during the year calls for an "in-between" "chick-n-que." It's a dandy for the family and even dandier for a company or a party, particularly for teenagers. The kitchen is the place for such a party. And all the guests will want to help baste the birds with homemade sauce.

Speaking of sauce, if you don't have a recipe, you can find several good ones in Circular 565, "Let's Have a Chicken Barbecue." You can pick up a copy the next time you drop by the County Extension Office. The circular contains such information as planning the menu, setting up equipment, starting the fire, and serving up the chicken.

Below some "chick-n-que" suggestions from the circular.

Selecting the Sauce

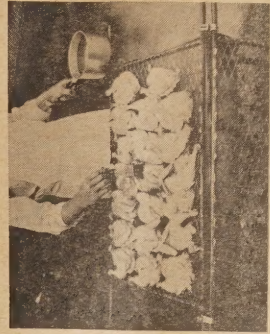

If you want a light brown color and a mild flavor, use the New England Sauce for basting.

New England Sauce

- 1 cup water
- 2 cups vinegar
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 egg margarine or vegetable oil
- 2 tablespoons salt

Barbecuing the Chicken

Start cooking one and one-half hours before serving time. Use 2 to 2½ pound fryers—they can be cooked better without losing their natural juices. Be sure to allow more time for heavier chickens.

Mix all ingredients and heat on grill.

If you would rather have a tomato-based sauce with more seasoning, use this one. Remember that a tomato-based sauce will burn easily and will result in a darker skin color. Some people like to cook with the new England Sauce and add a tomato-based sauce when it's time to serve.

Tomato Base Sauce

- 1 cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup vinegar
- 2 cups tomato catsup
- 4 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon tabasco sauce
- Juice of 1 lemon
- 1 tablespoon salt or salt
- 3 tablespoons prepared mustard
- Dash of red pepper

Melt butter or margarine; add vinegar, then other ingredients. Bring to a boil and let simmer for a few minutes.

Starting the Fire

Charcoal briquets are best for barbecuing because they hold heat longer. Generally, one-half pound of briquets per chicken half is enough. However, you may need to add a few briquets along to keep the heat even, depending on the size of the chickens.

Pile the briquets in the center of the pit. Sprinkle with lighter fluid or kerosene—never gasoline—and light. When briquets start glowing (10 to 15 minutes), rake them evenly over the pit, one layer deep. Allow five minutes for the smoke and dust to clear; then place chickens on grill over fire.

Farmer Get Small Slice of Subsidies

FOR every $1,000 the government has spent for subsidies in the past 50 years, the farmer has received only $8 or one-half of one per cent. So said Lloyd Patton, president of the Oklahoma Association of Electric Cooperatives, when he recently took sharp issue with those who contend that farm programs are the big item in government subsidies.

If we are going to be concerned about farmers' price support and marketing order programs, Patton said, we should also be concerned about oil depletion allowances; tax write-offs amounting to millions of dollars to large firms making capital investments; government guarantees on FHA house loans which underwrite the financing of the housing industry; and millions of government dollars in subsidies to the steel and automobile industries.

"Everyone should understand that parity is not magical which found to make a heavy man rich, but instead is a formula attempting to obtain for the farmer a take-home pay near par with the things he has to buy."

Cotton Support, Export Payments Boosted by USDA

An increase in the 1961 price support level for cotton of 0.82 cents a pound—to 33.04 cents a pound for Middling one-half cotton—was announced by Secretary of Agriculture Freeman. Most growers last year received a support of 32.42 cents a pound of Middling one-half, and the USDA said the increase will amount to about $3 a bale for most producers. A cotton task force recently recommended to Secretary Freeman that 1961 supports be set at a level which would keep prices from falling below last year's. At the same time, the Secretary also set the U. S. export payment on cotton for the marketing year beginning next August 1 at 8.5 cents a pound—a boost of 2.5 cents over the current rate of six cents.

Peanut Growers Can Save $4.5 Million

By Dean Bond
Peanut and Soybean Specialist

PEANUT growers in Alabama could easily increase their income by $4.5 million by following a leafspot prevention program.

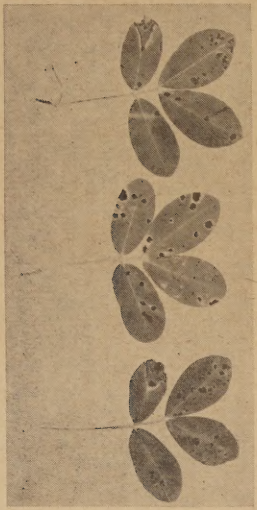

By preventing leafspot, researchers at the Wiregrass Substation have increased peanut yields an average of 345 pounds per acre. The material these researchers used is copper-sulfur dust and it's available to farmers all over the state.

It is possible for all peanut varieties to have leafspot. The disease originates in seed carried through the most growing season, and rain spread the disease to young, growing peanut leaves.

The leaves may not show up until a week or so after the leaves have become infected.

Once a leaf becomes infected, none of the usual fungicides will prevent the disease from killing the leaf.

In order for a grower to be competitive, the plants must be dusted often enough to keep a protective coat on the

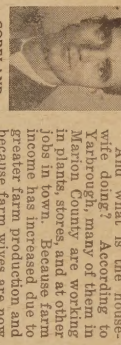

EDITOR'S DESK

FARM life is not what it used to be. But the changes have mostly been for the good. John Yarbrough, county agent in Marion County, and I were talking the other day, and the conversation turned to how women used to work on the farm—milking the cows, tending the chickens, and working in the field occasionally.

Now the small flock of chickens is almost nothing of the past and more and more of the labor on the farm is being done by mechanical equipment.

COPELAND

What does this mean to the standard of living of these people? Simply this—their way of life is coming closer to that of people living in town. Nearly 75 per cent of the farm people in Marion County now have television sets. And nearly one family out of every four has a telephone and home freezer.

And I firmly believe that the changes which have occurred in Marion County are fairly typical of nearly every county in Alabama.

Something New

This Month has a new feature which will continue to be part of the publication. Bill Cox, Extension farm buildings specialist, has written a column on things you can do with a building. The column on things you can do with a building is a new part of the magazine. It gives you absolutely complete information on how to do everything but build the farm for you. So don't fail to read this first installment on page 4.

Job Well Done

It seems as though I'm always congratulating 4-H'ers in this column. But it's simply because they're always doing something outstanding. And this month, congratulations go to all the clubbers who grew out and showed at the time beef calves I saw last month.

If the animal raisers were a good sampling, clubbers in Alabama have put in some hours on their beef projects this year.

Farmer Gets Small Share

Farmers received 89 cents of each dollar consumers spent for food in 1960—one cent more than in 1959. Auburn Extension Service Fruit and Vegetable Marketing Specialist Melvin Smith says that the farmer's portion of the food dollar is small because of marketing changes. And these changes have resulted directly from the homemaker's demand for easy-to-prepare products.

Buy, Can, And Freeze Food For A Quick Meal

By Farris Pridgett
Foods and Nutrition Specialist

DO you ever have unexpected company 15 minutes before dinner?

In times like these you need more than a friend—you need a magic wand, especially if you haven't made any plans for that particular meal. So why not plan ahead so you will be prepared to serve a quick, wholesome dinner.

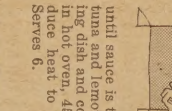

Planning ahead makes it possible for you to have food on hand for good quick meals. Planning may begin when you make out your shopping list for your visit to the local food market. Or it may begin when you select the frozen fruits and vegetables for the year or freeze rolls, casseroles, or desserts to have for special occasions. Having food partially prepared enables you to spend extra moments with your unexpected guests.

Even though the meal is hurriedly gotten together, it should supply nourishment to complete the four basic foods—milk, meat, fruits and vegetables, and breads and cereals. In addition, foods supplying energy are needed.

The food for your quick dinner should have variety in flavor, color, and texture and must be served attractively. The dishes of the frozen foods suggested menu will serve as a magic wand for you. Try it for a quick meal anytime.

Cotton Maid Contest Offers Many Opportunities

Margaret Moore Tells Of Her Experiences As 1961 Cotton Maid

WHY would any girl want to be Alabama's Maid of Cotton?

"There are many reasons," says Margaret Moore of Tallapoosa, Alabama's 1961 Maid of Cotton. One of the most delightful experiences is just to wear the title of Maid of Cotton, for it means that wherever you go the red carpet is rolled out."

Before traveling over the state, Maid Margaret shopped with advisers for a 100 per cent cotton wardrobe. She estimates that about $1500 was spent for a winter coat, raincoat, two formal, three after-five dresses, and jumbo, travel, school, and sports ensembles. Also, Centennial, Mardi Gras, and Christmas parade costumes were made for these special occasions.

New hair styles were created just for her numerous appearances. And she received special training in modeling, television, self-improvement, and speech.

"One of my greatest joys has been to meet so many people in Alabama and to make so many friends," says Margaret. "One of my experiences included tours of the West Point Manufacturing Company and Avondale Mills. I went to the World's Fair at the Shriners and modeled my wardrobe at the Shriners Christmas party. I rode a float in the Tallapoosa Christmas parade along with Miss Alabama and Miss America of 1960. I also have presented fashion shows all the way from Opelika to Russellville."

"Any girl who participates in the county maid of cotton contest will benefit from this experience. Should she become state maid, she'll never forget the friends she made, the lovely cotton wardrobe, and the other experiences which contribute to an individual's growth and experience."

Hints for the Homemaker

IN buying ready-to-cook broilers or fryers, look for color, plumpness, appearance (ornaments), cleanliness, and the amount of fat.

For something sweet and spicy, look for tops of muffins in a mixture of sugar and cinnamon as soon as they come out of the oven.

Today's beauty hint is a reminder that frequent shampoo and daily brushing will make your hair shine and bring out highlights in its color.

Whether your rug is old or new, keep it clean all the time so dirt and soil won't work into it and shorten its length of wear.

National Home Demonstration Week

By Mary Coleman
State Home Demonstration Agent

THE first week of May is national home demonstration week, and Alabama's 33,000 HD members are in the spotlight.

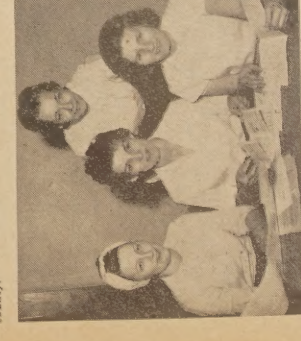

The HD member (shown above) exemplifies the reason for the existence of this program. In the outside circle, designating the cooperation of county, state, and nation in the Extension program, are the words "Cooperative Extension Service." In the inner circle of the emblem are the initials "H.D.," which stand for Home Demonstration—the official term for the homemaking phase of the Extension program.

In the second circle are the words "Home, Family, Community." Between these words are the symbols of the oak, the Roman lamp, and the sun. These symbols represent the strength, enlightenment and productivity of the home. The hearthfire is the central theme and symbolizes the finest attributes of the home—friendship, hospitality, friendship, comfort, peace, and security.

Home demonstration work is an adult education program in better homemaking.

What coat shall I wear? This question can be easily answered by the members of home demonstration week in Cherokee County. Home Agent Yancy Walters said that six members participated in this course. Among them was Mrs. James Thompson who is shown sewing the interlining to her coat. The 19-year-old homemaker is the youngest member in the county.

More and more working women in Alabama are receiving timely information in various ways from home demonstration agents. In Calhoun County, Home Agent Yancy Walters sends material by mail each month to over 300 women. She also takes bulletins to local plants so that the women can pick them up as they wish. Shown from left are Dollie Young, Myrtle Fowler, and Betty Wilson as they look over some of the information they have received from Home Agent Walters, standing.

search. Programs are planned according to the needs and interests of those taking part. In organized clubs the volunteer leaders help plan and carry on the home demonstration program. These leaders are selected by members of their own club to be trained by the home agent. The club is then organized by the home agent to bring subject matter to the club.

Besides their work with groups, home demonstration agents assist many other homemakers through workshops, demonstrations, tours, and publications. In addition, they visit families to advise on individual plans and problems, appear on radio and television programs, and write educational articles for newspapers.

During this 16th National Home Demonstration Week observance, a special effort will be made in all counties to acquaint young homemakers and working homemakers with services and information available to them through the HD program. Home demonstration members are assisting in this effort by visitation and "share the idea" programs, luncheons, teas, and special radio and TV programs.

Through its "show how" and "tell how" methods, women learn to apply the latest findings developed by home economics researchers.

Zion Home Demonstration Club members in Marion County carry information they receive at meetings to their homes. Home Agent Yancy Walters said that these adopted members, as they are called in the county, receive any material that Home Agent Walters gives to the regular club. These young homemakers and their husbands are invited to home demonstrations and tours. Mrs. Lincoln Davis, seated left, is passing information on making a blouse to Mrs. Ted Rabourn, adopted member. Looking on are Mrs. O. M. Lindsey, left, county council president, and Agent Tanner.

by Dr. E. T. York, Jr., - Director
Auburn University Extension Service

ALABAMA agriculture is on the move! This is clearly demonstrated in farm income figures released recently by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In 1960 Alabama's total cash farm income was some $642,000,000—up more than $20 million from the previous year. This represents Alabama's highest cash farm income in history.

Perhaps of even greater significance is the change in net income per farm. Alabama's farmers realized an average net income of $1,597 in 1960—up $107 over the 1959 figures. This, too, is a record.

Now let us look at these figures more closely.

We have emphasized the fact that agriculture is a highly competitive business and that if Alabama agriculture is to grow and prosper, we must meet the competition in other states. We must do a better than average income figures indicate that in 1960 Alabama farmers did a far better than average job. Our total cash farm income went up approximately four per cent last year, while average farm income for the nation as a whole increased less than two per cent.

Another measure of our relative performance is the change in our ranking among other states in farm income. In five of the last 10 years, Alabama has ranked first from the bottom of all states in realized net income. During this 10-year period, we have held a position fifth from the bottom, and we held a position fifth from the cellar in 1959. In 1960, however, we jumped all the way to ninth from the bottom of all states in this measure of income.

We should be gratified, but not satisfied, with this progress. We have set as a goal a $1 billion farm income for Alabama by 1970. To achieve this goal, Alabama must have an annual average cash farm income of $1,800 per farm. Our rate of increase was only four per cent last year. In my opinion, there is no question that we can and will!

During the past three months, we have discussed in this column a program of resource development aimed at utilizing more completely Alabama's abundant natural resources. We have emphasized that we have abundant natural resources and that we have the future economic growth of the state is dependent upon their development.

The Alabama Extension Service is proposing to launch a concrete educational effort in cooperation with all other interested groups aimed at the more complete development and use of these resources. The first major phase of this effort was our 1960 cotton program. Alabama's cotton production this year would have been if we had followed the trend in production of five other southeastern cotton states.

This much was achieved through an all-out educational effort with just one commodity. Visualize what might be accomplished with the same sort of program with all major agricultural enterprises.

Willie Ray Zorn Makes Top Yield By Doing Everything Right

INCOME from peanuts in Barbour County reached the $300 mark last year—double the amount for the previous year.

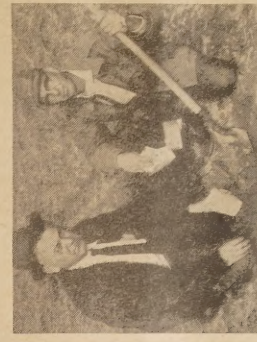

"But even with a record gross," says County Agent Jess Walton, "the net income—the take-home money—is not keeping pace with the gross. The net is less now than it ever has been because of the cost of production squeeze," he adds.

"Farmers are having to spend a lot more now to make a crop than they ever have had to before," continues the county agent. He cited machinery and labor cost as the two major factors in profit reduction. And he pointed out that fertilizer is still "the best buy for farmers."

A cure for the situation? Walton says the only thing the farmer has any control over is increasing yields per acre. The costs of production drop as yields are increased. The only way a farmer can better his situation is to increase his production and do a better job of farming, he said.

More and more farmers in the county must do this, says Walton. This Texasville farmer has 3,092 pounds of peanuts per acre, the highest reported yield in the county.

This top yield was an increase of 2400 pounds above the yield Zorn's father, G. W. Zorn, made some years ago. He gives credit Willie Ray Zorn, right, believes in testing his soil before fertilizing peanuts. And by testing his soil and the latest production methods, Zorn has doubled his yield in the last few years. Here, Barbour County Farm Agent Jess Walton is assisting the Texasville peanut grower in testing his soil.

Use Trained Scouts

Increase Cotton Income In Alabama

By Walter Grimes
Extension Entomologist

ALABAMA farmers are doing everything possible to make a profitable year of cotton in 1961. To accomplish this year, more production methods than ever before.

GRIMES

One of the first things a farmer must know to solve this problem is which insects are causing damage and when to control them. This can be done best by scouting or examining the plants every week. Many farmers no longer have time to check their cotton, so they find it cheaper to hire trained scouts. Remember, unnecessary application of insecticides will not only cost more money but may also create insect problems by killing helpful insects.

The 1961 cotton insect control recommendations vary somewhat from previous years. Research has shown that by carrying out a full season insect control program an average of 800 pounds more cotton can be made than by controlling insects only during the major fruiting season. And cotton in which insects are controlled for the entire season is usually ready for harvest from one to two weeks earlier. From $20 to $25 per acre more may be received by carrying out a complete control program.

Seedling Stage

Cutworms and thrips are the most destructive insects that occur in the seedling stage. Thrips usually feed on the first leaves as they begin to unfold. These leaves become distorted and turn brown. When the first signs of thrips damage occur—usually at the two-leaf stage, apply two or three applications of a recommended insecticide at weekly intervals. It doesn't usually pay to control thrips after plants have six to eight leaves. Cutworms damage plants by cutting them off at ground level. Control measures should be used when stands are threatened.

Beginning of Squaring Stage

A large group of insects often causes serious damage to cotton around squaring time. Fleahoppers, tarnished plant bugs and bollworms attack young buds and tiny pinhead-size squares, causing them to turn brown and fall from the plant. Overwintered boll weevils feed in the terminal buds and later lay eggs in the squares for future generations. Damages to the squares are usually not serious unless in the delay of the setting of squares. Bollworms are perhaps the most harmful insects during this time and for the last three years have done severe damage before most farmers realized they were present.

Add Beauty To Your Home By Having A Good Lawn

By J. C. Lowery
Extension Agronomist

A good lawn gives distinction to any home. It adds color and comfort to the ground underfoot, and by preventing erosion, it protects the soil while beautifying the surroundings.

Grasses are important for school and church yards, recreation areas, cemeteries and grounds around public buildings, too.

With so many advantages, it's just natural that more and more folks look on a good lawn as a major necessity.

As a result of 20 years of research at the Auburn University Agricultural Experiment Station, we have information on the most suitable grass to use in special areas and under special conditions and how to establish and maintain it. And we're extra fortunate that there is a grass suited to just about any need and condition found in Alabama.

Thanks to research we now have a number of good turf grasses from which to select. Let's look at the groups and see their advantages and disadvantages.

LOWERY

Bermuda Grasses

Bermuda grasses are easily established and give quick coverage under main advantages. However, they are not the best for many conditions. They are hard to keep out of flowering conditions, shrubbery and do not offer weeds much competition. The varieties are Common, Tifgreen Bermuda (No. 329), Sunbelt Bermuda and Tiflawn (Tifton 57). Common is established by setting sprigs or sowing seed, the others by setting sprigs only.

Zoysias

Zoysias grow well in the shade and are easy to keep out of shrubbery and flower beds. Since no seed are available, they are planted only by setting sprigs. The two varieties are Tifdwarf and for Alabama are Matrella and Emerald.

St. Augustine

St. Augustine is a broad leaf grass that makes a good sod and is very popular in South Alabama. Some have been discouraged with it because of insect and disease damage. Even so, it is a very desirable turf grass in adapted areas. It is rather risky for North Alabama, and it is established only by setting sprigs.

Increase Yields In Alabama

Apply Correct Amount Of Nitrogen At The Proper Time

By Dr. Walter Sowell
Extension Soil Specialist

A RE a green lawn, a field of dark green corn, and livestock enjoying luscious grass things of beauty to you?

Many people who admire these things never stop to think what makes them exist. Nitrogen is one of the major elements that make plants grow—whether it be corn, cotton, or lawn or pasture grass. It also gives corn color, stimulates the dark green color, stimulates the growth, and improves the quality and protein content of plants.

Amount to Apply

Plants, with the exception of legumes, need a large amount of nitrogen each year. The amount that should be added to the soil depends on the crops you are growing and individual soil type. In many cases, adjoining fields need different rates of nitrogen.

Auburn University has conducted research and determined the amount of nitrogen necessary for highest yields and net returns on the various soil types in the state. Fertilizer reports show that the state is using about 88,000 tons of nitrogen each year—only about half enough for top production.

The best way to find out the exact amount of nitrogen you need for top production is to have your soil tested. However, if you don't soil test, ask your county agent for the general recommendations for your area.

When to Apply

It is important to apply some nitrogen in the form of a complete fertilizer at planting time to get the crop off to a good start. Then just before fast growth begins, apply most

All of these insects are hard to find. Therefore, careful checking of buds and young squares should be made once a week. When four to five young bollworms per 100 terminals are present, or if cotton fleahoppers and tarnished plant bugs or damaged squares are found, make three applications of a recommended insecticide at weekly intervals. If you are not going to examine your cotton and the type of damage described above is known to occur most years, a control program should be started when the first squares form.

See your county agent for the latest recommended insecticides to use for the various insects.

Next month information will be given on controlling insects during the major fruiting season.

WE can understand better the person who takes his community newspaper for granted; rather than the person who would have it play "second fiddle" to the larger, less personal and certainly less influential in the community daily newspaper. We have nothing against daily newspapers, but based on the good in the local community, the metropolitan daily cannot hold a candle to the weekly press.

Inspiring To New Generation

A former captain of the baseball team at El Paso's Bowie High School, who was in Washington on business on Baseball's Opening Day, went to the ballgame with President Kennedy - as the President's guest.

This was the unexpected climax of a day that had been planned for Richard Lopez hour-by-hour and minute-by-minute. This was the day on which this 17-year-old honor student from the El Paso slums paid a formal visit to the White House to be hailed, out of more than 600,000 members of the Boys' Clubs of America, as the "Boy of the Year" and the nation's outstanding example of Juvenile Decency.

Then the President of the United States asked young Lopez if he would like to go to the ballgames - and his day was made!

Cited for outstanding service to his home, school, church, community and Boys' Club, Richard's fantastic record of honors and achievements easily won him top place among all candidates submitted by the more than 575 Boys' Clubs in the US in the 15th annual "Junior Citizen" honors. Now a senior at Bowie High School, he has been president of both his sophomore and junior classes; member of the student council and national honor society; sports editor, manager and photographer of the school paper; captain of the baseball, basketball and tennis teams; personality of the year and choir president in 1960.

From Bowie High School, young Lopez is going on to college to study law and in winning the Boy of the Year honors will receive $500 scholarship from the Reader's Digest Foundation which goes with the award, and which is part of more than $2,700 in scholarships provided by the Foundation annually to help needy and deserving youngsters achieve higher education.

Richard lives with his widowed mother, and since his father's death when he was 11, has supervised, disciplined and cared for his three younger brothers while his mother was at work. He has recently remodeled the house and painted it inside and out.

Before he left for Washington, and his unexpected box seat at the Nation's Opener, El Paso's Mayor, Raymond Telles, said of him: "If Richard is representative of the coming generation, we have little to fear for the future."

And it could be added that the dedicated work of the Boys' Clubs of America in giving such boys as Richard Lopez a chance at fulfillment is an ever-growing factor in safeguarding that future.

Freedom Of Choice -- Down The Drain

WE are basically conservative! We pride ourselves on trying to avoid gossip of all kinds which will lead to ill feelings and possibly detriment to someone's standing or character.

But how in the name of all that is written do they expect us white folks to comply with all the rigid controls, rules and judicial regulations when such facts as the following are continually reminding us that it is the white race that is being discriminated against just as much, but in a much greater capacity and a much more important vein than is the Negro?

"In those areas where local officials, operating under court orders "enforcing" integration have had to comply, they have usually also kept the colored schools open and operating. Negro students in such communities have a choice of attending their own schools or the newly integrated schools. It is only the white children who have no choice, unless their parents provide supplemental private facilities."

In other words, the white citizen is paying to keep the public schools AND if he desires to choose anything for himself and send his child to a school of his choice, then he must also support private schools as well.

Anyone who feels that this procedure of our courts and our government officials is fair, just, civil and according to our Constitution is either completely against America and our free way of life!

We do not wish to be forced upon anyone and we do not want anyone, or anything forced upon us! In a nutshell, that is freedom, and to our way of thinking, that is freedom, in a nutshell! Now, which is freedom and which is tyranny?

DO YOU REMEMBER?

(Taken from the files of the News, April 30, 1931)
"Ernest Daniels, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Daniels, of Jemison, died at the Central Alabama Hospital last Thursday from injuries he received when the automobile in which he and others were riding, overturned at Thorby."

"It was announced here this week by J. M. Callaway of Clanton, the Chilton County Post of the American Legion that Senator Hugo L. Black has accepted an invitation to speak at the meeting of the local American Legion Post on the night of Monday, May 4th."

"All wagon scales in Alabama have tested for accuracy by the Weight Division of the Dept. of Agriculture."

At that time, Pete Jarman, Jr., was Secretary of State, John Stapp was County Agent of Chilton County and Buford Lawrence was Superintendent of Education of Chilton County.

The Goodwin-Davis murder trial was receiving quite a bit of space in the News and was a tragic incident.

Among those graduating from CHHS that year were: Momer Carroll, Alvin Davis, John Ponder Lawrence, Joe Earl Gowan, Mary Heard, Clotilde Johnson, Melvin Lockhart, Harvey Melton, Stanley Nivens, Benson Simms, Edwin Wagoner and Bernice Williams.

"Mrs. T. R. Burdette was hostess to the 'As you like it Club'." "The Third Quarterly Meeting of the County FFA Council, with Miss Cora Bell Maddox, President met at Isabella on Saturday, the 25th."

And here's a beauty from D. W. Haskew's column on Moral Echoes: "One day I saw a mother making a fuss over her baby. The little trick was a beauty and the mother had a right to be foolish about it." Then the great big 'baby' came in and the mother 'fussed' over him too, about bringing mud in on his shoes. "Had it ever occurred to you that many a divorce has had its beginning when a mother made a fuss over the little baby and administered a rebuke to the 'baby'." And then he says: "If there are children in your home, do not forget to make a fuss over the father of those children! Times don't change much do they?"

The Sermonette

BY RAY FELKINS, Pastor
Mulberry Baptist Church

Christ, the True Vine

In the fifteenth chapter of the Gospel according to John the writer introduces Christ as the True Vine. In the very first verse Christ says, "I am the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman." Again, in the fifth verse Christ says, "I am the vine, ye are the branches." Of course he is speaking of his followers.

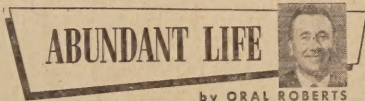

Surely it was easy for Christ to use this analogy to show his relationship to his followers, for vine growers were very prominent in his day, and even those of other vocations knew something of the nature of the vine. Christ could not have used a better analogy than this, to teach the close relationship of himself and his followers.

As we know, the branches are attached to and dependent on the vine. They grow off from the vine, and therefore look to the vine for life. The sap necessary for the sustenance and growth of the branches, is fed to them from the vine. When a branch is broken off, it withers and dies. This is evident of it's seed of the vine for life. As the branches receive their life from Christ. He gives us both physical and spiritual life. Without him we could not exist.

Christ informs us that if we are to bear fruit (spiritual), that we must abide in him as the branches do in the vine, for as the branch cannot bear the fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine, we cannot bear fruit, but he in us. Paul realized this relationship between Christ and his followers for he said, "I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." This relationship is imperative, not only if one is to produce fruit, but if one is to be saved for Christ said, "If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned."

How is the connection made between Christ and a human being? It is the result of faith in Christ, who gives eternal life, and forms an intimate relationship. Let our faith be in Christ, the True Vine.

IF YOU KNOW THE LORD

The man was clearly at the end of the road. His soiled and wrinkled suit, unkempt hair and scuffed shoes indicated that he was a man in deep distress. And if these were not enough, his unshaven face and pain-filled eyes revealed the agony within him.

He came quietly into the big tent cathedral one evening during the crusade. Dejectedly, he took a chair near the back and buried his face in his hands, oblivious to his surroundings.

According to the usher who saw him and later talked with him, he sat that way even after the service began.

Soon our crusade soloist, Bob Daniels, stepped up to the microphone to sing. With his rich, vibrant baritone voice he began to tell of God's love and concern for us. He sang: "If you know the Lord, You need nobody else! To see you through life's darkest hour. You may walk alone; You only need the Lord."

But the man did not hear the rest of the song.

Those words were the ones he had been waiting to hear. Bobbing in his release, he went with the usher to the prayer tent to pray and give his heart to God.

Afterward he told his story: His wife, three children and his mother had gone with him to attend a sales convention for a large business concern. At its conclusion he put them on a large airliner to return home while he took care of some other business. Then he would meet them at home.

But he never saw them again. When their bodies were taken from the twisted wreckage of the plane, they had been burned almost beyond recognition.

The loss was more than he could stand. These people were his entire family—the only people whom he trusted and depended upon. He gave up his executive position and left his home. After doing that, he couldn't remember where he had gone or how he had existed.

But as he sat in the tent that night, the words of the song gave hope to his despair. "If you know the Lord, you need nobody else!" Christ gave purpose and meaning to his life again. The man was able to adjust to his loss and become successful again, this time serving and depending upon God.

Perhaps you are like this man was. The people whom you trusted and were dependent upon are gone from you. Remember, Christ will never leave you. He brings abundant life to meaningless existence. If you know the Lord, you need nobody else!

stitutions and conducting long-term national development planning.

Attempts to recommit the bill and to delete the Latin American aid program were defeated before the House passed the measure on a roll call vote of 330 to 82. The measure now goes to the Senate for consideration.

Farm Surpluses

Members of the House approved and cleared for the President last week a major farm bill. The measure authorizes the President to make agreements during the 1961 calendar year for sale of an additional $2 billion in surplus agricultural commodities to foreign countries. The increase in funds, when added to the $1.5 billion previously authorized, brings the total 1961 authorization to $3.5 billion.

Both the House and the Senate passed the legislation by voices vote.

Other Action

Also in the House last week, final action was taken on the depressed areas bill which is designed to aid areas of chronic unemployment and recession. Passage of the measure in its final form was considered a victory for the Kennedy Administration. However, there are still pending several Administration-backed measures on which the House and Senate have not acted. These include housing, medical care of the aged, federal aid to education, and tax revision.

RAYS OF HOPE

Virginia H. Stover

IN his book "The Secret of Happiness" Billy Graham says "God measures men by the small dimension of humility and not by the bigness of their achievements or the size of their capabilities." This would make us realize at once how important it is to keep humble. Not on the surface of the earth, but in the heart of the soul. It is not to be filthy and remain a beggar, but to be humble and the humility that recognized that finite man is only a dot on the surface of the earth without the recognition of God in his heart and His Holy Spirit guiding our lives.

The kind of humility that enables us to constantly recognize our sins and makes us continually willing to confess our shortcomings. Not waiting for a more opportune time, but just as we apologize or ask the pardon of a fellowman when we bump into him or in any way offend them. Breaking the rules of etiquette, even more should we be instantaneous in begging forgiveness from our heavenly Father when we sin. This will make us the right kind of person, it will set the example for others too for as we live this kind of life we cause others to want to be like us.

If each one of us practiced the Scripture, "Let not the sun go down upon your wrath" how different things would be. It takes a spirit of humility to acknowledge the loss of every day wrong we have done. Many marriages would be saved if one or the other would be first to ask forgiveness for the harsh words that had been spoken by them that day. The mother-daughter relationship of unhappiness could be mended at once if we each would have a spirit of humility that says, "I'm sorry," and asked forgiveness. How many fathers and sons that seem to have nothing in common could have that precious relationship that should be their heritage if one or both would have the humbleness of spirit to say, "Please forgive me. I love you." God measures men by their humility.

One hundred years ago this week, May 3, 1861—three weeks after the Confederate guns ousted the United States garrison at Fort Sumter—the Confederate Congress in Montgomery passed "An Act Recognizing the Existence of War Between the United States and the Confederate States."

This declaration that war existed came as the climax of a chain of events beginning in Montgomery, February 18, 1861, when the Confederate Congress had resolved that "immediate steps should be taken to obtain possession" of Fort Sumter and Fort Pickens "either by negotiation, or force."

The Confederate Congressional Act of May 3 authorized President Jefferson Davis to employ the whole and naval force of the Confederacy to "meet the war." The Act said the war had been "commenced" by the United States' refusal to negotiate with the Confederacy, by Lincoln's call for 75,000 soldiers after the Confederate bombardment of Fort Sumter, and by Lincoln's announcement of a blockade of Confederate ports.

The same Act of May 3 authorized Davis to go ahead with his previously announced plan for commissioning privateers to prey on United States commerce.

This week of April 30 through May 6, 1961, was a time of anxiety for Mobile. Citizens there voiced to the Confederate government fears that their city lacked adequate defenses. A Confederate Congressman wrote the Confederate Secretary of War, LeRoy Power Walker of Alabama, that Mobile might be one of Lincoln's targets, because the United States customhouse there and the United States arsenal at nearby Mount Vernon had been seized by Alabama before seceding and had been held by the Confederacy.

TWO Chilton County students at Alabama College have been tapped for membership in the scholarship honorary fraternity of Eta Sigma Phi Tuesday evening, May 2. They are Lela T. Congratulations anyway folks!

WE hear hearing rumors, rumors about a local business establishment expanding here in Clanton. Only thing we have to say, of this particular business enterprise, is that it would be the smartest move they ever made in Clanton and that is a confirmed opinion based on a whole lot of research.

SEE where Senator Lister Hill introduced and passed a couple of bills in the Senate which would make efforts to do something about juvenile delinquency a reality. We do not agree with the methods of this proposal, as it is outlined, because it calls for entirely too much Federal Control of the going on. But, we do agree with the nature of the bills and until someone else does something more constructive is the way of easing the taxpayers' pains we suppose we'll have to make do. Our Senators and Representatives need to make a reappraisal of their attitudes toward Federal spending. Let's do more of it on a local level, where we know how much we can spend and what for. We still don't like contributing to the Federal Government and then saving some of those "enlightened" individuals that handle the purse-strings giving away money to the

IN CHILTON—

29.4 Pensioners Receive S.S. Benefits

In Chilton County 29.4 percent of the old age pensioners also receive Social Security benefits, Miss Joyce Clements, Director, said today. She added that this compares with a Statewide figure of 25 percent. One county, however, had only 10 percent and another had 33.9 percent.

The statewide figure has risen from 24 percent in 1955, Miss Clements, said. Both programs are more liberal today than they were six years ago, she explained, and more persons who reach 65 now or who have recently become 65, have at least some Social Security coverage.

Alabama's aged population has risen to more than 260,000 today, Miss Clements, added, compared with under 200,000 in 1950. In every 1,000 persons in the 65 and over age group, 511 get Social Security and 378 old age pensions, it was revealed.

The amount of a Social Security or OASDI check is always computed as any other income and deducted from a person's net in computing the amount he can get from the Department of Pensions and Security, Miss Clements said. She pointed out that the average old age pension in Chilton County was $59.43 for those not receiving OASDI, and $33.40 for those on OASDI rolls. The latter group had an average OASDI benefit of $31.97.

Housing Loan Fund Available

Farmers Home Administration county supervisor Isaac C. Byrd said today that owners of farms who need to replace or repair houses and other essential farm service buildings are showing a great deal of interest in the agency's farm housing loan program.

These loans are available to qualified owners of all sizes of farm property. The farm will produce at least $400 worth of commodities for sale or home use each year, based on 1943 prices. Additional loan funds have recently been made available for this type of credit.

Studies compiled by The Travelers Insurance Companies show that traffic violations can be blamed for 2,600,000 injuries and more than 30,000 deaths on our highways during 1960.

The Necessity Of a Newspaper

"Statistics have shown over and over again that the growth and prosperity of just about every town or small city is geared directly to the growth of the newspaper.

Without the continuous promotion and boosting given to local chambers of commerce, local business activities, Scouts, Red Cross, 4-H clubs, United Fund, local schools and churches, veterans and service organizations and the many other services provided by the local newspaper, a town will gradually deteriorate and die.

To provide such services to a community, a newspaper must have the wholehearted advertising support of the local merchants."

Federal Age Requirements On Chilton's Berry, Peach Pickers

Birmingham, Ala., — (Special) With spring planting and harvesting of early crops requiring added manpower this month, Sterling B. Williams, regional director of the Wage-and-Hour and Public Contracts Divisions, sought to clarify child-labor requirements of the Fair Labor Standards Act here today.

"At this time of year Alabama's strawberry, peach and potato growers along with our vegetable farmers, may overlook Federal age requirements. Child-labor laws have not changed recently," Williams said. "Farmers and growers violate the Federal statutes if they hire children under 16 to work during hours when local schools are in session."

The law does not prohibit boys and girls from working on farms before school hours, after school hours, on any school holiday, or during school vacation.

Different and more restrictive rules apply to children hired to work in packing sheds, Williams pointed out. Children under 11 may not work there at all. Older boys and girls may do a number of jobs including leveling, grading and packing.

Employment of 14 and 15 year olds in packing sheds is limited to three hours a day outside of school hours on any school day. It is further limited to a total of 18 hours in any school week with all work scheduled between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m.

When school is not in session the 14 and 15 year olds may work a maximum of eight hours in any day or 40 hours in any week, but only between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Williams also pointed out the Federal child-labor requirement that every farmer, grower or packer maintain a record of the date of birth for the minors whom he employ. He said that age certificates may be obtained from local school authorities.

Gov. Patterson Addresses State Legislature

Addressing the State Legislature this week, Gov. John Patterson hit hard for reappointment and also called for a expanded program of medical care for the aged.

The Legislature convened at noon Tuesday biennial session.

In his message, Gov. Patterson reported on progress and achievements of state departments in the last two years. "I believe the state government to be in excellent condition and moving forward, he said.

The governor praised the Legislature for many notable accomplishments in its 1959 sessions, singling out the increase in education appropriations, the $100 million school building program and the $60 million highway bond issue. This Legislature is one of the most outstanding in all our history, Gov. Patterson told the lawmakers.

Meeting twice each week, they will be in session for 36 legislative days.

In calling for reappointment, the governor urged approval of the proposed 40 senator, 120 representative bill. The continuous failure of the Legislature to reappoint itself now makes it possible for about 28 percent of the people to elect a majority of the Legislature, he said.

Recommending a stepped-up, medical care program, Gov. Patterson outlined plans to enlarge the present hospitalization program to include all elderly persons in need — whether or not they are on the old age pension rolls. A limited program for old age pensioners began April 1.

Gov. Patterson recommended that the Legislature: Tighten competitive bid laws to insulate contracts for public improvements, such as highway re-surfacing. Place state college under separate boards of education to slow attacks by race agitators seeking integration.

Push for development of a canal linking the Alabama river systems with the great Tennessee River. Approve any necessary legislation to increase the local support of education, asserting the state was shouldering too much of the burden. Authorize the investment of state surplus funds to earn interest. Earmark tax from gasoline bought for use in boats for the State Conservation Department's new water safety division.

EMENT Easterling, of Clanton, Moors, fame, has lost his voice something. Everything we see and speak to him for the past several days all he does is hold up his hand and whistle. We don't know what it means, but it sure seems to be a rest on his vocal chords.

R. J. D. Cox and family of the Chapel Community ask us to hand the many who have been and to considerate to them. They lost their home and their possessions in a fire on May night, three weeks ago. Should like to clarify that if you please; they lost their home and their possessions. Don't lose their home, for where the heart is and the hearts of many of neighbors have been with them in their misfortune.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ WHY THE BIG TREES WERE FELLED!

There has been some feelings on the part of some people in regard to the cutting of the trees in front of the new courthouse. I feel that the people of our county should know the truth about the problem.

We love trees and all natural beauty from the depth of our heart. The Chilton County Board of Revenue and Control and I have been concerned about saving the trees from the time the new building was started. We hoped that we might save some if not all of the trees.

We could not overlook the job that you the people of our county voted for us to do by a vote of nearly ten to one throughout the county. We hired, we thought, the best architect available to plan and build the best courthouse your tax money could buy. We are satisfied thus far. Much study and planning has gone into the new courthouse. We have been forced to rely upon the architect's judgement on many matters. The trees was one of those matters.

The architect along with their tree experts and the contractor decided that it would be impossible for them to build the kind of building on the size of lot we have and guarantee its protection and leave the trees.

The construction of proper curbs walks, landscaping and other structures connected with little building would be impossible and leave the trees on account of their nearness to the building, their age, their diseased and decayed condition.

Therefore, the board had to decide between the trees and the new building. We felt that you would not be satisfied with anything, but the best and most beautiful courthouse possible. We hope and pray that you will be satisfied with the planned landscaping of grass, shrubbery and the replacement of trees more suitable to the architectural designing of the new courthouse. Please continue to help us to continue to serve you and to carry out your wishes to the best of our ability.

Your friend,
J. C. White

Chilton County Hospital - Nursing Home Observes National Hospital Week

It is time again for one of the "Community Partnership Organizations" to join in a national celebration. This time it is the community service institution caring for the disabled of our county and nation. The Chilton County Hospital and Nursing Home.

The hospital and nursing home have enjoyed a "good" year and served its purpose well through serving the people of the community and others.

We at the hospital are glad to have served you and hope you will retain your good health that we might have helped to restore. We wish to welcome you again when and if our services are needed.

Goal Is Good Health—

Good health is a profound part of the increasingly higher standard of living we seek for all Americans. The furtherance of that goal is the primary concern of your hospital which provides the health giving services - both curative and preventive - which mean a healthier and longer life for every member of the community.

Better Acquainted—

This is National Hospital Week, a time set aside each year for the nation's hospitals and the communities they serve to become better acquainted. The theme of this year's observance is "Your Hospital - A Community Partnership." It was chosen to emphasize the reciprocal relationship that exists between the community and the hospital.

One Of Every Eight—

The most important service the hospital provides for its community is, of course, patient care. The magnitude of this service is emphasized when we know that one of every eight people will receive hospital care this year. Hospital admissions have continued to increase over the years because hospitals can do more for people than ever before.

New Weapons Fight Disease—

This has been a century of scientific miracles. It has brought the most amazing strides in health care ever concentrated in to such a brief period. Two decades have added to the life span. More babies are living, to grow up and more mothers and fathers live to nurture their children to maturity. Almost daily new weapons give new hope in the continuing attack on disease. We read of medical miracles today knowing that within a few years - perhaps even less - today's miracle will be tomorrow's routine procedure.

Heritage Of Health—

Our new heritage of health is reflected in the dedicated service found in hospitals. Services that were unheard of - even undreamed of - just a few decades ago are now being provided.

Highly developed tests carried out in the modern laboratory and x-ray departments shed light on the most obscure problems in diagnosis. Successful treatment is now being extended to many conditions once considered hopeless.

Skills Available To You—

None of us likes to think of our health taking even temporary leave of us and so it is not pleasant to contemplate entering a hospital. But it is comforting to know that the hospital's doors are always open in case of illness, injury, or the birth of a new baby. And to know that through those doors are dedicated people ready to apply their knowledge and skills to restore our health.

Trained Teams—

Your doctor's orders call many trained teams into action. The professional service teams provide the personalized care to nurture the patient back to health. The largest of these is the nursing team, but there are many others. There are the personnel who record the patient's care and progress; the ones who provide the x-ray and laboratory services; and those who provide the special services for surgery or the delivery of a baby.

Then there is the dietary team which supplies general and special diets to meet each patient's nutritional needs.

Service Personnel—

Still others work behind the scene in the hospital's general service departments. The housekeeping team helps the hospital guard against infections; the laundry workers provide a constant supply of safe and sterile linens; the engineering team maintains heat, light, and power, and keeps the complicated hospital equipment in constant readiness. Still others are concerned with the administration of the hospital, keeping the services running smoothly and guarding their quality.

Two-thirds of the hospital's annual expenditures goes to meet its payroll.

As consumers of goods and purveyors of services, hospitals rank among the largest.

The Rising Cost Of Care—

The hospital is concerned, just as you are, with the rising cost of health care. We are self-critical and are constantly searching for areas where greater efficiencies can be effected without lowering the standard of personalized patient care. Studies into operating procedures have resulted in such efficiencies as group purchasing of supplies, methods improvement, work simplification, technique, cost accounting, and labor saving devices. But hospital people know that they cannot expect the invention of a machine which will care for patients with the dedication and compassion of a nurse.

Services Cost Money—

Because people are so necessary to the hospital, we cannot expect the application of cost-saving techniques to produce a marked reduction in hospital costs. We are expected to hold costs down to the lowest possible level, and this is what we are trying to do. But a marked reduction in hospital costs of services which people provide. None of us wants that. In fact, we want more and better health services.

Understanding Helps—

As individuals, you can actively participate in the community partnership with your hospital by first having an understanding of its purpose and its goals. Become familiar and concerned about the health needs of your community and join others in planning for the provisions of a comprehensive health care program and use of the local facilities.

Prepayment Plan—

A way you can support your hospital is by being a member of a prepayment plan for medical care. Today, hospitals are financed largely by the payment of hospital bills through third party payors such as Blue Cross and commercial insurance companies. The prepayment principle provides an easy method of budgeting for hospital care and it also assures hospitals of a stable income for services provided.

Today 17 million people prepay their hospital care through Blue Cross; another 65 million prepay at least part of their care through the 900 commercial companies in the health insurance field.

If you are a member of a prepayment plan, you have a partnership with your hospital whether you utilize its services or not, because you are helping to assure the hospital of the sound financing and stable income it requires to maintain services.

Must Serve Everyone—

The hospital does not treat only those patients who are able to pay for their care. As institutions serving the public, we must provide care for anyone who needs it - whether they can pay or not. A way you can support your hospital is by supporting legislation programs for obtaining adequate reimbursement to hospitals for the care of welfare patients. Government agencies often reimburse hospitals far less than the actual cost of the care of a needy patient. The hospital must make up the difference.

Stable Income Necessary—

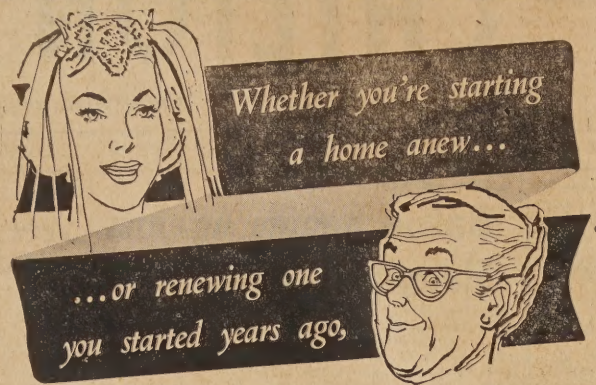

Only by being assured of a stable income for services provided, can hospitals look confidently ahead to their growing responsibilities and meet the challenges of providing health care for a growing and a changing population.

Welcome At All Times—
This year we at Chilton County Hospital and Nursing Home have not seen fit to have Open House for this occasion this year. For our doors are always open and each of you have an ever lasting invitation to visit us and see our hospital in operation.

SUNDAY is Mother's Day and I'd like to suggest a wonderful way to surprise her. Give her a pretty new Princess phone for her bedroom, a gift that'll delight her every day in the year. The Princess is little and it's lovely. It even has a dial that glows and lights up brightly when she dials at night. You may choose her Princess from five soft colors—blue, turquoise, pink, white or beige. Better call us today and order this ideal gift.

SECONDS FOR SURVIVAL—I've often mentioned the Bell System's role in our nation's defense. Well, a mighty interesting new sound-and-color film, "Seconds for Survival," is available for showings. Narrated by Raymond Massey, it describes our nation's continental defense system and shows how flexible, reliable communications provided by telephone companies make it all possible. Chilton County Training School Expresses Thanks

We, the students, members of the faculty, and P-T-A Organization of the Chilton County Training School wish to express our sincere appreciations for your continued help in the development of our school. Many Thanks. We only wish it were possible for us to thank each one of you individually but we know that this is an impossibility.

May we take this opportunity also to invite you to visit our campus and see what uses have been made of your very liberal donations. We have tried to use all resources economically as humanly possible. We feel that by and large, we have been very successful. We have not ridden ourselves of all the needs at the Chilton County Training School but each year we are moving in the direction of supplying more and more needs.

The citizens of the commonwealth of Chilton County have sought to help us at the Training School which always gives a community courage, vigor and the willingness to expand.

We shall not attempt to name all the things that have been done at the Training School this year. We are hopeful that before or during our commencement exercises you will have an opportunity to see some dreams ... a living reality.

We have improved our curriculum greatly during the past year and we believe you (the people) should know about some of these improvements. Class scheduling and the individual student schedule plus student placement have been major factors taken into account this school year. During this period, we have been able to work more with test results which will in most cases help our girls and boys in the preparation for their life's work.

We ask of you your continued support and the Chilton County Training will become second to no school approved by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary or any other agency.

The climate couldn't be better for buying a new JET-SMOOTH CHEVROLET

(and that's the car more people are buying!)

The wish-I-had-a-Chevy season's here! Summer's in sight. Horizons are brightening. Vacation plans are percolating. It's the most rewarding time of the year to stop by and talk buy with your Chevrolet dealer. ■ And why not do more than just talk? Take a Jet-smooth Chevy out on the road. That wonderfully gentle ride you'll feel is what we're so proud of (Full Coil suspension and a chassisful of other road tamers are responsible). Inspect the advantages of the finely built Body by Fisher (none can match it in Chevrolet's field). Look over the full selection of models and compare the prices (18 Six and V8 Jet-smooth Chevies are priced below comparable competitive models*). ■ So now you know why more people are buying Chevies than any other make. Just one other thing—check the sweet trade-in allowance your Chevrolet dealer can offer you now. See how easy it is to blossom out in a new Chevrolet!

*Based on a comparison of manufacturers' suggested retail prices (including Federal tax) for models with 110-inch wheelbase or above.

Feed Program Signup Begins

The signup of farmers in the 1961 feed grain program is now well under way in Chilton County, according to word from Eddie Owen, Chairman, County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. The program provides payments to corn and grain sorghum producers who divert a portion of the acreage formerly planted to these crops to an approved conservation use.

The average county rate is $17.10 per acre for reducing such acreage a minimum of 20 percent below the base 1959-60 average. Individual farm rates may be higher or lower, depending on the farm's productivity in relation to the county average. A higher rate will apply for reducing corn and grain sorghum acreage from 20 to 40 percent below the base.

Corn and grain sorghum producers must cooperate in the 1961 feed grain program in order to be eligible for price support on the normal production of this year's corn and grain sorghum acreage, as well as for support on any of their other 1961 feed crops - barley, oats, and rye.

Acreage diverted under the feed grain program must be put to an approved conservation use, and it must represent an additional amount over the farm's average acreage devoted to a conservation use in 1959 and 1960. Where applications are made in advance and program funds are still available, farmers may receive ACP cost-share assistance in installing the conservation use practice on the land.

Corn and grain sorghum producers who are interested in taking part in the feed grain program are urged to get in touch with the County ASC Office right away.

Federal Controls Affect Us All

THE Federal Government, including the Congress, of the United States of America has about as little faith in the ability of American to act sensibly in business or anything else as does a dog trust another with his prize bone.

The Federal Government has for a long time increased its control of some phases of our private economy until it is ridiculously choking the very life out of certain businesses.

Why does the Federal Government set itself up to be the high and mighty potentate that it has in some instances and give the very profound impression that nobody can run their own business quite as efficiently as the Government can? That is certainly a bunch of misguided action! We've never seen a function of the Federal Government messing into private enterprise yet, that had the slightest bit of efficiency anywhere about it.

The Government putting controls on what a business can charge for its products or services is not free enterprise or free anything! We most assuredly believe in agencies which control the actions of businesses when they are pursuing illegal or harmful practices which are detrimental to our national safety and security. The proportion of this control has grown all out of reason. They tell the railroads what they can charge for freight and what the farmer can do with his planting acreage. They have tried to completely overthrow the domain of States Rights and have forced situations on the American people which the people did not like and in which no improvement whatsoever, could be seen.

We firmly believe that the Federal Government should go out of the business of trying to force controls on every commodity, service and product and set about to running the staggering volume of business required to protect and expand the interests of the American people. The "servant" which is supposed to be the Federal Government, has turned into the "master" and it is ruthless in its demands and actions against, rather than for the best interests of the people.

When we, the creators of this new "master" realize what we have been creating all this time through our apathetic "What can I do about it?" stand; we will take steps to revise and improve on the way we do things and the way things are done to us!

Opposition To Pubic Parks

WE have not had the questionable privilege of speaking with the petition-bearing leaders of the opposition to the public parks program for Chilton County on the Coosa River, but suffice it to say it would be indeed interesting to know their reasons.

If the major or the only reason for the opinion against this proposal is that the parks will decrease the privacy of the river, we can see nothing there but selfish smallness on the part of those against it.

Public parks on the Coosa River have been needed and should have been available years ago. That is a fact! We don't know all the extenuating circumstances to lead to all the bickering on them after, but we do detect selfishness on the part of someone, somewhere. If this is the case, they deserve to lose!

Parking Problem Versus Traffic Congestion

IF we did not have the most high regard for our Mayor of Clanton and the City Council, we would wonder even more at the efficiency and logic of the new traffic lanes through the center of town. The officials have been buffeted for some time by merchants in Clanton to give them parking space on the east side of Highway 31 or 7th Street.

The Mayor and Council, after much deliberation and concern, decided that after the new Interstate highway was completed that there would be a great decrease in the traffic through Clanton, especially the large transfer trucks.

This being the case, it was decided that parking could again be permitted on the east side of the highway.

After the most recent design for the easy flow of traffic was set up, traffic congestion was cut to a minimum on the highway. We had two traveling lanes, one turning lane at corners and a parking lane on one side of the street. Under the new setup we will have two driving lanes, two parking lanes, and a passing or turn lane!

The problem is obvious! We will be using five

One hundred years ago this week, May 7-13, 1861, the Confederate government in Montgomery was re-joining over news that two more states-Tennessee and Arkansas, had taken steps, on May 6 and 7, to secede from the Union and join the Confederacy.

On May 7, 1861, the correspondent of the London Times wrote from Montgomery: The guns in front of the State Department are firing a salute, and each report marks a state of the Confederacy. They are the guns of Arkansas and Tennessee are now out of the Union. (Tennessee's secession did not really become official until June 8, when the Tennessee legislature's action was approved by a vote of the people.)

This same week, May 7-13, 1861, the Confederate Congress in Montgomery voted on proposals to move the capital to Virginia.

On May 10, 1861, a newly arrived delegate from Virginia to the Confederate Congress presented a resolution inviting the Confederate government to move to Richmond or some other place in Virginia.

The following day, May 11, 1861, the Confederate Congress voted to move Congress but not the executive office of government to Richmond. This action was vetoed May 17 by President Jefferson Davis on grounds that it would be inefficient to have the different branches of government in different places.

Alabama's First Capitol Being Restored

The Cahaba Advisory Committee, composed of two members from each county in the State, were guests of the Cahaba Historical Commission, Dallas County, the City of Selma and the Dallas County Chamber of Commerce, at the Selma Country Club, Selma, Alabama, at a luncheon, Saturday, April 29th, at 12 noon.

Historically minded this group had what appeared to be a substantial foundation for Restoration of the once thriving vibrant city. A very enthusiastic group representing the stretch of the State from the Tennessee border to the Gulf Coast, suggested that strong pressure will be applied to the next session of the legislature for funds for Cahaba's Restoration.

Chilton County Commerce President Earl Goodwin presided over the luncheon meeting and introduced the speakers and special guests which included Probate Judge Bernard Reynolds, Mayor Chris Heinz, Sen. W. C. Givhan, Dallas County, Rep. Ralph Jones, Monroe County, State Highway Department Director Sam Engelhardt and his assistant Walter Craig, J. N. Helms, recently elected President of the Alabama Historical Association, Jack Miles, Chamber of Commerce Manager, Sen. Robert Kendall, Jr., Evergreen, Ala., a member of the Senate Finance Committee. The Rev. T. B. Elliott, and Caldwell Delaney of Mobile, Ala., renowned author-photographer of historical subjects. Peter A. Brannon, Director of Dept. of Archives and History, Montgomery, Arthur Capell, The Selma Times Journal, C. M. Stanley, Editor of the Alabama Journal, A Birmingham News representative, a lady, sorry I did not have her name and Dr. Sen Kirkpatrick, Selma whose family resided in Cahaba until about 1935. (Dr. Kirkpatrick's grandfather purchased land at Cahaba in a tax sale a short time after the Civil War and that family was among the last to leave the former capitol which now is ruins and ruins.)

As stated by Senator Walter C. Givhan of Dallas County, Alabama "Don't look at this project as one for Dallas County alone, but as one for the entire State. Alabama is one of only three States which hasn't restored its Original Capitol lanes confined to the same space in which we were using four.

For progress' sake, we think the traffic lanes were marked very effectively and the flow of traffic was at a maximum compared to what it will now be.

There is not room for two way parking on the street, unless the three lanes in the center are cut down to two wider lanes. This could slow up traffic at corners due to those cars turning in either direction.

Our parking space is a problem! This new development will add only some 20 parking spaces to what we now have. Is the parking space worth the traffic congestion?

Report from Washington

BY
ARMISTEAD SELDEN
Congressman, Sixth District

It was my privilege to be one of 14 members of Congress who were present at Cape Canaveral last Site. We are attempting to rebuild a Capitol of the Confederacy for you and every area of Alabama."

Peter A. Brannon, Director, Department of Archives and History of Montgomery "Cahaba" is the most outstanding of all monuments of Alabama, I think. This project to restore it is most commendable. Our Department is at your command and will do everything it can to encourage the project.

J. N. Helms - "Cahaba" today is neglected, has gone downhill and should have run rampant there for the past few months. We have lots to do and we don't have long to do it. If we don't move fast there won't be much left to restore.

State Highway Dept., Director, Sam Engelhardt "I'm for the bill and have been since it was first introduced in 1957 by Sen. Walter C. Givhan."

Sen. Robert Kendall, Jr., "Cahaba is a worthwhile project. No doubt such a restoration would create a prime tourist attraction and would fit into the pattern of attractions which Alabama MUST OFFER before it can attract the national tourist trade. The restoration is desired far beyond its commercial aspects."

Following the luncheon, the visitors boarded four chartered buses for a tour of Cahaba narrated over a loudspeaker by Jack Miles. At the cemetery the visitors walked through the cemetery and viewed the historic tombstones and grave markers. The need for an immediate program to restore "Cahaba" while there is still something to preserve and restore is now.

After the visit to Cahaba, a number of the guests stopped at Sturdivant Hall for refreshments and to view the restoration in progress there.

Attending the luncheon at the Selma Country Club and members of the Advisory Committee from Chilton County were Mrs. Louise Carmichael of Verbena, Alabama and Miss Ruth Hicks of Stanton, Alabama. Attending with them Mrs. Cecil W. Ellis, Millbrook as guest.

If at all possible every person in our County should make a visit to Cahaba. It is well worth the time and effort. It is a visit that you will never forget.

Friday and witnessed America's first manned space flight. To see first-hand this historical event was a thrilling experience.

Wage Base Enacted

Prior to the adjournment of the House for the week end, four important measures were acted on. These included the compromise versions of the minimum wage and judgeships bills, plus the highway and water pollution control measures.

House members voted, 230 to 196, to approve a compromise version of the minimum wage legislation. The bill was then sent to the President who signed it into law at the end of the week.

The bill that was supported by the administration and by a majority of the Senate. However, the final form of the legislation is quite different from the version passed by the House in March. The original House bill provided for increasing the hourly wage minimum to $1.15 and extending coverage under the law to approximately 12 million employees. The new law approved last week raises the minimum to $1.25 over a two-year period and broadens coverage to include about 36 million additional workers, most of them in retail establishments.

Like the House bill, however, the measure excludes from coverage most employees of laundries, automobile and farm implement dealers, dry cleaners, theatres, hotels and others, and establishments that have less than $250,000 in annual sales.

73 New Judges

Action was also completed last week on the compromise bill creating 73 new federal judgeships across the country. The bill first passed by the House provided for 70 additional judges, while the Senate had endorsed 73. There were other minor differences between the two bills, but the compromise version of the legislation received overwhelming approval in both chambers. President Kennedy is expected to sign the measure into law.

Pollution Control

A water pollution control bill, similar to one vetoed by President Eisenhower last year, won House approval last Wednesday and is expected to be passed also by the Senate. The bill doubles the $500 million in federal funds now authorized to help municipalities build sewage treatment plants and finance anti-pollution measures.

Interstate Roads Funds

House passage of the Administration's highway bill came last Thursday following a warning by President Kennedy that the program in peril and could be delayed five years unless construction is accelerated.

As approved by the House and sent to the Senate, the bill authorizes $11 billion to complete the 41,004-mile interstate system in 1972. More than 10,000 miles are already open to traffic.

To finance the highway building program, the bill calls for increas-

ALABAMA POLITICS THIS WEEK ON CAPITOL HILL

Carl Goggins

The 1961 legislative Session got off to its expected slow start last week. Bibb Rep. Virgil Ashworth, a writer here previously, easily won the House Speaker's election over Morgan Rep. Al Brewer, 42-22. Governor John Patterson's State of State message was affirmative and well received. A surprisingly large number of bills were introduced in both Houses the first day.

Gov. John's surprises were termed as his stand on education and the requesting of a Constitutional Convention resolution in the event Reapportionment measure is not passed. There appears no question the education people are probably still recovering from the shock of his appropriations cut; and that the Convention idea just might not get off the ground. Here's why:

The thinking of many legislators is that unless a reapportionment measure can muster up a three-fifths vote in both Houses, there is a Convention resolution won't pass. Some lawmakers feel there are some colleagues who would vote for reapportionment but wouldn't vote to hold a Convention.

Probably the main reason this resolution would draw fire is that many House-Senate members regard a Convention can't be limited just to reapportionment, that other governmental doors would swing open during a Convention.

What the outlook for the summer? Indications are sparks won't really begin to fly for two or three more weeks, that appropriations bills will probably be considered first and that even these may be used as political weapons. Of course, those interested in a great deal of political trading will be going on for future bills.

Suddenly one day something will pop up to set off the expected legislative fights. And that certain something could be reapportionment, redistricting, Bankers, Investment, Loan and Quickie Divorces and Prison Reform bills.

From the talk on the Hill, the expected redistricting battle is potentially the one problem which could cause the most hard feelings among the legislators because of personalities. Another important thing discussed occasionally is that redistricting, if it does flare to a white heat, could politically destroy the entire legislature, especially those whose interests in making a statewide race in 1962.

Two redistricting measures have already been presented for consideration. One plan would place Rep. Kenneth Roberts in the same district with Albert Rains, another would have Reps. George Grant and George Andrews in the same district while another being talked and would require all the Congressmen to run at-large. Before the summer is out many other proposals are expected on this issue.

The most discussed bills now are the Roberts-Rains and Andrews-Grant combinations. There is strong feeling the latter plan was merely a hurried up scheme in order to allow Roberts's forces to rally behind a line of defense.

The legislative delegation from Roberts fourth district, except Dallas County, have pledged to fight to the finish to preserve their Congressman's area. A lengthy political war is presumed with the Roberts delegation apparently hoping for a dramatic outcome.

So far talk has it a number of north Alabama legislators will stand by Roberts early in the fight but that as the skirmish nears the final hours the number may decrease because as Barbour Sen. James Clark and others put it: "When the issue really gets hot, especially during the late days, the legislators will probably only as concerned with their constituents back home as with the fight."

The theory redistricting problem in a number of instances, is reluctantly being met by lawmakers here. Most of them express the opinion there will be a deliberate slowdown on this matter that they didn't create this situation of the state leaving to lose a Congressman, and wished they didn't have to act on it.

On reapportionment, look for the Black Belt to be girded for a long battle against it. Members of both Houses are currently saying: There will be no reapportionment this time. It may come in the future, but not now. However, everyone here is quick to realize the need of new apportionment-Belted Belters included.

Yes, the legislators here are off and running, again all right-but the political track looks like it might be pretty slow!

RAYS OF HOPE

By Virginia H. Stover

"Sad soul take comfort, nor forget The sunshine never failed us yet."

There is great comfort in the thought that regardless of how dark the night has been, we have the promise of the sunrise and another day. Another chance to finish the tasks we have begun and another chance to correct the mistakes we have made. This shall not always be so.

A true statement has been said, "I shall not pass this way again." We have only one life one great opportunity to live it to the fullest to do our best for God, our family and our country.

It isn't the outstanding people who keep things moving on this great earth but it is the good lives of the ordinary people, going about as God would have them do, and accomplish what they can in the best way they can.

Henry Ward Beecher gave us some good advice when he said: "No matter what looms ahead, if you can eat today, enjoy the sunlight today, miss good cheer and friends today, enjoy it. Bless God for it. Do not look back on happiness or dream of it in the future. You are only sure of today, do not let yourself be cheated of it, do not be those who survive, above all things else, to bring sunshine and happiness into the lives of others."

We never lose anything by heeding this advice for seldom have we brought happiness to another that we weren't happier ourselves.

Look, ye blind, that ye may see—Isiah 42:18.

We behold God's creative touch in the marvelous works of man, in the varied personalities of each person, and in the color, form and lavishness of nature.

Students From Isabella Make Tour Of Clanton

Thursday, April 27, nineteen girls from Vermont school made a trip to Clanton. First we went to the radio station and the Little Brown Church in Clanton. Then we went to the home of Mrs. Love Me, and then we went to the bus. Mr. Love Me drove us. The first stop was at the Dairy. Mrs. Wells bought us all ice cream. We walked to the water. Our guide, Mr. Blalock, where the water was. Some were afraid. We went to the Laundry. There was Mr. Thompson. We showed us where the steam was and all through the laundry. When we started to go, we each of us a box of tissues. We gave our fathers and a paper shaker to give to mothers and a sucker and a key. We went to the Post Office and around, our guide at the Post Office was Mr. Sutley. After we left the post office, we went to Mr. LeCroy's office. Our guide at the telephone office was Mr. Jones. After we left the telephone office, we went to the bus and eat lunch. Then we went to the home of Mrs. Johnson. We bought some toys. We went back to school. On way back we told Mrs. Johnson. We went to the Wholesale House where we got our pencils and paper, and groceries. We went to the Bell Telephone office. We came back to the bus and eat our lunch, then went to the home of Mrs. Johnson.

The Vocational Agricultural Class III of Isabella High School is studying and evaluating a chapter this week from a publication to be released by a group of Paper Companies in Alabama. The name of the publication is "Farm Forestry Facts for Vocational Agricultural Students." Curtis Smith, Isabella Vo-Ag teacher was one of 15 teachers selected last summer to attend the State Forestry Camp to work on this publication. The paper companies prepared the material and then sent it to the 15 agricultural teachers to teach one chapter and then give suggestions for changes.

The members of the Ag III class are, Billy Joe Mims, Floyd Collins, Billy Ray Burroughs, Ralph Cox, Nellie Maudlin, Glenn Smith, Edgar Fulmer, Bobby Roseberry, Ronnie Plagman and Darrell Stroud.

On Thursday, April 27, nineteen boys and girls from Vermont school made a trip to Clanton. We went on a bus that was driven by Mr. Hayes.

We sang two songs at the radio station.

We all got ice cream at the Dairy-Delite.

We went to the water plant and saw all the water.

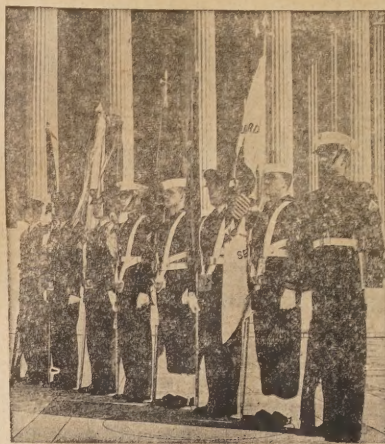

We went to the Laundry and saw how they iron the clothes and dry them.

We went to the post office, Mr. Sutley showed us how to put a stamp on a letter and how the people put the mail in the Post Office.

We went to the Wholesale House where we got our pencils and paper, and groceries.

Ceremonial color guard of the Armed Forces, made up of enlisted personnel from the Army, Marine Corps, Navy, Air Force, and Coast Guard, is typical of those which will be seen throughout the United States and overseas in ceremonies in observance of the twelfth annual ARMED FORCES DAY, May 20, 1961.

Housing Loans Stimulate Economy

Farm housing loans serve the dual purpose of providing better homes and stimulating the local economy. Farmers Home Administration county supervisor, Isaac C. Byrd, pointed out this week.

The loans are made to farm owners for building and repairing farm homes and other farm service buildings, and are repayable over periods of 33 years at 4 percent interest.

Home, and other buildings constructed with the loans provide work for electricians, carpenters and others. The purchase of building materials increases local trade.

We played on the slides and swings. We went by the High School. We went to see Mr. LeCroy's office and a woman showed us a picture of his wife and two other pictures.

We went to Elmore's and bought some toys and things. We came back to the bus and started back to school, and on our way back we stopped at Mrs. Johnson's house and said, Hello to her. She is our principal. She was sick. We got back to school and showed the others that did not go the things that we bought at Elmore's.

MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE AND CONTROL OF CHILTON COUNTY, ALABAMA

MAY 2, 1961

The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Ala., met in recessed meeting at the call of the Chairman, at the County Courthouse at Clanton, Alabama, on May 2, 1961, at 11:00 A.M. The following Associate Members were present: Sherman Motley, Edmon Champion, Acie Mims, A. D. Hendley, and J. C. White, Judge of Probate and Chairman of said Board. Judge White presided as Chairman of the meeting and a quorum being present, declared the meeting open for the transaction of business.

Mr. Mims offered the following resolution for adoption which was duly seconded by Mr. Motley: BE IT RESOLVED: That the reading of the minutes of Board meeting held on April 24, 1961, be dispensed of until next regular Board meeting.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all members present and the Chairman declared same duly adopted.

Mr. Motley offered the following preamble and resolution for adoption which were duly seconded by Mr. Champion:

WHEREAS, On February 16, 1960, a county wide election was held for the purpose of determining the wishes of the voters of the county on the question of a new courthouse and its location, and WHEREAS, In said election 1843 votes were cast in favor of a new courthouse and 239 voted against it, and 966 voted for it to be built body on Saturdays. Other members have been doing odd jobs around the area with all earnings given to the trip.

The boys have almost reached their goal, with a week left to make the rest of the money. They left on Friday, May 5 and returned Sunday, May 7. They stayed in Panama City. Mr. Claude Mims, the vo-ag advisor traveled with the boys.

Verbena FFA Sells Auto Wax To Finance Florida Excursion

During the past month the Verbena High School FFA and vo-ag boys have been making a tremendous effort to raise enough money for a vacation trip to Florida.

To get the money for the trip the FFA and vo-ag boys have been selling auto wax and waxing cars during after school hours. Some of the members built a wagon on the present location while 788 voted in favor of the adjoining city park location, and WHEREAS, From the beginning it was the unanimous desire and intent of the members of the Board to save all the shade trees adjacent to building location if humanly possible, and

WHEREAS, Various conferences were held with the architect, building contractors and specialists in an effort to determine what could and what should be done about the trees, and

WHEREAS, It was the unanimous opinion of all parties contacted that the trees were diseased and decayed to the extent that it would not be safe, feasible nor practicable to leave them standing to endanger the lives of innocent persons and property due to the possibility of falling limbs and the leaves giving off tannic acid which would have discolored the face of the new courthouse, and

WHEREAS, The building of new sidewalks, curbs and gutters, landscaping in keeping with the architectural designs of the new courthouse would all be next to impossible if the old trees were allowed to stand and

WHEREAS, It is the unanimous judgment and opinion of the Board that it is necessary and expedient for the county and all concerned to have the trees adjacent to the new courthouse building site removed.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the trees adjacent to the new courthouse building site be removed and J. C. White, Chairman of this Board, is hereby empowered, authorized and directed to take any and all action necessary for the removal of said trees at a minimum cost to the county.

The above stated preamble and resolution were adopted by a unanimous vote of all members present and the Chairman declared same duly adopted.

Mr. Motley offered the following resolution for adoption which was duly seconded by Mr. Mims:

BE IT RESOLVED: That there being no further business to come before the Board that said meeting recess until next meeting.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all members present and the Chairman declared same duly adopted.

I, Robert L. Fuller, Clerk of the Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, hereby certify that the foregoing minutes of the proceedings of said Board meeting held May 2, 1961, were entered and recorded in this minute book, reproduced and a sufficient number of copies of same were filed in the office of the Probate Judge, a copy of same was posted in a conspicuous place in the courthouse on the 4th day of May, 1961, and a copy of same was furnished to the Chilton County News, a newspaper published in Chilton County for publication.

BULLETIN:

Chemical "policeman" in today's Super Shell guards against gum-fouled carburetors —to give your car top performance

One special ingredient among the nine in today's Super Shell gasoline is a gum preventive.

Like a policeman dealing with a mob, it works to keep unstable elements from clotting together. Hence no gum problem. Result: top performance.

IMAGINE an ingredient so effective that only one thousandth of an ounce is enough to treat a gallon of gasoline.

This tiny drop is all today's Super Shell needs to stave off gum troubles that can hamper your car's performance.

Gum forms when even the purest gasoline is held in storage. Unstable elements in the fuel combine chemically with oxygen and with each other. The latter is what scientists call polymerization (a good thing if you want to make plastics, but not if you want top performance from your gasoline).

Shell tackles the situation with a special inhibitor that is designed to keep gum from forming.

Where the trouble strikes

Gum usually ends up on sensitive carburetor parts, where it can foul the automatic choke and raise hobs with a car's air-fuel mixture.

Too rich a mixture can waste gallons of gasoline. Too weak a mixture can burn valves. Either way, gum troubles cost money.

In extreme cases, gum can even stick your intake valves. This means a rough and noisy engine—lost power—and perhaps an expensive repair job.

To say that Super Shell's chemical "policeman" protects your pocketbook is an understatement.

How the "policeman" works

Shell's special anti-gum ingredient is an oxidation inhibitor. It helps keep unstable elements in the gasoline from sticking together—just the way a skilled policeman prevents trouble by keeping a crowd from forming.

As a result, your engine is cleaner—for maximum power, maximum mileage. All of which adds up to top performance.

This is just one of the special jobs done by the 9 ingredients in Super Shell to give your car top performance. You owe it to your car to learn what each of the others can do for you, too.

#2 is TCP for power, mileage and longer plug-life

Today's Super Shell now contains an even better version of this famous additive. Its name is cresyl-diphenyl-phosphate.

TCP® additive can give your car up to 15 per cent more power, up to 17 extra miles per tankful, and can make spark plugs last up to twice as long.

New TCP does this by neutralizing certain effects of combustion deposits. It is scientifically formulated to keep them from glowing when hot—a major cause of power loss. Also from diverting your spark—a major cause of "missing."

#3 is "cat-cracked" gasoline for power with a purr

This is petroleum that has actually cracked under 900-degree heat and catalytic action. Its heavier molecules have been shattered into lighter ones.

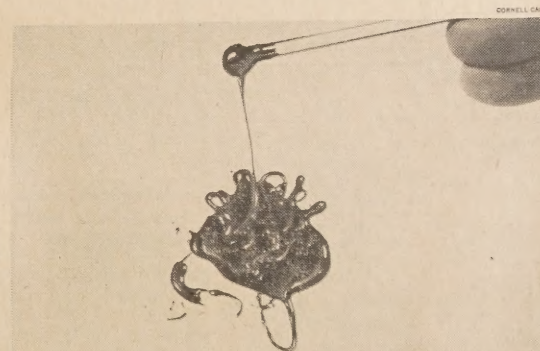

The result is a super-octane ingredient that makes your engine purr with power the moment you put your foot down.

Shell's Doodlie, pioneer

#4 is Alkylate, noted for knock control in hot engines

Jimmy Doodlie helped pioneer

You can forget this ugly picture if you fill your tank with today's Super Shell. It shows the gum that could form in your fuel system if you didn't use a gasoline with an efficient gum preventive.

this high-octane ingredient for Shell aviation fuel.

Alkylate—which took the dream of 100-octane gasoline out of the lab and put it into the skies—is now in Super Shell. It controls knocking in hot engines at high speeds far better than anything else yet available.

NOTE: Speaking of controlling knocks at high speeds, remember that car engines frequently turn even faster than the engines of a DC-7. Think of this next time you pass another car.

#5 is anti-knock mix for extra resistance to knocks

You might think that two high-octane ingredients are enough for knock-free performance. But Shell's scientists have ears like musicians.

They insist on adding a special anti-knock mix. A mix, so effective, one teaspoon per gallon can boost anti-knock rating by five points.

This mix has the tricky job of regulating combustion so that Super Shell gives each piston a firm, even push—rather than a sharp blow which would cause a knock.

#6 is Butane for quick starts on cold mornings

Butane is so eager to get going that Shell keeps it under pressure 400 feet below ground to stop it from vaporizing by itself.

Think what this extra volatility means in cold weather.

Your engine fires in seconds. There is less strain on your battery. And none on your patience.

NOTE: Super Shell is primed with Butane all year. In winter, Shell scientists just increase the dose.

#7 is Pentane mix for fast warm-ups on cold days

Pentanes are made by tearing gasoline apart, much as you split kindling to start a log fire.

In this case, the "logs" are petroleum's heavier hydrocarbons. A special process transforms their molecules from slow-burning "logs" into the quicker-firing "kindling."

NET RESULT: Fast warm-up and top performance in a hurry.

#8 is an "anti-icer" to check cold-weather stalling

Super Shell's formula is adjusted up to eight times a year to beat the weather. For example, whenever the temperature is likely to be less than forty-five degrees, a carburetor anti-icer is added.

Why add anti-icer at forty-five degrees? Because, even then, frost can form in your carburetor just as it does in your refrigerator. It can stall your engine.

#9 is Platformate for extra energy, more mileage

It takes eight million dollars worth of platinum catalyst for Shell to produce Platformate. But fortunately this precious stuff can be used over and over again.

The platinum re-forming process, which gives Platformate its odd name, converts petroleum into super-energy components—such as benzene, xylene and toluene.

These three alone release 11 per cent more energy per gallon than 100-octane aviation gasoline. This is energy that shows up as extra mileage.

Test Super Shell for yourself

Try Super Shell next time you fill up. You'll soon feel and hear a difference in the way your engine runs. That difference is top performance.

Clay has been destined to become a big league pitcher ever since he was born. He played on Clanton's little league teams before they were organized as they are now. Back then they chose up teams and called themselves the "blues, reds and greens. After little league Clay played on the local Babe Ruth Pony League and American Legion teams.
Clay was not only a good pitcher but lead his team to victor many times with his big bat. This will make Clay's eleventh year in organized ball. That's quiet a number of years for a boy that is only 19 years old.

Last year Clay pitched for the local High School team. He pitched 27 2-3 scoreless innings. He was picked to go to Birmingham to play in the big East-West game
there.

On May 7, last year Clay did what most pitchers live a life time without ever accomplishing. He pitched a perfect game against the Jemison Panthers. He gave up no runs, no hits no errors and no one reached first base during the entire game.

I know we here in Clanton and in Alabama will be pulling for Clay and wishing him the best of luck in the world with his baseball career.

Battle Begins Against Slaughter On Highways

ed the Conference."
Barrett C. Shelton, Jr., managing Editor of the Decatur Daily explained the program as a simple three point attack on the accident problems as follows:

1. Newspapers are to inform the motoring public that, in addition to risk of life and property, violations of traffic laws will result in arrest to violators.

2. Law Enforcement Officers will strictly enforce the traffic laws and arrest violators.

3. Newspapers, using reports which will be prepared every 24 hours by the Department of Public Safety and turned over to them for use. The Associated Press and the 17 daily newspapers in the State are sponsoring this program and will run daily figures on the number of arrest, accidents, personal injuries and traffic fatalities.

Director Mann says the 17 Highway Patrol Posts will tabulate the accident facts daily on a post area basis which will include the municipalities, the Sheriff's office and the activities of the Highway Patrol in the area. The 17 post reports will be combined each morning in Montgomery and turned over to the Associated Press not later than 7:00 a.m.

Mr. Mann pointed out that this information will be available at the post level to all media of the press.
He stated that it was his desire that county newspapers and radio and television stations or any other news media may use these facts and help reduce the slaughter on our highways during this all out campaign to reduce traffic mishaps and save lives.

The Director concluded that surely with the impact of a program built on a spirit of cooperation between law enforcement officers, all media of the press, radio and television stations and the sincere desire of a majority of the citizens of the state to see a substantial reduction in traffic deaths and that many accidents will be avoided and a num-

Chamber Seeks Tourist Trade

Primarily to Aid Chilton Farmers

MISS Delores Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Van Edwards, Jr., of Clanton celebrated her 15th birthday on May 9th with a skating party for her friends, classmates and cousins. They all enjoyed the affair and had all the trimmings including cake and what not at the local skating rink. Delores is a student at Chilton County High and she just wanted to say thanks to all for making the party a success!

WHERE can you find a complete list of the graduating classes of Chilton County so handy accessible and ready to clip and save? In the CCN this week? No! Here! Thanks to the Banks of Chilton County for helping to make his service possible. They are very much interested in the future of our young folks who are graduating from high school this year. And while we've got the chance - congratulations Seniors for your noble accomplishment!

FOR the fortieth year, this past Mother's Day, Mrs. Mamie C. Smith, now 85 years young, received flowers from Mrs. Frank J. Callen of Clanton. They are not related. Mrs. Smith received a bonus this Mother's Day in the form of a new great granddaughter, born last week to Mr. and Mrs. Flem Higgins, Jr. of Birmingham. This newest addition makes a total of 25 great grandchildren for Mrs. Mamie C. and she's mighty proud of the lot of them. She's got something to celebrate just about every day in the year. S'matter of fact, we all have. If we just take a look!

A concerted effort is presently being made to keep valuable tourist trade on U. S. 31. The Chilton County Chamber of Commerce, the Cities of Clanton, Thorsby, Jewison and the Chilton Co. Board of Revenue and Control have entered into a pact and agreement to erect tourist attractions signs on the new Interstate Highway 65 at points south of Clanton and north of Cahaba to encourage transient tourist to take U. S. 31 through Chilton County and South Shelby. The two planned signs will measure 12 by 50 feet and be lighted automatically. Total cost of construction and maintenance for three years is estimated at $4,000.00. A committee representing the various groups will meet at the Chilton Court House Monday night at 7:00 p.m. to approve final plans for the sign and inspect artists drawings. All persons who have business establishments on U. S. 31 are invited to attend and offer constructive suggestions. Tuesday, the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce's Board of directors met and appropriated $600.00 toward the project. Transient tourist traffic on U. S. 31 is a valuable outlet for local fruit and vegetables as well as a source of trade for business establishments. It is hoped that the new signs will relieve us of fast commercial carrier traffic, but preserve much of the valuable tourist trade.

WE feel like the situation is pretty bad, and getting worse, when we read somewhere; "If the Government would allow us..." We have too many of the wrong type of men in Government when we start having to get permission to do literally everything; and that's about the size of it at present!

DON'T become a "fatal statistic"; do away with all those winter medications in the medicine cabinet. They could cause trouble!

Air-Conditioned Post Offices

(As Published In The American Press, Issue Of April 1961)

"Plan to build a new air-conditioned post office in Garden City, Kansas..."

"Plans to build a new post office in Carlisle, Pennsylvania..."

"Plans to build a new air-conditioned post office in Sherman, Texas..."

Those were the opening lines (the part you may have read before throwing them in the scrapbasket) to the releases sent to all publishers in the United States on one day-March 22-by the Post Office Department. They are typical, as every publisher knows who bothers to open such mail, of releases which are sent out almost every day of the year.

The Post Office Department, in case you haven't heard, is that poverty-stricken government agency which is supposed to be making a desperate effort to try to fight its way out of an $831,000,000 annual deficit.

As we read about the need for mammoth postage increases one day and the building program the next, we get confused. Maybe we just don't understand "the new way." Perhaps the answer, when you're broke, is to relieve the tension by running out and putting up a flock of little air-conditioned buildings.

But we'd like it better if they didn't tell us about it. Why rub salt in the already postage-infected wounds of publishers by telling them, each day, about these fancy little post offices which are shooting up all over the country?

In the first place, the Post Office publicity people ought to know that no newspaper in the other 49 states gives a hoot about a new post office in Kansas. All the releases do is to advertise the million or so a year the Post Office is throwing down the drain by loading its mails with stuff that has an A-1 priority in the scrapbaskets of editors throughout the land and if they open it, annoying them with details of wasteful-sounding expenditures.

We wouldn't be happy, but would be much happier over demands for postage increases if we could see some evidence of the Post Office Department trying to cut its costs. We are still hoping that the new Postmaster General will take some impressive steps in that direction.

Why Not Attack The Causes?

Juvenile delinquency now becomes, by executive order of the President, a responsibility of the Federal Government. Three Cabinet officers, Attorney General Robert Kennedy, Welfare Secretary Abraham Ribicoff and Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg, aided by a former Olympic hockey star to dream up and execute a five-year Pied Piper act in reverse at an estimated cost of $10 million for the first year.

Meaning no disrespect to these eminent sociologists we think the Administration could do more for youth by reforming our wasteful, spendthrift government, reducing taxes and checking inflation so that a single paycheck might again support a family. If Mother could return to her traditional duties in our economically broken homes the forces of juvenile decency would receive a greater assist than Federal millions will ever provide.

This might even help adult delinquency.

The Lunch Is On You

In case you haven't been looking toward Washington lately, the do-gooders are closing in with those proposals which they claim are give-aways at half the price.

Among the programs: Federal Aid to Education. Federal Medical Care For The Aged. Aid For Depressed Areas. Aid For Anybody Who Asks. The list rolls on endlessly.

We were forcibly reminded of this when an associate of ours dropped a modern parable on our desk.

It's about the king who called in his smartest sidekicks and told them to come up with a simple text on the economic problems of the day—a text that the man in the street could understand.

The wise men came back in one year with 67 volumes profusely illustrated with graphs and charts. But one tottering old gentleman, minus any kind of a diagram, had a different approach.

"There ain't no such thing," he told the royal court, "as a free lunch."

Too bad that senior citizen isn't around now. Too much "free lunch" is our greatest problem today. "Something for nothing" is an absolute impossibility. Somebody must pay for it. And if you don't help to block the administration's down-the-line Federal-aids programs—that somebody has to be YOU.

☆ 120 Years Old ☆ Traveled Only 40 Miles From Place Of Birth

This colored woman, living in Autauga County, Alabama, is known by her white and colored friends as Vinnie Kent. Her address is Plantersville, Aalabama, Route 1.

"Vinnie" lives alone in a two bedroom house. She has kept account of 120 years of her life and knows that she is older, but doesn't know how much older. Vinnie is a straight, slender woman, mind very alert, hears well, talks without hesitation, doesn't read or write, never spent any time much away from home and certainly hasn't travelled many miles from home. As she says just a short distance below Selma, Alabama.

Vinnie was the daughter of Martha Moore. (Martha was originally a Stringfellow, but the Moore's bought her). Martha was 106 years old when she died. Vinnie is the mother of 12 children, 4 of these are now living; 3 boys and 1 daughter. Her nearest neighbor is approximately one-fourth miles. Vinnie does her cooking, goes to the wooden section just back of her house and gathers the wood that is used in her wood stove and her fire place, does her own washing and ironing, keeps a clean house and her yards are swept with a straw broom (The same sort of straw broom that she uses to sweep her own house). She carries her water from her neighbors well, and has never had a doctor except on one occasion. Her entire family were ill and she had waited on them all until her nerves gave down on her and she needed a tonic. Her husband has been dead for over 50 years, and a neighbor William Peoples age 81 now, visited Vinnie's home when a child just about every day. He likes to tell of his visits there and how nice Vinnie was to everybody.

Vinnie still wears her dresses very long and wears high top shoes. She has had a little trouble just recently with her feet, but she was sweeping her yards early Saturday morning when we arrived. She was expecting some of her family to call by on Mother's Day. Vinnie tells that her White folks that she worked years far have gone on, but that many of the offsprings

Ye are the sons of the living God—(Hos. 1:10). The fear of failure or disapproval disappears when we recognize ourselves as "sons of the living God." We then have perfect confidence in the Spirit within us that affirms our heritage.

THIS WEEK ON CAPITOL HILL

Carl Goggins

From all outward glances it appears the Congressional Redistricting and Reapportionment issues will bring the Legislature to an almost complete standstill for weeks to come.

However, and although filibusters should ring loud and long and slow down tactics prevalent in both Houses this summer, the legislative pros on the Hill are still predicting Congressmen Kenneth Roberts and Albert Rains will wind up in the second district as proposed in the Dallas Sen. Walter Givhan-Tuscaloosa Rep. Louis Ferguson plan.

This stems from the old timers being relatively sure the redistricting deck is stacked against Roberts district and that it has been stacked for many months. The Ferguson-chairmaned Constitutions cards began to fall at the recent and Elections committee hearing when that body approved Ferguson measure by a 9-6 vote after earlier amending the plan to allow Tallapoosa and Chambers County to remain in Rains district instead of putting them in the Third as specified by Ferguson's proposal.

North Alabama legislators in that committee hoping for a break in keeping Roberts intact or large congressional elections were dealt an apparently severe blow when Walker Rep. Tom Beville and Blount Rep. W. P. Gordon voted to report the Ferguson bill out of committee. Pro-Roberts forces, who evidently figured these two north Alabamians with them, were trying to hold the Ferguson bill in tow in an effort to later push a reapportionment measure out to force the Black Belt into a filibuster.

Voting to favorably report the controversial measure were: Ferguson, Beville, Gordon, Jeff. Rep. Hugh Locke, Hale Rep. Richard Avery; Greene Rep. Doc Martin; Mobile Rep. John Murphy, Wilson Rep. Sam Nettles and Dale Rep. Henry Steagall. Voting against: Calhoun Rep. Woodrow Albee; Morgan Rep. Al Brewer; Cleburne Rep. John Casey; Jackson Rep. Wallace Gross DeKalb Rep. Robert Harris and Escambia Rep. Hugh Zezelle.

However, the north Alabama representatives got a break Friday when a reapportionment bill was reported out of the Judiciary committee. This move, reports go, gave the pro-Roberts group a chance to remuster its forces and concentrate on future plans.

Voting for passage were Bibb Rep. Virgil Ashworth, Morgan Rep. Bob Gilchrist, Mont. Rep. Joe Goodwin, Covington Rep. Butch Jones, Calhoun Rep. Hugh Merrill, Marion Rep. Pete Self and Rozelle. Against were Beville, Tuscaloosa Rep. A. K. Callahan, Russell Rep. Homer Cornett, Monroe Rep. Ralph Jones, Chilton Rep. Francis Speaks and Dallas Rep. B. V. Hain. Locke didn't vote, but he had to be there when he wanted to vote against the bill but was over-ruled by chairman Gilchrist.

Thus, when both of these issues had been reported out of committee, everyone here through this meant neither bill would do anything for some time to come because the House would now be probably thrown into a paralyzing log-jam. Today many upstate lawmakers still hope to use redistricting as a lever to reapportion the state and in turn perhaps save Roberts from getting the ax; yet, some of them are feeling a few of Congressman Earl Bilezikian's legislature have abandoned the idea to just watch out for their own Congressman.

This became apparent to them when Beville, Gordon, and other large-county lawmakers who usually favor reapportionment, voted in Judiciary and Elections committee to bolt back reapportionment bills. Representatives from the present Fourth, Fifth and Eight district claim Beville and some others sold us down the river.

What will be the Black Belt course now the reapportionment bill probably will come to the House floor first? Talk has it their usual custom is to filibuster reapportionment will not come, but to vote on the matter after considerable slow-down. They indicate they can bargain for enough votes to stop reapportionment, and to them redistricting is more important at this point.

Black Belters are joining the anti-Ferguson bill north Alabamians will filibuster for at-large elections their main compromise. They are also sure present action will shake up those Congressmen who do not want to run for re-election state at large, and that those Congressmen's legislators will eventually vote with the Black Belt to kill reapportionment and pass a redistricting measure.

On the senate side Bullock Sen. L. K. Andrews, Hale Sen. W. F. Wilson, Marengo Sen. E. O. Eddins and Givhan appear positive the Ferguson plan could be approved in the upper chamber. But lengthy filibustering for at-large elections is expected to come from Calhoun Sen. A. C. Shelton, Cleburne Sen.

Drinking Drivers
Are A Menace
To Society

Drinking drivers took a heavy toll of human lives on the highways during 1960. The toll would have been much greater except for the fact that the highway patrol officers apprehended 3,076 drinking drivers before they had an accident according to information released today by Floyd H. Mann, Director of Department of Public Safety.

He pointed out that approximately 3425 drinking drivers were involved in accidents last year. 201 drinking driver vehicles were involved in fatal accidents which accounted for 184 of the 625 rural traffic disasters during 1960.

The Director made these observations regarding drinking drivers involved in rural accidents on the highways last year. Equipment driven by drinking drivers was 27 per cent defective compared to an average of 11 per cent of all vehicles involved in accidents. Many drinking drivers have a tendency to drive at high speed. Of the 201 drinking drivers involved in fatal accidents 50 drivers were exceeding 100 miles per hour and 41 other drivers were exceeding 61 miles per hour which means that 34 per cent of the fatal accidents involving drinking drivers reflect excessive speed.

Another interesting fact regarding drinking drivers is that 471 caused accident by improper passing. Also 71 per cent of drinking driver accident occurred on weekends.

Director Mann concluded by saying, "A big majority of the accidents caused by drinking drivers during 1960 occurred on straight level highways, the drivers were residents of Alabama and had been driving more than eleven years. Many of these accidents occurred on county and local roads. In most cases, those who were involved lived within 25 miles of the accident scene."

Please report drinking drivers to the closest law enforcement agency. With your active support and cooperation we can apprehend more of these dangerous drivers he said.

RAYS

By Virginia H. Stover

Thomas Carlyle wrote: "Out main business is not to see what lies dimly at a distance but to do what lies at hand." If we really believed and adhered to this philosophy it would certainly simplify things. But the trouble with the matter is that we spend far more time worrying about the things in the time future than we do the necessary tasks that lie directly before us. It isn't the greatness of the tasks we have to perform that breaks us but the worry and anxiety that we have to have tomorrow and add it to that of yesterday and carry it today. That is too big a load for the strongest of us.

Robert Louis Stevenson, one of the world's most beloved men said one time when a friend sympathized with him because of his very poor health, "Anyone can carry a burden, however hard, until nightfall. Anyone can live sweetly, patiently, lovingly, purely, till the sun goes down." He had earned the secret of living one day at a time and getting what true happiness from it that he could even when his body was wrecked with pain.

Each day is made up of so many things to bring to the most unhappy of us if we have eyes to behold them, ears to hear them and the insight to recognize them. Warmth of the sun, buzzing of the bees song of the birds, croak of the frogs, laughter of children, friendly neighbors, on and on we could go until there would be no place or time for unpleasantness. Beauty is where ever one looks for it and so is happiness. Live today fully and tomorrow will be a better day.

John Gaither, St. Clair Sen., Ray Wyatt, Fayette Sen. Woodrow Roberts, Talladega Sen. Kyser Leonard and perhaps a few others.

Unquestionably, there is keen feeling among most legislators that if the present Fourth, Fifth, Seventh and Eight district legislative delegations cling together now the redistricting issue could end in large elections, by tying up all legislation. But as both north and south Alabamians have observed, History points out north Alabama legislators have rarely stood united.

Consequently this is why many persons here think that in the final hours, after and if redistricting does become the most important issue to the Congressmen and people of Alabama a number of 8th, 7th and possibly 5th district legislators will join Black Belters to pass redistricting and dump, at least this session, reapportionment.

TYING in with the stepped up program against slaughter on the highways is a Safety Check which will be conducted during the Month of May and June in various cities over the country. It will be a voluntary check and items to be checked will include brakes, tires lights, steering mechanism, exhaust system, rear view mirror, glass, horn and windshield wipers.

Compulsory inspection laws exist in 18 states already and it is our opinion that more states should use it as a means of protecting the unsuspecting motorist from mechanical failure... and possibly death or injury!

OLD Jim Conerly didn't like the way our station wagon looked so he tried to alter its appearance a bit the other day. Something went wrong with the "reins" on his buggy and he sideswiped us. He was lucky he didn't do mortal damage to someone. We were lucky we weren't "sittin'" on the fender when he hit it!

AND more on our local youngsters! "Appearing at Montevallo College tonight (18th) in a Parade in Reynolds Rose will be our own Miss Nancy of Maplesville. And appearing in the College's presentation "Bohème" tonight and Friday are Randall, Verney of Clanton and Denson (Denny) Wood of Jemison. Also appearing in the presentation will be William Binsleysley.

"MAKE sure you make the this summer! That's the and a good one too of the Safety Week in Alabama being observed May 21 to May 27th. With the many and ponds around Chilton and the many who are swimming and will be using them this that it a good motto to take at all times. Here's a good motto: "Respect the and you'll live to drink it!"

CHILTON County destroyed confiscated some 800 cases of mash for making moonshine whiskey during the month of May.

ACCORDING to the report Mr. Earl Brees promoted to resident manager, Gulf States E-Z Packaging plant in Maplesville, was promoted from Plant Supervisor. He and his wife and their Jim, Ian, Doak and Sally now full-fledged residents of County and we welcome to our happy community.

Report from Washington

BY
ARMISTEAD SELDEN
Congressman, Sixth District

A bill permitting the use of Mexican farm labor in the United States for another two years was passed by the House last Thursday by a vote of 231 to 157.

Before passage of the measure, House members defeated an amendment to limit imported Mexican labor to food work and to eliminate them from cotton processing. Also rejected was an amendment which sought to phase out the Mexican labor program in three years by reducing the number of imported laborers by one-third each year.

Perhaps you will recall that this same legislation was being considered the day that the group of Puerto Ricans fired on members of the House from the galleries in 1954. It was merely a coincidence that this particular legislation was under consideration, as the attackers had no interest in it.

Reservist Bill
Another measure to receive House approval last week requires an eight year military obligation of all reservists from 17 to 26 years old. According to this legislation, all reservists would be placed on the same basis by adding two years to the obligation of men from 26 to 36 who enlist in the reserves.

The eight-year obligation applies to those who enlist in the reserves after age 18. It also applies to draftees who must remain in the reserves for six years in completing two years on active duty.

Action Against Castro
Several weeks ago I introduced resolution expressing the Congress that action be taken through the Organized American States against the Cuban government.

The Committee on Foreign Affairs approved the resolution last without a dissenting vote. This resolution is expected in the Representatives this week. This resolution is adopted by overwhelming vote, it should perfectly clear to our people to the south that the people of the United States are deeply opposed to a communist beachhead in Western Hemisphere. If the States in sanctioning communist Cuba, the Castro can be greatly weakened.

Alabama Congressmen
Discuss River System

Two Alabama congressmen are shown discussing the development of the state's river system with Lt. Gen. Walter K. Wilson, newly appointed Chief of the U. S. Corps of Engineers. At left is Rep. Frank Boykin of the First District and at right is

Rep. Armistead Selden of the Sixth District. Their discussion followed a luncheon in Wilson's honor. Also attending the luncheon were Senators Sparkman and Russell and Representatives Andrews, George Grant and George Huddleston.

East - West Game Here Sunday

Next Sunday, May 21, is the date of the Eight Annual Baseball Game sponsored by the local Lions Club for the benefit of Alabama Sight, Inc., and that is the organization that does so much for underprivileged people with eye trouble. As usual, this game will be played in the Park at 2:00 p.m., and will be watched by big league scouts looking for boys with enough talent to sign Major League contracts. Clay Carroll and Glen Gilbert of Alex City signed from last year's game.

The Scouts will watch the first game which will be an all star game featuring boys from as far East as Alex City against the boys from as far West as West Blocton. They will select fifteen boys in the second half of the game to play in the second half of the double header against the Chilton County High School Team.

The game will be limited to six innings. The Chilton High Tigers have been led offensively this year by Warren Edwards, who finished the season with a batting mark of .393. This junior shortstop has real ability. Other Tigers have been busy with the stick, too. Dale Maddox, a Junior first baseman, follows Edwards with a mark of .380. Senior outfielder Elliot Monroe hit .366; in the way, Monroe has been, he is to play in the all star football game this fall. Keith Mims has established a batting average of .346. Ray Cox hit an even .333 and was one of the best for driving in runs. Hilliard Wyatt, Sophomore pitcher and outfielder, finished the season with a record of four wins against only one loss, and had one no-hitter against the Selma Rams. Keith Mims won 2 and lost a like number, but could have won them all with a little better support afield. With a squad composed of only three Senior, four Junior, Eight Sophomores; a record of six wins and four losses is not too bad; especially since one of the Seniors, John Will Wyatt, joined the Club after a serious operation.

There will be sixteen players from out of town making a second appearance in this year's game, and each of the visiting squads is made up of fourteen Seniors, one Junior and one Sophomore. This should make for better, more experienced talent than ever. That is very good because this game is a favorite of the scouts since so many good players appear here.

The roster for the Eastern team is: From Alex City - Jack Nivens and Keene Reese, Pitchers, Jim Mann and Rex Anderson; from Marbury - Wayne McCord, Cecil Fisher and C. J. Hollow; from Columbiana - Joel Lovett, Robert Weaver and Jimmy Blacklock; from Siluria - Jerry Busby and Leon Payton; from Verbena - Roy Ball; from Vincent - Gary G-rrett, Gilard Green and Wayne Johnson. For the West it will be Clark Billingsley, Donnie Strickland and Douglas Powell from Billingsley High; from Calera - Larry Gay, Bobby Godfrey, Phil Findley, Bobby Parks and William Askins; from Isabella - Frank Daniels and Billy Joe Mims; from Jemison - Gene Sorrell; from Montevallo - Danny Thornton and George Underwood, one of the winners from our game last year; from West Blocton - Kenneth Reach, Louie Wade and Wayne Callahan.

Harp And Harmony Sing Held At Robinson Springs

The Harp and Harmony Convention was held at Robinson Springs last Sunday. It was a great success. The song service was opened with Wondrous Love, no. 159 in the Harp by chairman W. L. Sanders. Bro. Huckabee, pastor of Robinson Springs brought a wonderful message at the eleven o'clock hour. The Memorial service was opened by No. 235, Long Sought Home, No. 288 in Harp was sang in memory of author, Mr. B. F. White, by Joe Jackson.

Players for Chilton County High not named above are: Doug Coe, Bobby Gilliland, Glen Grant, Kenneth Mims and substitutes Luke Blanton, Bobby Miller Johnny Mims and Johnny Mac Smith. The same ticket that will gain admission to the game here next Sunday is also good for the Game in Birmingham on June 9 and cost only $1.00; and four games for one dollar is a bargain rate if these ever was one. Besides, your dollar will do a world of good for one a little less fortunate than you. The Lions Club, the players, and Alabama Sight cordially invite you - and request your solid support.

W. L. Sanders sang No. 208 in Harmony in memory of Mr. Walker this bringing us up to the noon hour, which a bountiful dinner was served. There were directors from several counties present.

Directors were: Mr. Berry, Mr. Williams, Elaine Parker, Bobby Littleton, Joe Jackson, Gale Littleton, Roger Littleton, Mary Kate Parker, Mrs. Goggins, Ray Oaks, Ralph Littleton, Fehra Oaks, Alta Mae Jones, M. E. Jackson, Eulean Littleton, Aron Parker, Sharon and Gale Minor sank 401. Joe Coff, Donna Jackson, Edward Parker, Mr. Hayes. We want to thank everyone that had any part in making the day a success.

100 YEARS AGO

One hundred years ago this week May 14-20, 1861, Montgomery stood on the brink of losing its role as capital of the Confederacy. The Confederate Congress this week provided definitely for moving the capital to Richmond, Virginia. May 17, 1861, President Jefferson Davis sent the Confederate Congress his rejection of their resolution of May 11, which would have moved the legislative but not the executive branch of the government to Richmond.

Final action moving the Confederate government to Richmond passed Congress May 20, one day before Congress adjourned, never again to meet in Montgomery. Congress was to reassemble in Richmond July 20.

This same week, May 14-20, 1861, the Confederate Congress also provided for admission of two new states to the Confederacy. May 16, 1861, the Confederate Congress passed a bill to admit Tennessee to the Confederacy in case as seemed likely - its official application should come while Congress was in recess May 22-July 20. The people of Tennessee were to vote June 8 on their legislature's action of May 6 to take Tennessee out of the Union and into the Confederacy.

May 18, 1861, a bill passed the Confederate Congress admitting Arkansas to the Confederacy. That same day Congress asked its Judiciary Committee to study proposals for sequestering assets of enemies of the Confederacy.

May 20, 1861, North Carolina's eleventh state to do so - passed a secession ordinance. No popular referendum on the secession ordinance was provided for.

This same day, May 20, the Governor of Kentucky issued a neutrality proclamation. He warned both the Union and the Confederacy against sending troops into that state. Opinion in Kentucky was divided between North and South. A desire for peace was strong in that state.

Pvt. Ernest T. Ware In Germany Army Pvt. Ernest T. Ware, son of Edgar L. Ware, Clanton, Ala., and other personnel from the 4th Armored Division's 51st Infantry recently assisted German civilians in repairing property damage which occurred during Operation Winter Shield II, a NATO field training exercise in Germany.

The repairs were made on roads and fields in the area between Ingolstadt and Grafenwohr. Muddy conditions during Winter Shield made the rehabilitation work necessary.

Ware is regularly assigned as a rifleman in the infantry's Company B in Ulm. He entered the Army last June, completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C., and arrived overseas last December.

The 20-year-old soldier attended Elmore County Training High School in Wetumpka. His mother, Mrs. Margie Z. Henderson, lives on Route 1, Titus.

Armed Forces Day, May 20th

ARMED FORCES DAY 1961.—The U.S. Army's Davy Crockett, a hand or jeep portable weapons system, is capable of firing atomic or conventional warheads in support of the Army's front line pentomic battle groups.

There's a fascinating quality about a free nation whose citizens salute their military forces with a theme Power for Peace.

It's a quality to be found wherever two people enjoy a discussion a child laughs, or a little league baseball team is cheered at a local ball park. It's a universal spirit that says Americans enjoy the gift of living.

It's a quality found, too, in the sons and daughters of America who will be serving in their country's Army on Saturday, May 20, when the nation celebrates its Armed Forces Day. These young men and women are the descendants of those who stood and fought at Bunker Hill, Bull Run, the Alamo, the Argonne Forest, and wherever else this nation's security has been challenged.

The modern soldier is the nucleus of our deterrent against attack. He is intelligent, alert, capable, observant and patriotic. He has learned his job well in an Army school and has practiced it until it has become second nature. In case of national emergency, he can be depended upon.

It isn't by accident that the men and women in service this Armed Forces Day are capable specialists. The Army long ago, realized the value of technical training in the latest technological fields. Thus, only the best can be chosen for vital careers in missiles, electronics, armor, infantry and aircraft, to name a few.

In return for the best students, the Army supplies what many consider the finest schooling available in technical fields. High School graduates especially are finding more and more that the Army will develop their talents if they are capable.

The Army's role in the Power for Peace concept offers valuable opportunities to every able youth in America. Visit your local Army recruiter for more information on your own opportunities with the U. S. Army.

Total cash income from broilers jumped from $9 million in 1950 to $89 million for the 5,000 producers in Alabama in 1960.

All Boats Should be Re-Registered As Quickly As Possible says State

The State Department of Conservation's Water Safety Division today issued a reminder to Alabama boat owners that all boats not re-registered to date should be re-registered as quickly as possible.

Conservation Director William C. Younger said all boat owners re-registering their boats should ask for the same number that was used on the boat last year.

This complies with the regulations of the Water Safety Division and also prevents the necessity of removing the old number and painting a new number on the boat. Those re-registering will be given a decal to be placed on their boat showing that the boat has been re-registered.

Tom. G. Shackelford, Chief of the Water Safety Division, pointed to the fact that it is necessary for each boat owner to have with him the previous year's certificate when re-registering.

If this certificate has been lost, or if ownership of the boat has changed, a new certificate may be secured by applying directly to the Water Safety Division giving name and address or old certificate, he said.

Prices Paid Poultrymen Rising
Fowl 1959 Level

Alabama made over $141 million from commercial broilers, eggs, and farm chicken last year. Auburn Extension Service Poultry Marketing Specialist Allen Brown said that this level is 15 per cent higher than the 1959 figure. He added that farmers in the state produced just under 177 million broilers with prices averaging 16.2 cents per pound—1.1 cents above the 1959 average.

The more than $91 million made on broilers in the state put Alabama second only to Georgia in total gross income from broilers. Egg farmers in the state did an equally good job, stated Brown. Prices for eggs averaged about 47 cents per dozen above the previous year. And producers made over $6 million more from the sale of eggs than they did in 1959.

In the new standards the basis for evaluating quality was changed in all grades by reducing the joints given in grading for feathering, that is, the amount of fat intermingled with the lean between the ribs, explains the Auburn sheep specialist.

More importance is given now to the firmness of the meat as a quality factor. Of course, Farquhar says, these revisions have limited effects on the very young lambs marketed in the spring which have only a minimum fat.

When shopping for lamb, the homemaker can select from several cuts. For delicious meals with ease favorite choices are often lamb chops, steaks, and roasts. Requiring a little more attention and cooking time are dishes such as lamb shank stuffed breast, and braised neck steaks.

farm circles today about management. But what does it involve? Auburn Extension Service, Farm and Home Development Specialist Sam Doughty says that the functions of management are observing, analyzing, deciding, taking action and learning responsibility.

A farm business is like any other business—it's constantly changing. And it takes a good manager to cope with so many new things, specialist states. Prices, weather, production practices and techniques, health and governmental regulations vary continually.

The farmer must spend time learning and making adjustments to these changes. This is the essence of management, Doughty says.

Deadline Near For Feed Grain

Program Signup

Corn and grain sorghum growers have until May 22, 1961, to sign up under the 1961 feed grain program, Eddie Owen, Chairman, County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said today.

The program provides special payments to growers of the two crops who divert acreages this year from the production of corn or grain sorghum to a soil-conserving use. Up to half the total payment to be earned on a farm may be made in advance if the farmer request it.

In Chilton County, the average county rates are $17.20 per acre for reducing corn acreage a minimum of 20 percent below the farm base acreage and $12.40 per acre for reducing grain sorghum acreage a like amount. Higher rates will apply for reducing corn and grain sorghum acreage from 20 to 40 percent below the base. Rates on a farm may be higher or lower than the county rates, depending on the farm's productivity in relation to the county average.

While the program is voluntary, corn and grain sorghum producers will not be eligible for price support on any of their 1961 feed grain crops unless they cooperate in the feed grain program.

The chairman reported that many farmers have visited the County Office since the program was announced to obtain further information. Interest has been general throughout the area to take part in the program.

Some farmers have indicated an interest in the program, but they have not yet followed through. Such producers are urged to get in touch with the County ASC office as soon as possible, but no later than the May 22, 1961, deadline.

Plants Need Attention To Make Pretty Blooms

In the spring, everyone is eager to get annual flowers planted. But after the rush of planting is over gardeners often forget that the flowers need constant care to produce pretty blooms.

Auburn Extension Service Ornamental Horticulturist Harold Thornhill says that one of the most important practices in producing pretty blooms is a regular schedule of watering. But, he adds, too much water can be just as damaging as not enough. He gives this rule for determining whether or not the plants need water: take a sample of soil and crush it in your hand. If the soil crumbles, the plants need water; if the soil stays in a mass, the plants don't need water.

During extremely dry weather, two waterings each day may be necessary—one in early morning and one in late afternoon, the horticulturist says.

To keep the plants growing, gardeners should apply a light application of fertilizer every three to four weeks, Thornhill advises. A complete fertilizer used at the rate of five pounds per hundred square feet should be spread over the bed and watered in. This will prevent damage to the plants.

Local Students Will Go to Institute

Joseph Peter Johnson, son of Dr. and Mrs. Joe Hall Johnson, has been accepted to attend the Junior English and Scientists' Summer Institute (JESSI), which will be held on the Mississippi State University campus at State College, Mississippi, on June 4-17, 1961. The purpose of this program is to provide a two-week exploration in the pure and basic applied science field for students who are interested in science careers. It is an educational and career guidance institute designed to give students a knowledge of the areas which engineering and science encompass as well as the courses they should pursue to earn undergraduate and graduate degrees in these fields. The need for a strong academic subject background in science, particularly in English, Mathematics and science will be emphasized.

This is the Sixth Annual JESSI session and the records do not show the attendance of a student from Alabama in previous years. Pete's acceptance was based on his strong interest in science as well as his academic high school records and achievement test scores. He has been interested in various branches of science for several years; however physics is his strongest interest. Pete is completing the tenth grade this year at Chilton County High School.

Lynn Easterling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Easterling, has been selected to attend the Summer Program in the life sciences at Auburn University from June 12 to July 21. He was one of 20 boys selected to participate in this program. Dr. Joseph T. Hood, Director of this program sponsored jointly by Auburn University and the National Science Foundation stated that this selection is indeed an honor since applications were received from Florida to Wisconsin. This program is designed to provide academically superior students with educational experiences in the life sciences and associated applied sciences, beyond those normally available in high schools. The program makes possible direct contact between these students and superior college teachers and research scientists. Course work and research activities in the applied and basic sciences will be included in the schedule. Lynn is completing his junior year at Chilton County High School and plans to become a science teacher.

Importance Of Development Of Alabama, Coosa River System

Economic Impact; Who Will Benefit

A. The future economic growth of the commercially tributary area, comprising 26,000 square miles, in Alabama and northwest Georgia, is directly dependent upon the complete development.

B. By following full development, the expansion of existing industry and location of new industry will become a reality, thereby permitting employment of the surplus labor now available throughout the river basin.

C. It will regulate the large and dependable water supply by formation of reservoirs, and provide flood control by storage and regulation of the flow of flood waters through twelve dams that are either existing or to be constructed. Approximately 550,000 acres of rural area and several urban centers would be relieved of excessive floods.

D. The development of the river will expedite the development of other natural resources - land, forests, minerals, and others in the basin adding to the economic advancement of the southeastern region and strengthening the Nation.

E. Will provide ample water supply for manufacturing processing, and transportation. Stabilize transportation rates.

F. Increase materially the supply of electric power. The availability of this additional power will expand the economy of the entire south-east.

G. It would aid the national defense of the Nation in the event of war.

Who Will Benefit From The Development

A. The Nation - In the form of water transportation, and increased power for national defense. Add to the economic growth.

B. The people - Increased employment and income in an area with an excessive labor surplus. More and better products on a competitive basis. New recreational facilities.

C. Industry - Ideal factory sites. Dependable water supply for processing and transportation of commerce.

D. Utilities - Increase output of electric power for an increasing demand by the continued growth of the population and industry.

E. Railroads and Trucks - An increase in traffic volume of more finished products.

F. Federal, State and Local Government - Permit more financial support from increased income of the people, business, industry, and development of other resources with out raising the tax structure.

G. The development of the river will add directly more to the economy of Alabama and northwest Georgia than any other existing undeveloped natural resource.

Excise Tax Paid By So. Bell Customers

Southern Bell customers in Clanton paid an average of $10.08 each in federal excise taxes on telephone service in 1960. The total excise tax bill for Southern Bell's customers in the state was $7,119,487 according to W. B. Waters, telephone company manager here.

The 10 percent tax is levied on both local and long distance telephone service. Excise taxes are also placed by the federal government on luxury items, such as jewelry, liquor, and furs, but telephone service is the only household utility that is so taxed, Mr. Waters said.

The excise tax on telephone service was enacted as a war-time emergency measure to raise revenue and to cut down on non-military use of telephone facilities.

"It was supposed to be a temporary measure," Mr. Waters but it is still in effect.

Removal of the tax would benefit all telephone customers. The tax is added to the telephone company's monthly bill and passes it along to the federal government," he said.

The tax on local telephone service was scheduled to expire June 30, but Congress extended it until June 30, 1961. The long distance, as well as local service is discriminatory against phone users and both are abolished, Mr. Waters said.

A 50-bushel per acre of straw, will drain off 50 pounds of nitrogen, 20 pounds of phosphorus and 45 pounds of potash from soil.

Assisted by chaplain, Mr. Robert Hill.

Remarks were made by Miss Cora A. McCall and Mr. W. A. Dickerson. A large table centered the room with lighted candles and the table was loaded with food.

Supper was served in buffet style. The American Legion and Legionnaires and a large group of invited guest all enjoyed a wonderful supper, soft music was played in the background. The Legionnaires will sell poppers for memorial day. Please buy a poppy.

Mrs. Bessie Gissendanner was chairman of the food. She and her committee done a swell job in preparing the delicious food.

Mrs. Alditha Banks had as her dinner guest on Sunday Mrs. Minnie Braxton, Birmingham, Addie Parker, Cleveland, Ohio, Mrs. Amie Pearson, Mrs. Sawyer.

and
About Town
by Ben

By Bob White 'Ben' is on vacation.)

WE are asked to remind you that there will be an old-fashioned county fair at the Dallas County Fair Grounds, sponsored by the Dallas County Fair Association, on the 10th of July. We know it's the old-fashioned fair, but we just couldn't resist. They didn't say when it was 1901 or 1902.

After this, we hope

CONGRATULATIONS to A.C.
Rogers on being the new owner of a real, old-fashioned county fair. They seem to be few between these days, but Rogers has gone out after some spending money and bringing part of it, he ain't talking about it, he's following his sales pitch with action.
He's the kind of fellow we want to see selling newspapers and working for us someday!

ON the 10th of this month a gallon box-type still was destroyed by County law enforcement agents and Claud Strickland and
C. (Lago) Bates were taken into custody with an unidentified man. They are on bond.
The still was loaded and ready to go to the officers, let it! The plant was located about eight miles northeast of Jemison on Rt.
10, the old Harris Road. Sheriff's office is ready to raid several still sites this week, but we have no chance to reach them to find out the results.

It case someone should misunderstand, they let it 'run' out, on the ground, away!

THIS is National Highway
Week. Appropriate, we suppose, to much attention should be paid on our highways at present. Someone said the way to stop Freedom Riders was to stop the highway and let them walk across the line and board one car. No more interstate interference. We don't know how law that suggestion is, but the highways are intriguing. Don't forget the opening of the new Interstate, south of Clanton today!

HERE a mite late, but congratulations to Herbert Dennis up-winning the "All Star" award 1961 with his Company, the Bureau Insurance of Alabama. It is given for outstanding achievement, and Herbert has won with them long, so the award the accomplishment speaks for our native son!

THE Clanton Jaycees recently determined bid (at the convention) to have the headquarters of the organization located here in Clanton.
The organization is approximately one of the votes, but it wasn't one of the other four towns were bidding against them.
The prize, Birmingham, Sylacauga and Auburn also congratulations to our local men a valiant effort for local unity. Well keep plugging!

SPACE and time the deadliest enemies to the community newsman will not permit us running out of time. We will notice concern our young folks, which is of some importance. We will try to do so next week. We will use the Highway Patrol Cadet team of the (Alabama State Highway Patrol) and it warrants attention of every young man in this area! If you can't wait next week, get in touch with the Highway Patrol officers in this area: Rufus Head, W. J.
Lawrence or Harvey Nelson.
Give us the straight on it.
We can wait; we'll give it to you next week!

Chilton Peach Harvest Officially Underway

First Ones Go At $10 Per Half Bushel

Chilton County peaches took the spot light once again this week as the 1961 harvest officially got underway at the Headley shed near Collins Chapel. Mr. Max Beyer, Representative for Gaylord and Overtown, who will operate the market fruit received at the Headley shed this season, is happy to report the sales results of the first shipment of peaches (Redwin and Mayflower). The first 50 one-half bushel baskets were purchased by Piggly-Wiggly of Montgomery at $10.00 each. The remaining 135 baskets sold at the national market price. Size (2 1/8 and up) and quality were excellent.

This season's shipping date, May 22nd, was eight days earlier than the opening peach season date last year. However, this puts several days later than the Georgia producers in getting on the market. This is another reason why Chilton County farmers must produce quality fruit.

Commencement Exercise Of C. H. S. May 28

Principal S. E. Waters of Chilton County High School has announced the Commencement Exercises of the 1961 graduating class. The Baccalaureate Service will be held at the First Methodist Church on Sunday evening, May 28 at 7:30 p.m. The annual sermon to the class will be preached by Reverend Lloyd Kimbrough, pastor of the church in which the service is held. The program on Monday evening will be held in the First Baptist Church at 7:00 p.m. Mr. Lawrence R. Miles, Director of Admissions and Registrar of Jacksonville State College, will deliver the address to the one hundred five graduating seniors, who compose the largest graduating class in the history of the school. Mr. S. E. Waters will award diplomas and announce honors.

After the graduation exercises a banquet will be enjoyed by the seniors and their honor guests in the dining room of the church.

Roadside Stand Farm Couple's Key To Success

Clanton — Operating a 550-acre farm is a big job. But Mr. and Mrs. Bartley Giles of Maysville, Rt. 2, don't seem to have much trouble making a success of theirs.

One of the Chilton County family means to success, is a roadside stand where they sell vegetables and fruits every year, according to Assistant County Agent Daniel Mims. The children, Joyce and Bartley Allen, operate the stand during the vegetable months.

Twenty-five percent of the water melons, 75 per cent of the peaches and 90 per cent of the other fruits and vegetables are marketed through the roadside stand, reports Giles. However, oakra goes to a fresh market in Birmingham until the price breaks. Then it is shipped to a commercial freezing plant in Georgia.

Fruits and vegetables grown on the Adams community farm include okra, corn, watermelons, peaches, cantaloupes, beans, cucumbers, field peas, squash and tomatoes. According to Agent Mims, Giles has 115 acres in pasture land, 10 acres in peaches.

FHA Changes Office Hours

Effective May 29, 1961, the Farmers Home Administration office will be open at 7:00 a.m. and close at 4:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. The office will be closed one hour at noon each day. These hours will remain in effect through September 1st.

The FHA office will be closed all day Tuesday, May 30, 1961 in observance of Decoration Day.

HAILSTORM HITS FRUIT CROP

- An Editorial -

Statesmen Needed!

WE have before us an editorial which states: "Do we take mixers too seriously?" It refers to the present so-called racial strife within the State today!

Definitely we do take the "mixers" too seriously! If we could find it in our nature to ignore such rabble rousers we could find also a degree of peace and understanding, at least amongst ourselves.

Today, the Sovereignty of the State of Alabama is being challenged by the Federal Government. We predict, good or bad, right or wrong, that this situation, having come to the saturation point, will begin to change toward easing some of the tension in the erupting South today. We do not believe that the intelligent, law-abiding Southerner is willing to compromise with his conviction. We are certain that the ignorant, misguided Southerner will not compromise; as neither will the stubborn, self-righteous Yankee. A compromise is not the answer!

The Southern Negro is not to blame and wants no part of the trouble. The intelligent Southern white man does not wish bloodshed and abhors violence of any kind! But there are those of us who are stupid enough to believe that something can be settled through the use of force. Hogwash! It goes without saying that brains are greatly superior to muscle in getting a job done. We need more brains applied!

We appeal to the good citizens of this community, both black and white, to unite in spirit and in deed to thwart any effort at making trouble in our community. White mobs, bent on hurting someone physically, are no better than Multi-Colored Freedom Riders bent on causing trouble and creating hatred.

We must not let these extremists persist in making a battleground of our beloved State of Alabama.

We stand behind Governor John Patterson one hundred percent in his appeal to let the State of Alabama handle its own internal affairs. The President and the powers that be have erred... badly! If they condoned the invasion of a Sovereign State of the Union by hostile troublemakers; how can they not condone our legal actions against them?

We will not, we cannot tolerate dominance of our own natural laws and resources by unfriendly outsiders, regardless of who they are!

The entire nation is on trial here and it is as good a time as any to find out: Are the states ruling themselves and thereby creating a united federal system? Or are the figures in Federal Government seeking to create a socialist dictatorship, thriving on crises and bent on diminution!

We cannot hope to change the minds of the "mixers" with violence. Neither can they hope to change our ideals by mocking our rightfully executed state laws and trampling on our dignity as well as ignoring our wish to be left alone to work out our own problems.

Passiveness is not the answer either. It is deceiving. We must call on our Governor, and our judges and courts and if need be, our Legislature to solve this problem. We will not solve it with the muscle of hate and misguided good intentions of the brawny ignorant who do not look before they swing!

We need statesmen, and it would seem we have none. Not here in the State and certainly not in the Federal System of our national government!

Varying Estimates Of Damage; County Agent Says, "Not Too Severe!"

AFTER having been blessed by Mother Nature this season with near perfect peach weather, farmers and growers in Chilton County awoke Tuesday morning to see it hailing on their 'nearly-ready-to-harvest' crop! Next to freezing, hail is the peach growers' mortal enemy!

According to report a hailstorm early in the day, did a path across north-central Chilton leaving behind varying degrees of damaged and ruined fruit.

Bad In Some Places—According to Mr. T. E. Logan, of Clanton, Route 4, the hail fell on his farm for a period of about 10 to 15 minutes with hailstones as large as king-sized marbles on down to pellets. Mr. Logan stated: "I estimate my loss at between 25 and 35 percent of my peach crop."

He said his neighbor, Emmett Smith, was hit even harder than he. "My crop was just ruined," Mr. Greening (Grady) Littleton is reported to have said.

County Agent Reassuring—

Checking with the County Agent's office, we learned that generally speaking, the storm was not as severe as some had thought earlier in the day, even though some growers were hit substantially harder than others.

A reliable source, close to County Agent John Sellers reports that he spent most of Tuesday checking some of the orchards in the areas where the storm hit the hardest. "The foliage is far enough along to have protected most of the fruit," said our reporter, "and many of the farmers still have not thinned their fruit properly!"

Apparently the hail did some thinning for some of them and counting that in the loss, the percentage would be considerably lower than some had anticipated.

Only One Out Of 28—On the farm of Tom Hayes, near Thorsby, Agent Sellers is said to have found about one out of 28 peaches damaged—picked at random. Percentage-wise and compared to what some farmers say they lost; that's not so bad!

Others in the vicinity that had damaged fruit were A. D. Headley, Enoch Cox, Sam Bentley, the Gentry Farms and many more.

Clanton Area Escapes—Evidence of the fact that the hailstorm was widely scattered in that hail was reported well south of Clanton with no great damage resulting as far as we could determine. However Clanton grower M. Lloyd Mims of the Refuge Community with some 1500 trees, informed us that the hail was very light East of Clanton with practically no damage at all.

Tomatoes Damaged—Information also reached the News Tuesday that the tomato crop was damaged also, but not as badly as the peaches, because they are not as far along in this area.

Speculation—Estimate of damage in dollars? A few thousand! In percentage of the total crop? Even though some farmers were hit quite hard, some were not hit at all. Total percentage loss will be light. Some feel that the loss might improve the market for the good peaches to come.

Chilton County is still in the peach producing and marketing business!

Reminder To Growers—Farmers are reminded that if they want to prevent Brown Rot and other infections in their orchards, they should knock off all damaged fruit as soon as possible. This is also according to the office of the County Agent.

As a special treat for warm weather, try this delightful pink and white homemade ice cream—as good as the old-fashioned kind and grandmother made in the hand frames. It's inexpensive, too, and no fuss or trouble to prepare with vanilla pudding mix and fresh strawberries made in a refrigerator tray.

Two-Toned Ice Cream

$1\frac{1}{2}$ cups sliced strawberries $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar 1 package Jell-O® vanilla pudding and pie filling $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt	$2\frac{1}{4}$ cups milk 1 egg yolk 1 egg white 2 tablespoons sugar 1 cup light cream

Crush fruit slightly, add $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar, and let stand 20 minutes. Meanwhile, combine pudding mix, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar, salt, and $\frac{1}{4}$ cup milk in saucepan. Add egg yolk and blend well. Then fold in remaining $2\frac{1}{4}$ cups milk. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a full boil and thickens. Remove from heat.

Beat egg white until foamy throughout. Add 2 tablespoons sugar, a tablespoon at a time, beating after each addition until sugar is blended. Then continue beating until this meringue mixture is stiff and peaks. Fold in remaining cream.

To half of mixture, fold in fruit. Pour into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator, setting control for coldest freezing temperature. Freeze until partially firm. Spread remaining mixture on top and freeze until firm. Freeze 3 to 4 hours. Make $1\frac{1}{4}$ quarts.

If desired, serve with a fruit sauce.

It's called the 4-H Foods Unit Achievement Program and offers incentive awards for best 4-H Foods Unit Achievement at county, state and national levels. The National 4-H Service Committee has announced. The new awards donor is General Foods Corporation of White Plains, N. Y. While local 4-H support is already established in some areas by GF people, the new program makes the firm's first national 4-H educational program a sponsor.

The Cooperative Extension Service supervises the work done in fulfilling the program's goals and objectives. Local volunteer leaders teach the young cooks. Beginners start a project with simple recipes similar things such as listing ingredients, portioning, and simple things they don't like, and things they've never tasted. They apply the same techniques to cooking know-how, and try to enlarge and improve both areas. The more advanced members learn meal planning, cooking, serving and efficient shopping.

Outdoor cooking and party planning and the three-meals-a-day routine are examined and explored, making the entire project an exciting experience. The member who does the best job will be named state winner, and will be a delegate to the 40th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next fall. All expenses will be paid for by General Foods Corporation.

National $400 cash scholarships are awaiting the six highest scoring individuals selected from all state winners.

Our Printers Ink Is For Everybody

IT was brought forcefully to our attention this week that, in a controversy or discussion with a newspaper, the newspaper "has the ink and I haven't got any!"

We welcome with open columns, any opinion by any citizen who is sincerely trying to do the best he can to solve a problem, do a job, or meet a challenge. Whether he agrees with us or not is of no significance when the opportunity -- or the responsibility -- comes to print what he has to say!

People tend to forget that the newspaper, especially the community newspaper, is as much a public service organ as is any official capacity in county or city government.

Perhaps more of a public service, when you stop to consider the multitude of different phases of community which the newspaper is expected to cover; support or condemn!

Our printers ink is for everybody! And we would be doing ourselves, as well as our friends and neighbors, a great injustice were we to keep it all to ourselves. Very little of our printers ink goes for personal appeal or for the private enterprise of this newspaper!

Printers ink is -- admitted and proclaimed -- public in its usage. Any time we can improve our community or inform our people through it's use, we will strive diligently to do so!

How To Watch A Graduation

If you are planning to attend a college commencement exercise, take along a "score card" which will help you to tell the doctors from the masters, the masters from the bachelors. E. R. Moore, president of E. R. Moore Company, leading supplier of caps and gowns for such ceremonies, advises a short study for making the proper identification.

Dimensions of a graduate's hood indicate the degree to be conferred. Bachelor's hood is three feet long, a half-inch wide, and binding measures two inches across at shoulder level. Master's hood is three feet long, a half-inch wide, and binding measures three inches in width at the shoulder. Doctor wears a hood four feet long with a 5-inch shoulder width.

It's one thing to mistake a short stop for the second baseman at a ball game or fail to distinguish a defense man from the goal keeper in hockey. It's something different watching exercises where graduates may even be distinguished by use of cap tassels in the official department of Learning colors. Black tassels, however, are correct for all degrees. Doctors, for example, wear gowns with three black velvet bars on each sleeve and black velvet facing and may wear gold tassels on their caps. College presidents, regardless of degree, are also entitled to wear gold tassels. The master's forearm protrudes from the traditional closed crocheted sleeve, but now, marking the first official change in more than 60 years, is concealed in a sleeve.

The bachelors gown has long pointed sleeves and women add a white collar if no hood is worn. School colors are used in the hood lining but the binding of the hood is of one of about 30 colors. School colors that indicate fields of learning. The maize trim for agriculture, white for arts and letters, russet for forestry, yellow-gold for science, scarlet for theology, etc. At most schools the cap tassel is worn on the left side, following the military tradition of wearing decorations "over the heart".

RAYS OF HOPE

By Virginia H. Stover

I waken suddenly, the clock strikes two. The hours is very still;

My thoughts are free to wander where they will; I know a lovely quiet thing to do, Time, time to pray.

There times when we awaken in friendly night and look upon the stars; God does not seem very far away or intangible. If we take the opportunity to pray in the stillness our prayers seem to flow upward like a holy light, undisturbed by worldly noises. Dear friends and loved ones are remembered as we breathe their names in prayer.

The burdens of the day and the pain on core that they may have; mingle with our own and they are close to us and as our petition waits heavenward to our understanding Friend, we are relaxed and sleep comes easily again.

Do not fret when you awaken in the night-use this quiet time, the still moments to strengthen the soul.

I said a silent prayer last night, and it was said for you; And now all my heart I pray, that it will soon come true. I prayed for sunshine, for rain, for the little children; rain; That loved all the years to come, your path will remain. I also prayed for quite a while, that every special friend; Who cherishes your gentle smile, is with you to the end.

ABUNDANT LIFE

HOW TO GET THINGS DONE FOR GOD

Several of my friends across America have asked me, "Brother Roberts, how do you get things done for God?"

I answer, "Do what you can, with what you have, where you are." You need not have a special talent or any unusual ability to be a dynamic Christian.

I am reminded of the story of "Ma Lucy's Letters." Ma Lucy was a woman who had always wanted to do something for God, but a large family kept her too busy. She had longed to be a writer and compose powerful articles that would lead people to God. But there were never enough hours in the day for her to leave the chores for a while to write the burning testimony she felt in her heart.

But when she heard about a discouraged serviceman, she did take time to write a hurried letter to him. When her two boys went to college, she never failed to keep a fresh supply of encouragement and inspiration in their mailboxes each week. The people in the old-folk homes and in the city and county hospitals were thrilled by the simple Word of God and the courage they found in Ma Lucy's letters.

Her husband passed away just after the last of her boys graduated from college and left home. Suddenly she found herself with nothing to do -- at last, had time to write.

But now the words wouldn't come. She couldn't put her inspiration on paper. Yet she said a little packet of letters for the postman each morning. Her last months were spent, not writing the dreams of a lifetime, but encouraging a couple 500 miles away who had been having difficulty, comforting the family who had lost a father, and writing to the discouraged young pastor who called her "Mom." When she finally laid her pen down for the last time, the dreamed-of works had not been written.

But from all over the world, telegrams, letters, cards and flowers flooded the little chapel where her body lay. The story they told testified to a much greater work than most of us will ever accomplish.

A successful evangelist wrote, "I was ready to take my life, but I decided to read my mail first. There was a letter that said God was willing and able to meet my needs." Another was from a new mother who said, "We christened Cindy last Sunday. She would never have been born if it hadn't been for those weekly letters that brought my first child and me back together."

Suddenly, everyone realized that Ma Lucy's letters were really a ministry in themselves. Although you may not realize it, little things are often important in getting things done for God. Simply do what you can, with what you have, where you are. You will be amazed at the results.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

The first official congressional action against Cuba since the unsuccessful invasion on April 17 was taken last week when the House of Representatives approved a resolution I had introduced calling for sanctions against the communist government of that island republic. The decisive vote of 404 to 2 left no doubt as to the attitude of the members of the House toward the Castro regime.

Under the Rio Pact, the American republics may resort jointly to the use of sanctions and/or armed force in eliminating a threat to the Hemisphere. The Declaration of Caracas agreed to in 1954 when communism had infiltrated the Guatemalan government, specifically names communism as a threat to the Western Hemisphere. Encouraging the Organization of American States to take collective action against Cuba, the strongly worded resolution charges that the Castro regime has unquestionably accepted the Soviet line in international affairs and thus constitutes a clear and present danger to the entire Hemisphere.

University Free Cuba

Members of the House also acted last week on another resolution dealing with Cuba. It requests that the Administration continue its program of assistance to Cuban refugees who are attending colleges and universities in the United States by making educational loans available to them. It also asks that this assistance program be named "University Free Cuba."

The resolution further requests that the President encourage the Organization of American States to undertake a study of the possible inter-American educational programs at the university level which might contribute to improved knowledge of inter-American affairs. It asks also that the OAS study include an examination of the feasibility of establishing on a permanent basis a University of the Americas.

The resolution is based on the idea that inter-American ties can be strengthened through improved exchange of knowledge among the American republics.

Its passage by voice vote on the same day that the sanctions resolution was approved should indicate to the people of Cuba that, while we are opposed to their communist dominated government, we are at the same time concerned about the welfare of that country's citizens.

Spending Abroad Curbed

If two bills passed by the House last week become law, they are expected to alleviate to some extent the United States balance of payments problem, which is of serious concern to the present Administration. The balance of payments is the ratio of the money Americans invest, spend or loan abroad to the amount of money that citizens of other nations spend or invest in the United States. At the present time more American dollars are being spent abroad than are being returned to the United States, thus causing a steady decline in reserves.

As approved by the House, one of these bills reduces from $500 to $100 the amount of goods a United States tourist returning home from abroad may bring in duty free. It is estimated that the measure could reduce United States tourist spending by $150 million.

The second measure is designed to encourage foreign residents to travel to the United States by authorizing the establishment of an Office on International Travel and Tourism in the U. S. Department of Commerce. The agency would be charged with the responsibility of advertising the United States as a country offering tourist attractions to travelers from abroad.

HOARSENESS

The reason of hoarseness is upon us. Thousands of people will yell themselves hoarse at the baseball game. There are many causes of hoarseness, besides bawling out the umpire. Hoarseness is defined as change in the quality of the normal speaking voice. This change may vary from a slight alteration in tone or timbre to complete loss of voice or aphonia.

Clear utterance is dependent on the ability of the vocal cords to approach one another, draw tense, and vibrate. Interference with these functions will result in hoarseness. Most cases of acute hoarseness are due to laryngitis which usually runs a short course and is easily diagnosed. Chronic hoarseness may be due to one of a number of inflammatory conditions.

Infections which cause hoarseness are not often serious in adults, although in infants they may interfere with breathing, causing the symptom known as croup. Serious causes of laryngitis resulting in hoarseness are tuberculosis, syphilis, and cancer. The larynx and vocal cords may also be inflamed by irritants in the atmosphere. In some persons the vocal cords are so sensitive that changes in atmospheric temperature and humidity cause the cords to swell.

Laryngologists warn against overuse and strain of the voice in shouting. At such times as the voice is even slightly hoarse, it should not be used at all, or the vocal cords may become permanently thickened and the voice permanently coarsened. Persistence of hoarseness beyond a few days should be investigated.

Therefore will we also serve the Lord, for he is our God. — (Josh. 24:18).

We can meet any change in our life and affairs by holding steady with God. We can look to Him for inspiration and guidance and He will lead us in ways that bring success and soul-satisfaction.

We see and hear

by BOB

WE would like to extend a formal invitation to President John F. Kennedy and his brother Bob to look over the "racial intolerance" as it is carried out daily in the vicinity of Chilton County, Alabama, U.S.A. "We have every reason to believe that there are many persons in this community who do not even know what "racial intolerance" is! It is our opinion that to be intolerant of anything, you must first know how to be tolerant. It cannot be said that the Kennedy Brothers do not know how to be intolerable!

We are not very old, and certainly not very wise, especially when it comes to tolerating agitators and "do-gooders" who won't know what the word means. We did learn long time ago, however, that there is no short cut to wisdom. It is gained only through years of experience and tribulation. Recognizing their many other qualities and abilities, we say with all sincerity and conviction that neither of the Kennedy brothers is able to muster up very much wisdom. If they can, they certainly are having one devil of a time doing it! Courage perhaps; wisdom, we have yet to observe any indication of it! Perhaps a tour of the Southland, of which they seem to be such authorities, would greatly improve their wisdom; if so, it would certainly enhance the possibility of human understanding and the Brotherly Love, of which they speak so profusely would prevail!

THE American Yankee (as opposed to the American Southerner) is hard to understand, at least to us Southerners. He apparently feels the need of a federal court to pass laws telling him where to sit, stand, eat and lie down! And with whom! We in the ignorant, decadent South, have always been able to choose our own bedfellows and that includes who we sit, eat and drink with, too. It isn't hard to see why the Southerner wants no part of the Yankee version of freedom and equality!

DEMOCRACY works for the individual rights of man, where Communism works against the individual rights of man in favor of the collective rights of a political line at the sacrifice of the individual and his rights, when deemed necessary. According to the Attorney General of the United States, individual laws of the State of Alabama must be sacrificed for the collective "cause" of internationalism. Theoretically, we are in agreement in the two ideas.

IT would be interesting to know what the people of the South think of the money spent in the past three or four weeks in the State Legislature and just how much of it was for the "Rider" business we don't think people would regret at all the money spent. In fact, they'd consider themselves fortunate indeed!

CONGRATULATIONS to Mr. Chism, son of Mr. and Mrs. "Shine" Chism of Clanton on his chosen to go to Boys State in very near future. He is going to run for Governor of Alabama and we certainly wish him well in this undertaking. Perhaps we get a few pointers by our own Governor during his few days!

AMONG the 91 students registered from Athens College, graduating day is a Chilton County fellow, who has earned his bachelors degree in education degree is James Harold Thornton of Clanton. Congratulations Harold!

Savings Bonds Mount Up In Chilton In April

State Chairman Thad Hold announced today that April E and H Savings Bonds sales in Chilton County amounted to $13,124, bringing sales for the first four months of 1961 up to $86,400, or 32 1/2% of the 1961 goal of $269,000. C. O. Jones serves as County Chairman. State sales for the month total $3,655,998 bringing 1961 sales to date to $15,646,904 or 33% of the $47,400,000 goal.
The Series E Savings Bond became 20 years old this month. It was on May 1, 1941 that Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau sold the first E Bond to the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In recognition of the anniversary, the Treasury Department pays tribute to the advertising and entertainment industries for their continued support of the Savings Bond Program over the years.
The tribute appeared in the form of a public service newspaper and titled "The 20th Century Minute Men Who Help Defend America, one of a monthly series honoring active in support of the Bond program since 1941. The Minute Man has, from the beginning, been the program's symbol.
In 1941, a new breed of Minute Men came to the aid of their country's salute message said. These were to help sell U. S. Savings Bonds, the actors, singers, and musicians who entertained in backed up by millions of people in America's advertising media—newspapers, magazines, radio, television, outdoor, and transit media. Put all the Savings Bond advertising on a dollar basis and it would approach $50 million a year. . . Yet not one penny of this cost is paid by the government or the taxpayer.

May Is Better Hearing Month

Anne Bancroft, honorary chairman of Better Hearing Month in May, looks at a poster bearing her picture containing an invitation to the 15-million hard of hearing Americans to investigate the services of the American Hearing Society. The posters were distributed by the Zenith Radio Corporation in observance of the Society's 33rd annual educational campaign. Miss Bancroft will star in the movie version of the "Miracle Worker," repeating the award winning role she created on Broadway.

"It is a well worn but durable truth that our ability to defend ourselves and our freedoms depends on more than armed might. It depends upon our moral and spiritual strength.

"All these are involved in the Savings Bonds Program. By saving we build reserves to keep our economy strong and growing. By investing part of our savings in these bonds, we help protect our economy against inflation and deflation. The self-discipline of our regular savings helps build spiritual strength.

"These basic strengths are essential to our continued growth as individuals and as a Nation. The volunteer spirit has made the U.S. Savings Bonds program a shining success through these years of defense, war, cold war, and uneasy peace."

GRADUATION DAY is almost here. If you're wondering what you should give that senior, here are some ideas. Extension telephones are among the "most wanted" items and they come in colors to fit almost any preference. The parent who likes to use the phone himself may prefer to give a separate telephone line to that special graduate. The two line home is no longer an oddity. The extra line insures against missing an important business or personal call.

LATEST IN GOOD LIVING—Now your family can enjoy complete home communications with the new Home Telephone that lets you talk from room-to-room, call folks to the phone or to supper without shouting or walking. Another good feature, busy homemakers can also answer the front door without leaving things a moment.

— AND —
YOUR TELEPHONE CAN NOW CHIME! A Bell Chime in your home will announce calls to all your phones with a pleasant musical chime. Or, set it for a louder bell when you go outdoors, or keep the familiar telephone ring if you like. Available in soft gold or ivory. Call for more information about these new telephone conveniences.

Sheila, A Little Girl with Great Courage, Invents A Game, 'Let's Play Sunday School'

Sheila Nelson of Minneapolis, a blue-eyed and brunette young lady of five years whose cherubic face is generously seasoned with freckles, has just invented a game called "Let's Play Sunday School."

The reason for this bit of little-girl contrivance is that Sheila no longer can walk to the Lutheran Church half a block up the hill from her home. And because of sidewalk bumps, it's equally excruciating to get her to her real Sunday school by wheel chair propelled by her mother.

Indeed, she may never be able to make her way again to that house of worship at the top of the hill, a journey's end that seems more unattainable with each painful passing day. So Sheila today must "make believe" about Sunday school at home.

Severe rheumatoid arthritis of the neck, hands, wrists, knees and feet, cruelly intensified in recent weeks, account for her inability to travel up that hill to church on the Sabbath, to listen to biblical stories and to scissor paper cut-outs of Noah's ark "with everything that creepeth upon the earth," together with lambs and kneeling camels and other figures of the Nativity.

Another 30,000 children in the nation each year are in the same aching predicament as Sheila, the answer to which The National Foundation is seeking today with March of Dimes contributions.

"It's difficult to believe," says Mrs. Ronald Nelson, the child's mother, "but many of my neighbors just won't believe that children are stricken by arthritis. They actually tell me—after all my experience with Sheila—that arthritis is a disease that only the old folks get."

Two years of caring day and night for Sheila have taught her attractive mother that juvenile rheumatoid arthritis is a long way removed from harmless "growing pains." Mrs. Nelson, her husband and two other children are often awakened in the night by Sheila's outcries although much of the time the child beats back her tears and fears. Once a week, Mrs. Nelson and Sheila travel tedious miles across Minneapolis to the March of Dimes-supported Children's Rheumatism Clinic of the University of Minnesota. There scientists study any blood changes in Sheila and, under the almost astronomical magnification of electron microscopy, also study specimens of tissue and fluid from her knee. For her part, at the clinic, the mother takes lessons in home physical therapy for the child.

Sheila is a withdrawn and tongue-tied little girl most of the time, her mother says, "but the cat doesn't have her tongue on Sundays when she opens her Sunday school class here at home. We think the likely reason for this is that when she was able to go to our church until some months ago, that was the one time and place where she somehow blossomed. If she did have pain then, and that was often so, she was just spunky enough not to let the Sunday school teacher and the other kids know about it."

Through the exercise of prodigious badgering, a stranger was admitted to Sheila's "at home" Sunday school a Sunday ago. Dressed in her blue organdy best and seated on the living room couch, the young lady was recounting with appropriate gestures the story of Jonah and the Whale to a wholly imaginary audience of others of her small fry generation.

With March of Dimes contributions, The National Foundation has been able to establish four arthritis study centers across the nation and has made an additional 50 research grants in this one field. But more such centers and grants are needed if Sheila is to climb back up the hill to her real-life Sunday school; and if the torments of the other 30,000 child victims of rheumatoid arthritis is to end.

Southern Baptist Convention May 22-26

Also the Pastor's Conference will meet Monday afternoon and evening May 22. The Convention proper will meet Tuesday through Friday, May 23-26. Vacation Bible School Circle 5 WSCS Met With Mrs. Wilkerson Vacation Bible School is considered by the Chilton-Unity Association of churches as one of the great methods to teach and train the youth in the nature and admonition of the Lord, (Eph. 6:4). Many of the churches have already secured the books and other necessary supplies have enlisted the faculty and are about ready to begin the school Monday, May 29, or a week or so later. All 54 churches having a vacation Bible school this summer is the goal.

Along with all this, the American farmer is the most efficient of his profession in the world. Because he is free man, making his own decisions, competing with his neighbors and other businesses, he produces enough food and fiber for himself and 23 other people, leaving all the rest of these people to produce the things that have helped this nation attain the highest standard of living of any nation in the world.

Curry Moody Is 10 Years Old

It was a happy occasion for Curry Moody on Monday, May 22 when he celebrated his 10th birthday. Some of his friends came home with him from school. His mother, M. A. Arthur Moody had his birthday cake all ready. The white cake was decorated in yellow holding 10 yellow candles. The boys were served cake, ice cream cones and mints at first. They then went for a treasure hunt for the presents. After finding them, they enjoyed playing ball.

The boys helping Curry celebrate his birthday were: Gary Godwin, Mike Hand, Wendal Hand and Sam Gladden.

2,193 Pensioners Now In Chilton

At the end of last year, 2,193 pensioners in Chilton County were receiving old-age, survivors, and disability in surance payments under the Federal Social Security System. The total payments to these people in December, 1960 was $100,295.00 per month according to Cecil L. Simpson, manager of the Birmingham district social security office. There is an increase in the number of people receiving benefits of a little over 12 percent over the same month

last year, he said.
Nationally, almost 15 million people were receiving about a billion dollars in monthly old-age, survivors, and disability insurance benefits at the close of 1960.
1960 was the 20th year that social security benefits were payable and the 25th anniversary of the Social Security Act, which became law in 1935.

The social security manager points out that changes in the law since 1935 have brought more than nine out of every ten people in the United States under the protection of old age, survivors, and disability insurance. It is expected that more than 75 million persons will work and earn social security credits in 1961, several thousands of which are in Chilton County.

Shell test drivers add a "fifth wheel" to their cars for precise distance measurement during mileage tests. It helps them record performance to a decimal point.

Shell reveals how to increase your mileage up to 30 extra miles per tankful

Here are some tips from Shell's experts on how to get maximum mileage from your car. If you practice these good driving habits—and if you use today's Super Shell, with 9 ingredients for top performance—you may well save a pretty penny on gasoline bills.

1. Don't race a cold engine.

When your engine is cold, it uses up more fuel. Today's Super Shell contains Pentane mix—for fast warm-up. (A properly operating thermostat helps.)

2. Use a light touch with the ac- celerator.

Topping down on the pedal is an expensive habit.
Starting up, it holds your automatic transmission in a lower "gear" longer. This makes the engine turn faster, wasting fuel.
Under way, uneven pedal pressure is costly, too. Instead, feed just enough fuel to maintain even speed.

3. Drive "ahead of your car."

Watch for slowing traffic and red lights as far ahead as you can see. You'll be able to coast up to the stopping cars, instead of braking heavily when you get there.

4. Don't let fuel costs creep up.

If your car "creeps" when idling with the automatic transmission engaged, have your engine idle speed adjusted. You may save plenty.

5. Don't indulge in jack rabbit starts. Racing starts are fine on race tracks—but the drivers are lucky to get 6 miles per gallon.

NOTE: One thing you can't do anything about is the weather.
Yet it's interesting to know that air resistance at high car speed is the biggest single drain on power. It increases approximately as the cube of the vehicle speed.
Even fox tails on aerials may cost you gasoline.

6. Check tire pressure—regularly.
Keep tires properly inflated.
Under-inflated tires increase drag and friction and cut mileage. Not to mention extra tread wear.

NOTE: Tire pressures build up during a long run. Don't let air out to bring the pressure down —it makes the tires run even hotter. Check cool tires only.

7. Check for dragging brakes.
Have your Shell dealer check for wheel drag next time you're in for a lubrication. If brakes drag, you pay for it every mile you drive.

8. Get these fuel-saving adjust- ments for top performance.

Spark timing is off, for example, you pay for it in wasted gasoline and possible engine damage.

Have the compression checked —it can reveal power-wasting valve and ring conditions.

Use Super Shell with TCP* to give spark plugs extra life. Replace worn plugs.

Adjust carburetor for correct air-fuel mixture and proper idle speed.

Have automatic choke checked for correct operation.
Clean or replace filters for air, fuel, oil whenever manufacturer recommends.

Have automatic transmission or clutch checked regularly.

9. Get regular oil changes and lubrication—including transmission and differential. Your Shell dealer knows what to do. He has the finest equipment and lubricants to do it with. There's a good chance your car and your gasoline will last longer.

10. Show this advertisement to everyone who drives your car —especially if you pay their gasoline bills. Insist that they stop for service at the sign of the Shell.

While we can't guarantee 30 extra miles per tankful, the closer these suggestions are followed the better your mileage is likely to get.

To start off right, fill up with today's Super Shell. Its nine ingredients mean top performance.

Super Shell's 9 ingredients

- #1 is TCP for restored power, added mileage and extended plug-life.
- #2 is "cat-cracked" gasoline for power with a purr.
- #3 is Butane for quick starts at all times.
- #4 is Alkylate, noted for knock control in hot engines at high speeds.
- #5 is anti-knock mix for knock resistance.
- #6 is an "anti-icer" to check the cold-weather stalling that can occur even at 45° F.
- #7 is Pentane mix for fast warm-ups.
- #8 is gum preventive—to help keep carburetors clean inside.
- #9 is Platformate—to add the extra energy that shows up as extra mileage.

Try Super Shell. You'll soon feel and hear the difference in the way your engine runs. That difference is top performance.

RADIOLOGICAL MONITORING is one of the principal courses stressed today by most civil defense organizations as a preparation for saving life from radioactive fallout which could follow a nuclear attack. A corps of citizen specialists is being trained to measure fallout and forewarn the public. New laws allowing the Federal Government to assume half the costs of hiring more State and local civil defense workers are now speeding this and other CD programs. In the top picture, Robert S. Ritz (far right in audience), new Illinois Civil Defense Agency training officer under the shared-cost program, sits in on a monitoring course in Evanston taught by Mrs. Laura Nissen, the city's training, information and radio-logical defense officer. She also has recently become a paid employee, selected to devote full time to civil defense under the financial aid program. Ritz later worked the material obtained at Evanston into a similar course at the underground Du Page County Civil Defense control center near Wheaton, Ill. (bottom). (OCDM Photo)

WAFFLE SANDWICHES with Savory Fruited Filling

Bake up a batch of waffles. Now while they're still smoking serve them, two to a serving, with this hot, thick and savory filling spread between the waffles, and on top.
The filling is a mixture of canned apple sauce—for apple tang and rich body—of solid little cubes of ham, of raisins... with butter sautéed onions and a smidgen of ground cloves for added zest. You simmer the whole sturdy blend. Then spread it in great spoonfuls on the waffles... and fall to. The pleasure is real and all yours!

Filling	Waffles
2 tablespoons butter	2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1/4 cup chopped onion	1 tablespoon baking powder
2 cups canned apple sauce	1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves	2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 cup seedless raisins	2 eggs separated
1 1/4 cups milk	1 1/4 cups milk
1 1/4 cups diced cooked ham	6 tablespoons melted shortening

Or use a Waffle Mix

Filling:
Melt butter and saute onion until light brown; add apple sauce, cloves and raisins, simmer 3 minutes. Add ham and simmer 3 minutes longer.

Waffles:
Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Beat egg yolks; add milk. Combine with dry ingredients, mixing until smooth. Add shortening. Beat egg whites stiff; fold in. If waffle mix is used, blend according to directions on package. Bake according to manufacturers' directions for operating waffle iron. Serve apple sauce filling between waffles. Makes 4 servings.

areas which in the past were beyond reach of the dairyman. The new facilities have enabled some in-state supplies to be transported regularly 150 to 200 miles from the farm to city processing plants. For instance, much of the milk produced in the Black Belt counties is processed and consumed in Birmingham and Mobile. These technological developments have made it possible for dairymen nearly anywhere in the state to be within reach of a fluid market.

who are not able to make a living from farming or who do not wish to be fully employed in agriculture. If we are to achieve the high degree of resource use that is needed to raise income, we must use the combined efforts of all farm, industry, business, education, and government groups. These groups must be combined in a common effort and work toward common goals.

We believe that a vigorous program of rural resource development would provide a vehicle whereby the total educational resources of Auburn University, Alabama's land-grant college, could be channeled into programs of economic development throughout the state.

I want to emphasize my firm belief and confidence in our collective ability—that is, the ability of all of us—to solve our problems and other resources such as our environment in rural Alabama. The heart of our problem is in the use of land and other economic resources, particularly rural resources, in the most efficient manner.

The manner in which we use our resources always involves choices. It is my firm belief that here in Alabama we can, by working together in a program of rural resource development, find a more effective method of selecting in an administrative, private initiative, and private decision-making which will prove profitable to us.

Good Cows Pay More

By R. Sam Jones, Jr.
Extension Dairyman

HIGH income per $100 expense is the key to higher profits from dairying. In 1960 Alabama Dairymen reported an average net farm income of $10,000 per cow, including labor expense, $145 was returned as income in herds averaging over 11,000 pounds of milk per cow and $106 was returned in herds averaging only 6,000 pounds of milk per cow. A farm business is not likely to pay much for management unless it has at least $125 of income per cow. To include all cash costs, depreciation, and hired labor or an allowance for operator's labor.

DHIA records show that feed cost makes up the largest single cost item in producing milk. Herds averaging 6,000 pounds had a feed cost of $140 per cow in 1960 while the feed cost in herds averaging 12,000 pounds was $280. The net income per cow after all costs, including labor, were deducted was quite different—only $21 at the 6,000-pound level and a whopping $213 at the 12,000-pound level.

ly. Based on the 1959 Census of Agriculture, there were 57,745 commercial farms in Alabama. Of this number, 8,640 farms had cash sales above $10,000, and only 3,811 had sales over $20,000. Since 1960 grade-A dairymen averaged almost a third of the largest commercial farms in the dairy business. Actually, total farm sales from the dairy enterprise would be higher than $20,000 when the sales value of cull cows and calves is added.

Although grade-A milk producers are located in almost every county in the state, most herds are in a relatively small number of counties. As milk is a highly perishable and bulky product, major areas of supply have developed. Half of the total number of producers are in only 10 counties. The large dairy counties in number of producers are near the larger cities and in the Black Belt.

In recent years, dairying has grown in these

HYBRID PLUMS. Several hybrid plum varieties show promise in quality, firmness, color, and resistance to local production. These hybrid plums have been evaluated at Auburn for the last five years. Varieties are available with ripening dates beginning in early June and continuing through mid-July. A well-planned orchard could provide a market supply for six weeks.

PEPPER DISEASES. Anthracnose and ripe rot look similar on ripe red pimiento peppers and cause heavy losses some years. The fungus organisms that cause these diseases may be seed-borne or soil-borne and are spread by rain and insects. To prevent the diseases, do not plant in fields that had peppers the year before, and use clean spray. Seed treated with mercuric chloride has given good control in Alabama studies. Application is begun when the first fruit begins to turn red and repeated at 7- to 10-day intervals during the rest of the season.

PROCESSING BLUEBERRIES. Blueberries can be processed for year-round use. Canned or frozen Rabbiteye blueberries used as a fruit dessert or in pies rated high in quality in Auburn research. For freezing, washed berries can be packaged dry or in a 40 per cent sugar syrup. The berries can be canned by regular method using 25 per cent sugar syrup with final 15-minute processing in boiling water.

LAY-BY WEED CONTROL. Five experiments were done in 1959 and 1960 controlling weeds in blueberry fields. Six herbicides at different rates were tested. Based on the results, diuron (Karmex) is recommended at one pound per acre and GIPC at six pounds per acre. Both compounds gave good control of weeds. Do not plant fall crops after lay-by treatment, since they may be damaged by the chemicals.

VEGETABLE MARKETING. Meeting requirements of vegetable buyers is necessary for top profits by producers. Buyer demands are rapidly changing. Producers should be able to produce items and have prospects for profits on produce items sold. Research with marketing firms shows opportunities for improvement in product selection and quality, market preparation, and care in handling items offered for sale.

MISTING CUTTINGS AND SEEDS. Drying of seed or cuttings is a major reason for failure when propagating flowering plants with seed or cuttings. Watering with a mist spray is an easy way to prevent this, according to results of Auburn studies. Although continuous misting is not desirable, periodic misting has been excellent. Mist propagation can be used in the greenhouse or outdoors.

MILLET FOR STEERS. Although Starr millet can carry a large number of animals for a short time, gain per animal on the crop is low. In an Auburn Agricultural Experiment Station study, millet provided an average of 44 pounds of gain per steer on only 48 pounds per acre. Gain per steer was only 48 pounds during the millet-grazing period. There was no improvement in grade while the steers grazed millet.

Increase Income

Use Insecticide At Proper Time

By Walter H. Grimes
Extension Entomologist

EVEN though Alabama farmers did an above average job of controlling cotton insects last year, the boll weevil alone cost us over $20 million. And this doesn't include the more than $10 million that was spent for insecticides and their application.

Control recommendations for 1961 have been divided into three phases. Last month we discussed the first two—controlling insects during the seedling stage and at the time of squaring stage. This month we'll discuss the major fruiting season.

It is important that cotton insects be controlled throughout the season when damaging infestations occur. However, perhaps the most important time for controlling fruiting insects is during and after the first fruiting. It is not uncommon to lose as much as one-fourth to one-half per acre by abandoning the control program before the crop is mature.

Boll weevil and bollworm control is usually necessary in most fields every year. To obtain maximum benefits from the control program, the grower must know the insect situation that exists in his field at all times and gear his control program to it. There is only one way to do this—make infestation counts at least once each week and more often in critical periods when the weather is rainy and when hatchouts occur. Although they may vary slightly from year to year, emergence of first generation weevils can be expected during the last 10 days of June in South Alabama, the first 10 days of July in Central Alabama, and between July 10 and 20 in North Alabama.

Begin the boll weevil control program when the first weevils are found. Make three applications of insecticide at five-day intervals. When the infestations again rise to 10 per cent, control the boll weevil. There are many other insects that should be controlled. The bollworm should be controlled when the first larvae are found. Make three applications of insecticide at five-day intervals. When the infestations again rise to 10 per cent, control the bollworm. There are many other insects that should be controlled.

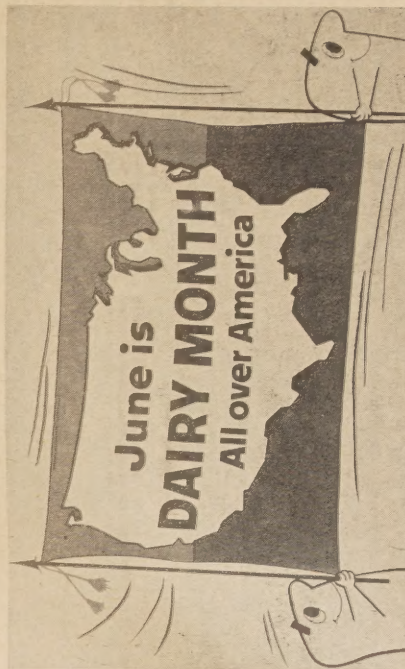

Insecticides or insecticidal mixtures recommended for use on cotton are for control of bollworm and bollworm. However, if it is found that bollworm is a problem and weevil infestations are not DDT, endrin, or Sevin to control bollworm.

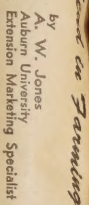

The spider mite problem is no longer restricted to the Tennessee Valley and Sand Mountain areas. It may become a problem in any area of the state this year. These pests may be present at any time during the growing season, but usually the most damage occurs during the major fruiting period. Spider mites are extremely small, and it is almost impossible to determine their presence without the aid of magnification the oldest, best known, and most effective promotional effort that goes along with the growing distribution, and utilization of any product. And its importance increases year by year.

Then, too, June is usually the month of heaviest milk production. Climate, high quality grazing, and possibly the biology of the cow combine to make this the most ideal production period of the year.

Dairyproducts help stretch the food dollar. The real price of a quart of milk is not represented by the number of cents required to pay for it, but by the amount of work it takes to earn enough money to buy it. Today, the real price of milk is declining. For example, in 1890 the average price per quart million. Not only were yields the highest in the state's history, but also the 146,000 acres planted in beans represent the largest acreage ever planted in the state for oil purposes. According to the specialist, soybeans now rank fifth when compared in value to all crops grown in the state.

last year's crop averaged 24 bushels per acre, and now Alabama ranks ninth nationally in terms of soybean yields per acre.

"Planting soybeans is also better than planting corn in a lot of ways," adds Bond.

These figures illustrate graphically the need for better understanding about the value of dairy products. This is why June Dairy Month is so important to each of the 182 million of us. It's something that all of us can help with and benefit from.

usually buying this essential well-taken care of. In the case of dairy products. Next, the product must be processed, put in convenient form, and placed where people can buy it. (No product is more readily distributed and kept before producers than milk and other dairy products.) Last is a sustained promotion to show people how they will benefit from using the product. (June Dairy Month is the best example we have of such promotion—advertising, new items, radio, TV, and personal mailings from the millions of people producing, handling, distributing, and serving milk to provide effective means of creating a sustained momentum in high-level milk consumption.)

June Is Dairy Month

Cool Off With Ice Cream

By Gay Phillips

IF everyone in your family is complaining about the heat, then cool 'em all down with ice cream. And when it's too hot to bother with complicated recipes and stifling ovens, what could be easier for you?

The fact that ice cream is a nutritious food should be gratifying to all nutrition-conscious folks, too. Amount of protein, calcium, vitamin A, and riboflavin. Can you think of a more painless or pleasing way to consume all of these important nutrients?

Ice cream evokes such terrific compliments and is so universally well loved to have several cartons of it in your freezer. In fact, with half gallon packages on the market, there's no need for your supply to run low. Then you'll have a dessert available that will please both dad and the youngsters. For variety, have several different flavors on hand to suit individual whims.

Dressed up with a simple slight of hand trick, ice cream is the ideal treat for June parties for every age group. In fact, ice cream is recommended by the American Dairy Association.

For the kids, it's a captivating ice cream clown guaranteed to turn a party into a three ring circus and add extra bites of fun. An ice cream clown is really a snap to make—with a ball of ice cream for the roly-poly body and a homemade or purchased clown head for the top. Make the head of a paper or styrofoam ball and hand painted faces, the eyes, nose, and ear, and the ears are candied silly attached with wooden picks.

Semi-sweet chocolate pieces pressed against the ice cream ball form a gay row of buttons. While for dress up, nothing is quite as sprightly as a ruffly collar of brightly white coconut. Nestle the clown on a bed of light or tinted shredded coconut for a treat that's delightful to the eye and tummy.

Here's what you need:

PHILLIPS

PARTY CLOWNS

- 1 pint chocolate or strawberry ice cream
- 1 1/2 cups moist shredded coconut
- 15 semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- 5 purchased paper clown heads

For each clown, form ice cream ball; put 3 chocolate pieces in a row on side for buttons. Place on flat surface for storage; freeze firm. When ready to serve, spread 1/4 cup coconut in a circle on each serving plate; place ice cream in center. Top each ball of ice cream with a paper clown head. Makes 5 clowns.

Mint Julep Ice Cream Soda

The teen set will be wowed by a frosty cool mint julep ice cream soda. You'll need a sky scraper of a soda glass; a dash of peppermint extract; a drop or two of green food coloring; chilled, carbonated beverage; and a liberal amount of vanilla ice cream. In the soda glass, thoroughly combine a generous scoop of vanilla ice cream with the peppermint extract and green food coloring. Then fill the glass two-thirds full with cold, carbonated beverage. Add two more large scoops of ice cream and fill the glass to the top with the carbonated beverage. Then, for the added dash, garnish with a fresh mint sprig or even frosted mint leaves.

Hog Producers and Packers Must Please The Homemaker

By Ray Caverder
Specialist in Meats Marketing

LIKE puppets on a string, livestock producers, meat processors, and retailers are moved by consumer action.

In the livestock and meat industry, lines of communications take the place of puppet strings; however, they serve a similar purpose, that of directing the movement of the industry.

Through these communication lines, consumers' needs and desires are being met. A steady flow of information about consumer likes and dislikes and their over-all attitudes toward meat and meat products. And just as a puppet cannot work properly when a string is broken, likewise a break in communication lines or mere failure of a production group to respond to messages can be disastrous.

Think back over the years at the long list of products that have disappeared from the market because the public refused to purchase them. It's seldom ruled murder, but consumers deal the death blow.

The livestock and meat industry can ill afford such a fate for any of its products. "Complacency today—out of business tomorrow" is a little saying worth keeping in mind.

CAVERDER

The Road Back for Pork

"Packers, marketing agencies, and producers can work together for mutual benefit. Meat is bought on impulse in the supermarket and it has to look nice; therefore, quality in all livestock programs is a must." This is how Harold Abrams, Jefferson County meat packer and director in the Alabama Abrams, Packers Association, summed it up.

For the past three years, Abrams' company, producers and county agents in the Leeds area have been cooperating in an intensive educational program to improve market hog quality and increase local production. Spurring before the Mississippi Swine Producers Association is the Alabama Swine Producers Association.

Looking to profit from working together on livestock and meat marketing programs. He stated, "Hog producers should take advantage of the help available from the Extension Service and cooperate with the State Meat Packers Association to develop quality hogs. This can mean more profit to the individual and economic stability in the industry." He told how the cooperative marketing program in the Leeds area has increased the number of high quality hogs bought locally for slaughter—from 200 to an average of 4,000 to 5,000 monthly.

Help Yourself with the Right Model

"In our contacts with producers, we stress type, not breed. And our company policy is top prices for top quality," states Abrams. "The old saying that a hog is just a hog is out of date. Hogs are different and, likewise, the type of pork they produce is different."

A hog's value is determined by its grade which suggests the yield and quality of the pork from the hog and muscling are important factors affecting the yield of the four lean high-priced cuts. The number of pounds of carcass produced for each 100 pounds culd.

Look Around and Look Ahead

One producer couldn't see how his neighbor could afford to pay $150 to $200 for the performance tested boars he used. Eventually these hog producers weren't very neighborly. Otherwise, he couldn't have missed noticing that his neighbor was fattening bred sows. His neighbor could have also shown him records where he had cut cost of production at least $1.50 per head on each market hog. Too long we have overlooked these advantages and shirked our responsibility to produce a type of pork that today's consumers readily accept.

The worn out excuse, "Better quality hogs don't bring any more at the market—so why should I bother to change," is a misconception among some and the wrong attitude for progress. It will do the industry and producers little good to fret about this detail when one day the lean up and kind pork so far out of the consumer picture that it's virtually unobtainable. Sure, we're making progress, but it will come a lot faster if producers, packers, markets, and others work together for a larger pork market.

of live weight is also an important factor. Weight affects value as it may influence dressing percentage and the size and yield of cuts available for the packer to sell.

The hog that has the greatest market value and that can be grown cheaper under most feeding systems is produced by a sound breeding and feeding program at the farm. It's high time we realized that the well muscled, good doing kind can be grown cheaper than offspring from fat type breeding. These savings in costs of production at the farm are often greater than the difference in cut-out values.

Just as the 1940 model hog is out of style, so is the market out of date that continues to buy hogs on a weight basis, paying little or no attention to differences in meatiness and quality. It just stands to reason as hog producers move forward with quality programs, more and more will be selling at markets that sort and buy hogs on a quality basis.

Eat More Pork - Indoors And Out - During Summer Months

LISTEN, Mrs. Homemaker, don't face another summer of hot weather letdown! Help to avoid it by including more pork in your family meals. The approach of summer is no reason to eliminate this important food from your list. On the contrary, there is good reason to believe you should include more during the hot summer months.

This seems strange to those who always feel pork is strictly a winter meat and should not be eaten during the summer months. To explain why pork is a good summer meat, let's take a look at the food value found in this delicious meat. Thiamine is a vitamin, in many foods, but pork is one of the very few foods in which we find an abundance of this vitamin.

One of the chief functions of thiamine is to assist in the breakdown of glucose (sugar) in the tissues of the body to supply energy. It is absorbed readily from the intestinal tract and excreted in the urine.

Thiamine, therefore, helps dispose of some of the poisons causing fatigue, increases appetite, improves digestion, maintains healthy nerve tissue, and keeps up the vigor of heart muscles.

Even a moderate shortage of this hard-to-get vitamin will cause fatigue, apathy or lack of interest, loss of appetite, nausea, and even personality disturbances such as moodiness, irritability, and depression.

Take a look at yourself, your family, and see if you have any of these symptoms. Help to avoid them by including more thiamine in your diet. Lean pork is one of the very best sources of this important vitamin.

Use more lean pork for indoor and outdoor cooking, but remember to cook pork thoroughly before eating. You will find many helpful suggestions on using pork for outdoor cooking in the Auburn University Extension Service Circular, "Fun With Outdoor Cooking." Ask for it at your county agent's office.

Surely someone knows who has these suits and would be glad to turn them in if they only knew the true situation is - not money to replace them and time is short.

If you know the whereabouts of these uniforms, please call Bob Fullen, 103-W or the Radio Station 443 if you can't bring them and we will be glad to pick them up.

My husband is a businessman-farmer and like thousands of other Chilton Countians we have a family that is dependent on us.

We take our financial and savings problems seriously, because we know that our boy here, and his two sisters will not always have us to look out for them.

Since Tommy and Teresa and Faye were big enough to know the difference we have taught them to save, systematically and faithfully at the Peoples Savings Bank in Clanton. It not only gives us pride in our family, but we have found that the folks at Peoples just know how to handle your business and they do it so courteously and efficiently.

We do all our banking business with them, and believe me, it has paid us time and again. They have financed many things for us and we have a savings account that grows regularly. It's a good feeling to save . . . and a better feeling when you can trust the business you are saving it with.

Freeman Farm Bill. I have tried not to over simplify, but to make it factual.

I would like to call your attention to the fact that since the present administration has taken over in Washington, it has been clearly demonstrated that they are interested in the welfare of the farm people. The support price of soy beans has been raised 45c per bushel, cotton seed has been raised 71.00 per ton, lint cotton has been raised $3.00 to $7.00 per bale, and peanuts raised $27.00 per ton. Based on 1960 production, this would mean approximately 13 million dollars additional income to Alabama farmers.

R. C. "Red" Bamberg
Commissioner of Agriculture and Ind.

A. The Kennedy Farm Program is really an enabling act that seeks to enable producers to design their own farm program, run it past the Secretary and the Congress, vote it in and administer it if they wish to do so.

2. What is the difference between this program and previous Agricultural legislation?

A. The difference is that this program shifts the emphasis from the Department back to the farmer to write his own program.

3. There is talk that this proposal will give the Secretary of Agriculture too much power.

A. This bill actually takes away from the Secretary prerogatives and power that he now enjoys. For the past forty years, Secretaries of Agriculture have been initiating farm policy proposals and agricultural legislation and lobbying these bills would require that the Secretaries propose through Congress. This tary, even if he wished to start a program of any type for any commodity, advise and consult with a National Advisory Committee which Committee would be selected by County ASC Committeemen. Therefore, the Secretary has in effect through this bill given up his prerogative of initiating farm programs.

In addition, if a National Farmer Committee close to the marketing order route of a program this bill provides machinery for a farmer group to actually administer and run their program from day-to-day with the Department coming in only to assist them with enforcement.

4. Is it not true that this bill would give a Farmer Committee and the Secretary power to set a price support program and run it Congress with Congresses only having a negative or veto power over the proposal.

A. As presently written this bill would allow a committee to draft a program for compensatory payments or for price support, get it approved by the Secretary and send it to Congress for approval or disapproval. However, the Secretary now has that power for all agricultural commodities without consulting a committee or without running the proposal through Congress.

withing the limits of the Triple A Act of 1938 as revised by the Agricultural Act of 1949. Any power of this sort is of course limited by the money provided by the Congress for the program. Therefore, even if a committee of an industry and the Secretary did get such a program approved by Congress it could not operate from year-to-year without Congress providing the money. Therefore, Congress still has complete control over this type proposal.

5. With this procedure for setting up farm programs what are the safeguards to prevent every commodity group in American agriculture from rushing headlong into some unwise program?

A. Every program before being adopted must overcome about six major hurdles.

1. Action must be requested by a group of producers of a commodity.

2. The group of farmers called together or the committee must design and recommend a program.

3. It must be approved by the Secretary.

4. If it is a commodity-wide program or involves supply adjustment it must be approved by the President.

5. It must be approved by the Congress.

6. It goes to the farmers who produce the commodity concerned for referendum and must be approved by two-thirds of those voting.

These are six major hurdles that any farmers of any commodity must go through to get a program under the Agricultural Act of 1949.

6. It has been charged that this program would regiment American agriculture.

A. If all other industries in America are now regimented upon this legislation would allow producers of an agricultural commodity to regiment themselves; because this proposal is merely the machinery whereby the farmers who produce a particular commodity may get together and set up their own self-regulation program to regulate themselves and the tools provided are the same tools as used by most other businesses, industries and professions in America. If the supply control operated by the steel industry, the restriction on entry into the profession operated by the lawyers, the restrictions of the medical profession and the cut-backs on production in the automobile industry are regimentation then this bill would allow agriculture to have the same regimentation.

7. If this bill is enacted and a poultry group from some other region of the country comes forward to set up a program could they not put in marketing quotas and drive the Southeast out of the poultry business?

A. No! First, any marketing quota set up under this bill could only go back up to five years in setting a base quota. Alabama and the rest of the Southeast has been important in the broiler industry for more than five years. Second, it is an impossibility under this bill for any poultry group to set up a poultry program without satisfying the needs and demands of the Southeast because no Southeast has veto power in any such program. This is because no program can be approved except through a referendum in which two-thirds of the producers voting must vote yes. The Southeast now has far more than one-third of the producers and the volume of production in broilers and as much as one-third of the producers and the volume of eggs. Therefore, the Southeast could prevent the passage of any program that it did not like.

8. Would this not enable the big cotton producers of the West and Southwest to take cotton away from Alabama and the Southeast?

A. No. The big cotton producers of the West and Southwest could not design and vote in a program that was inequitable or that worked against the Southeast because they do not have enough votes to do so. They actually have more votes in Congress for their ideas than they have among producers. There are more producers in several counties in Georgia than there are in the entire State of California.

9. The price support programs have only been operated for a few basic crops why then does this Agricultural Act of 1949 propose to allow the farmer who produce any agricultural product to set up their own regulatory program?

A. Because American farmers due to their efficiency have developed the ability to produce enough foods and fibers today for about 300,000,000 people while we only have 100,000,000 people to purchase these foods and fibers. Only beef cattle and two or three tree fruits lack the ability to produce this every year enough foods and fibers for 300,000,000 people. Our Land Grant Colleges and our Agricultural Research Services tell us that our productive capacity is more likely to increase relative to population than it is to decrease. Therefore, the problem promises to be with use for several years to come.

10. People generally have faith in Secretary Freeman's sincerity and his desire to do a good job for the happen under this Act if we ever American-farmer but what would get a bad Secretary?

A. The answer is that this Act includes more limitation and safeguards on the Secretary's actions than the present laws do. This Act actually requires that the Secretary form and consult with a National Advisory Committee in any commodity. It further requires a referendum before any program can be enacted. In addition, this producer advisory committee could recommend a program which called for the producers themselves to administer the actions from day to day and year to year.

11. Is this program not somewhat similar to the Alabama Milk Control Board Program?

A. Yes. This program is a self help program under which farmers design and adopt their own program. The only difference is that under the Milk Control Program minimum prices are set to the producer as well as the consumer. Under this program farmers would be able to secure a fair price through effecting the supply and demand for their product rather than by administering the price itself.

12. What protection would livestock people have that feed grain people or producers of protein meals would not design a program unfair to them?

A. The protection is that all programs must be approved by the Secretary, the President and the Congress.

13. What assurance do we have that the producers of one livestock product wouldn't adopt a program and causes their prices to be unduly high due to a low quota?

A. The best assurance we have that the turkey producers will never get their quota too low is that the hog producers and broiler producers do not have a program. No producer group wants to price themselves out of the market.

14. What will happen to state self-help programs such as the Alabama Milk Control Act or the Alabama Peanut Promotion Program under this law?

A. This law would not appeal or replace any existing state programs. State Programs would be able to continue operating even if a national program were adopted under this law.

15. What protection has the farmer that some small crackpot group could not institute a program covering the commodities and crops he produces?

A. The protection is that any program must be voted in by two-thirds of the producers concerned. It is not likely that any crackpot group could command the leadership of two thirds of an entire industry. In addition, before the Secretary would form a national committee action must be requested by a reasonable group.

16. Would the farmer not be put in a bad position of having to approve a poor program or having no program?

A. The farmer's protection is that the program will be designed by a committee of farmers in the first instance. Therefore, if poor alternatives are presented to the farmer it is because a farmers committee designed them. If farmers can't trust each other who can they trust?

17. Would not the adoption of marketing quota programs continue to drive producers off the land?

A. If we continue to have economic progress in this country we will continue to have a smaller percentage of our working force of people engaged in agriculture as well as in steel, aluminum and other basic industries. However, programs of this nature would give the farmer a quota right to sell when he leaves agriculture which would help cushion his move. A farmer could go out of production with a shirt on his back instead of bankrupt.

18. Could quotas be transferred between states or between counties?

A. This would depend upon whether or not the farmer committee recommended such a proposal and it was approved in referendum of producers. It has been suggested that the Congress may amend this program to prohibit the transfer of quotas between state and to allow it between counties only when approved by the County ASC Committee.

19. Under these marketing orders with a producer and/or handler board running the program from day-to-day and month-to-month isn't the Congress delegating legislative authority?

A. The Congress of the United States has been delegating this same type of legislative authority for 25 years under Federal Marketing Orders and Agreements. For example, the citrus people in California and the citrus people in Florida have been running their own

Youth Rally At Oak Grove June 17

The Associational Youth Rally will meet at the Oak Grove Baptist Church, located two miles north of Jenison, June 17, 7:30 p.m. A foreign Missionary, Home on furlough will be the speaker, which will add to a very fine program which was planned by the leaders, Rev. Royace Ballard, president, and Rev. J. T. Tolar program chairman, and co-workers. The adult youth leaders of each church should provide transportation for the youth of each church to attend this very important meeting at Oak Grove Baptist Church.

marketing order programs for about 20 years. Under these programs they actually restrict the quality of the product that can be sold and in addition they set marketing quotas on handlers for shipments from day-to-day and week to week. All of which has been extremely successful and no one has thought to question the fact that boards made up of producers and handlers are actually exercising a quasi-legislative function and operating by virtue of authority delegated to them by the Congress through the Secretary of Agriculture.

AFTER viewing some of the graduation exercises this year we were again reminded of how long it has been since we donned our cap and gown. It doesn't help us enjoy the proceedings a'tall!

WE honor that great Southerner, Jefferson Davis on the anniversary of his birthday, June 3, which falls on Saturday this year. Now we're not a student of "Jeff Davis History" but we have stood on the spot where he was inaugurated, quite an honor; and he has a hotel named after him as well as a museum in his honor at the State Capitol. He must have been a pretty good fellow!

Perspective For Parents--

THE recent death on the diamond of a nine-year-old Little Leaguer from a pitched ball that struck him over the heart, struck a tragic blow also at every one of the 5,400 Little Leagues around the world and the million youngsters playing in them.

But the very fact that this has been the first fatality we have heard of in all the years of Little League play, is in itself a splendid tribute to excellent coaching and effective supervision of this vast adventure in sport and recreation. It would only compound the tragedy if this incident were to deny this carefully supervised play to our youngsters, leaving them to the more undesirable alternatives of unsupervised play and mischief.

There is one area of Little League play, however, as pointed out by Coach Donald R. McNeil in the June Reader's Digest, in which there is serious need of reform. This lies not with the eager young players or the hundreds of public-spirited fathers who donate 10 to 15 hours a week as umpires, coaches and managers, but with all too many Little League parents.

The oldest, Mr. McNeil charges, are losing sight of the fact - in their demands of professional expertise - that this is a sport designed for children eight to twelve years old. All too many parents, he says, are applying the pressure to win through their behavior in the stands and in harping on errors and failures after the game - so as to obscure the basic facts of sportsmanship, teamwork and fair play.

Mr. McNeil is seething in his criticism of fathers and mothers who abuse their sons before their teammates, officials and other parents for not playing like professionals.

"My blood still boils," he writes, "as I recall the mother screaming epithets at her eager little boy of ten who unluckily got caught off base for the third out. And the foghorn-voiced father who dictated from the stands, by shouts and hand signals, what pitches his boy should make when in trouble out on the mound. And the fathers who pay money for hits: extra money for extra base hits - ten dollars for a home run in one family I know. At this point, Little League baseball loses its purpose."

The title of Mr. McNeil's article is "Little Leagues Aren't Big Leagues" which, we think, states his point in no uncertain terms!

The Power Of The Printed Word--

AS it documents our long held contention that small advertisements often have large and pleasant results, we are happy to take note of this for instance:

A local firm advertised in the Community Newspaper for a particular "wanted item"! From that one advertisement they received 150 replies. Now friends, that is SELLING and where can you do it more economically than through these pages?

Also the following: A bronze plaque awarded in Detroit the other day to George Romney, president of American Motors, by the Classified Advertising Managers.

A man whose life has been importantly influenced by classified advertising, he received the organization's Prominent Citizen Award from Mac T. Christian of the Tampa Tribune, its current president.

Out of a crowd of applicants answering a help wanted advertisement, Romney landed a job in the office of the late Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts. He was on his way and, with only two more job changes, he was in Detroit in line for his present job.

The career of George Romney is but one of many thousands that have been launched through the years

State C of C Deplores Recent Violence; Calls For Law & Order

Alabama State Chamber of Commerce Directors called on State and local officials to preserve law and order in Alabama at all costs in a resolution adopted in Montgomery.

"Laws and court decisions, however distasteful to any group," the State Chamber statement urged, can and must be enforced by lawfully constituted agencies of government, and groups of all degrees in their own hands should be equally restrained and dealt with."

Recent acts of violence in the State Chamber's Board of Directors and Alabama's Governor John Patterson was commended for his prompt action in maintaining law and order.

Such acts, the resolution continued, can never be justified even in the face of unwarranted and extreme provocation. They damage the good name of our State and create an image harmful to its best interests and to business and industrial development.

Copies of the statement urging the withdrawal of Federal marshals from Montgomery were sent to President Kennedy and his brother, the Attorney General of the United States. These Federal marshals, the State Chamber resolution read, were unjustifiably injected into Alabama and the Attorney General was urged to discourage rather than encourage organized and trained groups who seek to bring strife and discord to Alabama.

The resolution was signed by 36 prominent Alabama business and industrial leaders.

"PA" Preaches, Son Practices

Tommy Shields, Jemison Vocational Agriculture Student and son of Ag. Teacher, L. C. Shields, is practicing what his father preaches.

His father has been encouraging Agricultural Students to grow into the livestock business. Tommy is doing just that. Several years ago Tommy's grandfather gave him a young calf, he has kept all of his heifer calves until now he has ten head. He is improving his cattle herd hereford bulls. In addition to as he goes by breeding to registered sattle Tommy has several hundred dollars in the bank that he has made from his cattle program.

Other projects that he has are hay production, pasture improvement on home grounds, improvements.

Tommy is a member of the Beta Club, F.T.A. and F.F.A. He will receive the State Farmer Degree at the annual F. F. A. Convention in Auburn next month.

Report from Washington

BY ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Representing the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, I was among several members of Congress who were present at the White House last Saturday to witness the signing of the Latin American aid bill. As a special souvenir of the occasion, President Kennedy presented me with one of the 18 pens he used in signing the measure.

Enactment of this legislation reflects a new interest by the United States in the Latin American area and represents the first extensive development loan program for that region. By assisting underdeveloped nations in Latin America to improve their standards of living, the program is designed to check communist expansion in the Western Hemisphere.

President Addresses Session

Speaking before a joint session of Congress last week, President Kennedy placed major emphasis on a greatly accelerated and expanded space research program, including an attempt to put a man on the moon. He told Congress that quicker space probes are urgent to national survival even though the ultimate cost will be high and will require considerable sacrifices.

The Presidential message also dealt with civil defense, foreign aid, and the armed forces' capability for conventional warfare. However, it was the subject of the space program which highlighted the Chief Executive's talk. The day prior to his message the House of Representatives had approved a bill authorizing nearly $14 billion for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The funds authorized will be used for research and development, construction of facilities and salaries and expenses. An amendment was adopted by the House to earmark two million dollars for the purpose of making extensive security clearances of certain NASA employees.

Blanche Bosworth-- Graduate of Verbena High Makes Good In Savings And Loans

Blanche T. Bosworth was presented the Achievement Award and Standard Diploma from the American Savings and Loan Institute by Dr. Lawrence V. Conway of Chicago at the annual graduation ceremony held at the Mobile Country Club on May 27, 1961. There are more than 24,000 employees of savings and loan associations throughout the country currently holding memberships in the Institute. To be eligible for this award and diploma, Mrs. Bosworth has taken courses in Savings and Loan Principles I and II, Real Estate Law I and II, Mortgage Lending I & II, Customer Relations, Teller Operations, Business English and Business Writing.

Mrs. Bosworth is employed by the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Mobile as Assistant Loan Closing Officer and has held this position since September, 1959. She is a member of the Mobile Chapter 146 which is composed of all the savings and loan association of Mobile and Baldwin counties. She has set an all-time record for

The total amount approved by the house is approximately $127 million more than the President requested for the program several weeks ago. The additional funds are designated chiefly for development of the Apollo space craft designed to carry three men around the moon and back to the earth, as well as for more powerful rocket boosters powered by nuclear fuel and solid propellants.

Also in the field of national security, the House passed last week a record defense authorization bill for aircraft, missiles, and naval vessels. Approved on a roll call vote of 401 to 0, the measure authorizes funds amounting to almost $124 billion.

The main objective of the legislation is to increase the number of Polaris submarines and end-based ballistic missiles. It also provides, however, for the continued production of B-52 and B-58 bombers beyond the close-out date set for next year. In fact the bill calls for more E-119 bombers than either the Eisenhower or Kennedy Administration requested in their budgets. The Committee on Armed Services which reported the legislation, said its members were of the opinion that the United States should not rely solely on the intercontinental ballistic missile for offensive capability.

Without intending to minimize the importance of the intercontinental ballistic missile, the committee said it felt we should not discard a known and dependable weapon like the bomber aircraft. Members of the House concurred.

A similar bill passed by the Senate calls for slightly higher authorization for ships, missiles, and aircraft. The differences in the two measures will be resolved by a House-Senate conference committee.

this Chapter by earning these awards in only four semesters of school. Mrs. Bosworth is a graduate of Verbena High School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Taylor, Clanton, Alabama and resides at 603 Townsend Circle, Chickasaw, Alabama, with her husband Thomas L. Bosworth, and son John Wayne.

Washer Starch Slipcovers

There's a smart trend among homemakers to keep slipcovers on the year around. So along with the usual laundering, include the starching of the slipcovers, following these techniques.

Wash the slipcovers using washer manufacturer's directions, then freshen look. To starch in an automatic washer, allow machine to complete entire laundry cycle, then reset to Final Rinse. After water has flowed in, gradually add a 12-ounce package of instant laundry starch. Agitate a few minutes then skip to final spin.

Because of the possibility of mildew, authorities no longer approve of putting damp covers on furniture. Dry covers either in automatic dryer or on a line. Sprinkle lightly and evenly, fold and wrap in plastic. Let stand at least two hours before ironing. As you iron, stretch piping.

Fit ironed slipcovers over furniture immediately, fasten snaps or zippers and smooth surfaces. If necessary, touch up with iron. Now step back and admire your handiwork. Note that the starching has given your furniture covers a brand new crisp look.

Grandma's Lemon Cream Pie

Lemon Cream Pie... like Grandma used to make... will make youngsters' eyes light up. This is a particularly good treat during June Dairy Month... when light foods and light meals are the order of the day. It combines the golden goodness of eggs with wholesome milk, and flavor ingredients that excite the palate. Use Lemon Cream filling in either plain pastry or Graham cracker crusts. With pastry shell, top with delicately-browned meringue.

Filling:
1 cup sugar
5 tablespoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
3 egg yolks, slightly beaten

Soft Meringue:
3 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon salt

Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add milk gradually and stir until smooth. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened throughout, about 10 minutes. Stir a small amount of hot mixture into egg yolks, stirring constantly. Combine with remaining hot mixture. Continue cooking, stirring constantly, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Add butter, lemon rind and juice; blend thoroughly. Set aside while preparing the meringue.

Meringue: Have egg whites at room temperature. Add salt and lemon extract or juice to whites and beat to coarse foam. Add sugar in 1-tablespoon portions, beating constantly until stiff and glossy. Pour filling into baked pie shell. Pipe meringue on filling, sealing to edge of crust and swirling top. Bake at 350°F (moderate) until golden brown, 12 to 15 minutes. Cool before cutting. Makes one 8-inch pie.

Reading books is not always a short cut to culture; it depends upon what you read.

There are at least five million adults ready to give June graduates their best advice.

Any problem can be solved by a person living a hundred miles from the problem.

Bible School Parades

WE can speak freely without offending anyone in particular with regards to the automobile-kiddie parades preceding Bible School activities in the various churches over Chilton County.

The only possible good that this bit of confusion can do is to stimulate the interest of the youngster. However, so does the rip-roaring, shoot 'em up cowboy pictures on television stimulate their interest, but we wouldn't classify that as having anything to do with a Bible School.

Basically we have nothing against the parades, as parades. But used to attract youngsters to the church... well, that is another matter entirely. There is also the very distinct possibility that with all the exuberance of the young who are participating, someone could get hurt or killed!

We are wholeheartedly and completely in favor of the Vacation Bible School in any church. We do not condone the parades of automobiles announcing their beginning!

Trend Toward Conformity

One of the trends noted in modern-day civilization is the trend toward conformity, which is thought to be caused by the better dissemination of news and pictures to every corner of the country. The most outstanding example of this trend, perhaps, the example of cigarette smoking.

Not so very many years ago this custom was certainly not accepted by many, and the question of women smoking was widely frowned upon. Through the moving picture industry, magazines which have steadily increased their circulation, newspaper advertising, radio, television and every other means, the smoking habit was sold to the majority.

And though drinking has been custom among many in the civilized world for hundreds of years, there is no doubt that the cocktail habit, and other drinking habits, have been popularized greatly by moving pictures, in which the hero or heroine always downs a few in a tight situation and by other news and advertising media. Now, that television has entered every section of the country, the trend toward conformity, or mass ed to increase its pace. Even today it is becoming un-acceptance of highly publicized practices may be expected to find many youngsters who have resisted the trend to smoking and other things.

If one thing is clear in the entire problem, it is the fact that parents must increase their efforts to set a sensible example for their children. In addition, they must encourage their children to think for themselves and resist some of the social pressures and propaganda of the day.

Half-Billion Dollar Tax Loophole

A current legislative proposal has to do with plugging tax loopholes. As an example, strict limitations may be placed on expense account allowances.

But there are far more productive possibilities which the proposal does not take into account at all. The Star Countryman, of Sun-Prairie, Wisconsin points to one of them in an editorial which aptly observes that government electric power projects are tax exempt examples of socialism. It says: "If the Internal Revenue Service is seeking to plug tax-loss loopholes, here is a good place to start. Investor-owned electric companies paid $2,192,000,000 in taxes in 1959, or 24 per cent of their total revenue. If public plants, which supply some 20 per cent of the nation's power, had been taxed on the same basis, they would have added some $438 million dollars to the public treasuries."

Government has no business engaging in any commercial enterprise when private industry can do the job—and electric service is a prime example of that kind of enterprise. But when government does move in, the least we can demand is that it operate on precisely the same economic basis, taxation included, as must private business. Congress has a golden opportunity to correct a grave injustice—and pick up almost half-a-billion a year in the process.

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

SUMMER CAMPS

Thousands of children will go to summer camps this year. They will have an experience that combines education recreation and creative activity in a simple, out-of-doors setting. Summer camps offer adventure too. Children learn to cook outdoors to sleep out, to read the signs of the woods, to track animals, to fish, and to feel the wonders of the world.

Outdoor education teaches children at summer camps to learn about animals, birds, insects, reptiles, flowers, and trees. Camping benefits the health of the child through proper exercise and directed athletics. There are projects in construction at camps, which challenges the youngsters, such as cutting trails, building cabins, and making camp furniture. Then there are friendships to be made and a spirit of camaraderie to be engendered through working and playing and living together in the camp atmosphere.

Summer camp for children helps parents, too, for it allows a few days or weeks of freedom from constant family responsibility. There are many types including privately organized summer camps, church camps, YMCA and YWCA camps, Boy's Club camps, YM and YWHA camps, also camps for crippled children, diabetic children, retarded children, and tuberculosis association camps, as well as for the healthy child.

In selecting a camp for their children, parents should know something about the campsite, the living arrangements, the provision for health and safety, and the personnel, those who operate and manage the camp. Most children return from summer camp healthier in body and mind.

Peach Crop Insurance; A Possibility For Chilton's Growers

Hon. Armistead I. Selden, Jr.
House of Representatives
Dear Congressman Selden:

In reply to your inquiry of May 23, 1961, peach crop insurance has not yet been expanded beyond Spartanburg County in South Carolina.

Shortly after talking over as Manager of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, I discovered that was considerable dissatisfaction with recent changes that had been made in the peach program. Our field representatives met with the growers in Spartanburg County to obtain suggestions regarding needed changes for this peach program. I have recently reviewed with them these suggestions.

If we can make satisfactory and acceptable improvements from the grower's standpoint, it is our plan to expand the peach insurance experiment to a more realistic effort than one county.

As soon as we are in position to do so, I can assure you that the interest which you have exhibited in getting insurance for Chilton County will be given full consideration. An essential step in consideration of Chilton County will be to take the peach contract that is developed and review it with key growers and agricultural leaders in the county to determine whether or not they are interested in such a program being offered.

We will keep you informed regarding our progress and will, of course, advise you when we feel that we have something developed that may be of interest to your growers in Chilton County. It is our objective within the limitations of legislation, budget and personnel to expand our operations more rapidly than has been the case in recent years. Your interest in such expansion is appreciated.

Sincerely yours,
John L. Luft, Manager
Fed. Crop Ins. Corp.

Until recently heat pumps were available in sizes only for entire residences.

The heat pump, you will recall, is that marvelous electrical device which from a single piece of equipment cools and air conditions in summer and heats in winter. So satisfactory has the device been that some manufacturers now are offering window-type heat pump units for one or two rooms, operating on the full heat pump principle to provide both heating and cooling within the entire range of temperatures experienced in the area we serve.

If you have a room or rooms hard-to-heat or cool, or are planning to add on a room or two, inquire about these smaller heat pumps.

WE didn't realize our credit was in the bad condition it is until the other day we got a notice a payment was due on our account(which we didn't owe in the first place) and that the payment was made in January of 1961! We remember! We made that purchase just before Columbus landed and established the first installment and credit bureau!

A good yardstick for just how far to the edge we have allowed our government to go: On the one hand "public servants" are seeking censorship of the press. Farsighted Americans can see very clearly that freedom is ebbing away if we allow that. They are diminishing our Civil Rights, they are Free Enterprise practically impossible, they are (fortunately in vain) to dictate our religious beliefs. June Is Dairy Month Buttermilk in June For Fish Fry Cook-Out Fishing for food compliments? You need not go far to bait them with the wealth of dairy foods available these bright June days.

One of the most delicious dairy products to give him an attractive meal is buttermilk. And, it doesn't make the mistake of using up the buttermilk for a beverage alone.

Have a cook-out. Make it a fish fry—a Crusty Fish Fry with Buttermilk Mustard Sauce. It's a fish (walleye pike, perch, or haddock will do) before dipping in buttermilk; then roll in a seasoned cornmeal-flour mixture and fry to a golden brown in butter. Top Crusty Fried Fish with a delightful Buttermilk Mustard Sauce. Then just sit back and watch your outdoor enthusiasts dive in.

If fish is not your family's forte, try a delicious grilled center slice of ready-to-eat ham, served with generous amount of Hot Buttermilk Mustard Sauce. This sauce is a tasty, tangy combination of butter, mustard, tartar, flour, salt and egg yolks well blended and cooked to a rich, thick stage. To be at its best, Hot Buttermilk Sauce should be served HOT, not lukewarm or cold. Last, but not least, to lend a bonus touch of attractiveness, glaze to the ham slice, brush both sides with buttermilk before grilling and baste with buttermilk while on the grill.

Be it fish or ham, the flavor is much, much better when cooked with buttermilk.

NEWS OF—MAPLE SPRINGS

By LERA MAE HARRIS

In the early spring three men of our church donated 12 acres of land to be used for planting cotton with the proceeds to go to the church, carrying out the plan of creating "God's Acre Plan."

The seed, fertilizer and work were also donated. Recently 28 people met in the fields early in the morning and after prayer and Bible reading began chopping the cotton. Others prepared lunch and carried it to the tables on the church grounds and by noon hour all 12 acres of cotton were finished. The fellowship and cooperation among all was wonderful. Now, we are looking forward to picking time.

The proceeds of this effort will be placed in the church treasury to be used as seems best by the church in a portion perhaps for the remodeling of the choir space. We are a small group meagerly but striving to make our church one that finds favor in the sight of God.

During the month of May our church gave $100.00 to send the Pastor to Ohio to work under the auspices of the Home Mission Board in the taking of census, conducting, revivals and establishing a Southern Baptist church are concerned and the need is tremendous. In the city of Cleveland there are 1,987,000 people with only three Baptist churches and five Missions. The need is just as great in the Toledo area in proportion. Certainly this money given by the Maple Springs Church was well spent. We invite you to attend our Services at any time. The 6:30 Sunday evening and 7:30 hours are 10:00 on Sunday morning on Wednesday night.

It's Festival Time In Japan

The giant seagull fowl, shown above, is enough to make a seasoned mariner rub his eyes in disbelief. It's one of several brilliantly decorated barges featured each July 9-11 in the Three Ships Festival at Matsushima, Japan. Competing with the festival for the attention of tourists and camera fans, reports the Japan Tourist Association, is the splendor of the region itself. One of the three most scenic areas in Japan, Matsushima (Pine Islands) includes numerous islands of various shapes and sizes scattered about Matsushima Bay, each island being covered with aged, gnarled pine trees.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

By a vote of 256 to 71, the House last week passed the fifth departmental appropriation bill of the year. The measure appropriates funds for operating the State and Justice Departments, the Judiciary and related agencies in fiscal year 1962 which begins on July 1.

CIVIL RIGHTS COMMISSION

The votes against passage of the bill were cast chiefly by those of us from the South who opposed the infusion of funds for continuing operation of the expensive but necessary Commission on Civil Rights.

As presented to the House, the legislation contained $302,000 for expenses of the commission until November 9 of this year when it is scheduled again to expire.

The Civil Rights Commission was created by Congress in 1957 for a two-year period as an independent agency in the executive branch of the government. In 1959, the last year of its scheduled existence, efforts were under way from the beginning of the session to pass legislation extending its life. When the legislation's passage was prevented through the efforts of Southerners and other conservatives, an amendment was attached to the mutual security appropriation bill in the waning hours of that Congress to provide $300,000 to continue the commission. Despite protests by Southerners, the amendment was approved by both the House and the Senate just before Congress adjourned.

OTHER FUNDS

In addition to funds for the Civil Rights Commission, the bill approved by the House last week includes $267 million for the Department of State; $294 million for the Department of Justice; $54 million for the Judiciary; and $125 million for the United States Information Agency. Included in the Justice Department allotment are funds for hiring 27 new lawyers to concentrate on combatting organized crime.

The total amount approved is five million dollars more than the 1961 appropriation, but it is $54 million less than the amount requested in the budget for fiscal year 1962.

TAXES CONTINUED

The House Ways and Means Committee, in which all tax legislation originates, voted last week to approve a one-year extension of present taxes on tobacco, alcoholic beverages, corporation profits, automobiles, travel and local telephone calls. These taxes were scheduled to drop to lower levels on July 1, thus resulting in a loss of about $3.6 billion in annual government revenues.

It is reported that the tax legislation will be brought up in the House of Representatives under a rule which will prohibit any amendments. This will prevent any ef-orts to alter the provisions of the measure.

MORE TAX AIDES

Members of the Senate voted last week to approve the addition of 4,775 aides to the Bureau of Internal Revenue for checking income tax returns. The Treasury Department has estimated that the government loses approximately 4 billion dollars in annual revenues because it is not possible to scrutinize all returns carefully. Funds for hiring the additional aides were inserted in the Treasury-Post Office appropriation bill under consideration by the Senate. Since the House version of this fiscal measure did not include funds for new Treasury employees, it will be necessary for a House-Senate conference committee to work out a compromise bill for consideration by both chambers.

Patterson Urges 'Return to Reason'
By Federal Gov't. in Race Matters

Taking note of continued Federal intervention Gov. John Patterson has telegraphed the White House to urge "a return to reason" on the part of the Federal government in dealing with the South's race relations.

The governor asked President Kennedy to speak out in opposition to so-called "freedom riders" into the South.

"In the interest of the public tranquility, I beseech you to act now to save the Nation from further strife and discord," Gov. Patterson told the President. "I call on you to use your good office to stop this planned 'invasion' of our section."

The governor referred to plans by groups in Chicago and New York to "invade" Mississippi in defense of imprisoned "freedom riders."

"It is with grave concern that I warn you of further disorder and discord which is bound to result if these subversive-minded agitators continue to deliberately harass the people of the South," the governor said in his telegram to the President. He accused "trouble-hunting meddlers" of seeking support from racial extremists.

Gov. Patterson reminded the President that the South was "perhaps the most patriotic region" in the entire nation.

"We are proud of our heritage, but we are alarmed to see the Federal government seemingly attempting to invade the South in concert with those at the root of current unrest in the South," the governor said. He suggested the Federal government, by action or inaction, had lent encouragement to outside groups "coming into the Southern states to violate our laws, create racial unrest and provoke publicity."

The governor's wire continued: "If you are really interested in using the powers of your office in the best interests of all the people, if you are sincere in your desire to aid local authorities in the maintenance of peace and order, if you are really interested in promoting good race relations, then I believe you will make a public pronouncement castigating these self-appointed agitators."

In his telegram, Gov. Patterson took note that a Federal Court had already placed the chief sponsors of these agitators under restraining order. Among those named in the injunction were the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Montgomery County Jail Council and Student Nashville Non-Violent Movement.

The court found these organizations have caused and are causing irreparable injury to the United States and to the public in staging the violence-inciting bus freedom rides.

Miss McFarland Wed. Mr. Kincaid

Former Miss Barbara McFarland

Miss Barbara McFarland became the bride of James H. Kincaid, Jr., Sunday night, June 3 in a double ceremony by candle light in the Forsyth Methodist Church with Rev. C. T. Davis, II officiating. The church decorations were impressive in their simplicity — there were two candelabras entwined with ivy and two vases of white lilies. A single candle in each holder was flanked by two magnolias. The communion table in front of which the couple took their vows was covered with a white cloth in which stood a gold cross and two gold candle holders. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Herman E. McFarland and Mrs. James H. Kincaid, Sr.

Music was presented by Miss Naomi Turnquist, organist and Miss Lucy Childress, vocalist. Miss Childress sang the Lord's Prayer while the couple knelt at the end of the ceremony. The bride given in marriage by her father wore a floor length gown of ivory tulle with a cap of lace, encrusted with sequins and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white gardenias. Miss Rebecca Hester served the bride as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Lucene Anderson, of Pineapple Bluffs, Miss Shirley Solomon of Selma, both classmates of the bride at Alabama College and Miss Doris Smith of Thorshy. They wore dresses of lavender tulle with a white and gold trim. They carried nosegays of lavender gladioli. Little Jan Marcus was flower girl. Her dress and hat was of the same material as the other attendants. She carried a tiny basket trimmed with a white and tiny wedding bells. She scattered pink rose petals along the brides path.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. McFarland chose a pale yellow silk shantung sheath dress with short overskirt. Her corsage was a yellow and white orchid. The groom's father served his son a best man. Ushers were Jimmy Charles Livolski and Ronald Kincaid of Thorshy and Wayne Smith of Auburn. The candles were lighted by Ronald and Wayne both cousins of the groom.

The groom's mother wore a sheath dress of beige lace over pale green tulle. Her corsage was an orchid.

The reception was held in the high school dining room where two tables covered with white linens and white cloths held the bride cake and the punch bowl. The cake was white trimmed with clusters of lavender sweet peas and tiny bells, valley lilies and tiny bows. Assisting with the service were: Miss Sam Bentley, Mrs. Henry Robinson, Miss Mary Bruce Hood, Miss Gyneda Clegg, and Mrs. Thomas Kincaid. Miss Ann Shead presided over the brides bow.

For traveling the bride chose a yellow silk linen suit with back ac-

THE NEWS
LET US HEAR FROM YOU! Thanks

RAY'S OF HOPE

(Virginia H. Stover)

There is born within most of us a deep desire to rise above the ordinary. Though often suppressed this desire is there, within our breast. It is expressed in different ways sometimes with a yearning to delve into the mysteries of the unknown. Sometimes by the imaginary image of what we would love to become. Often it is a longing that we do not know how to express but the souls that are bereft of this desire are few indeed.

What kind of mind is apt to reach this goal or develop to its highest capacity? It must be one who is at peace with God and the world. Isa. 26:3 says, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee." The troubled mind is not capable of developing steadfastly for he is consumed with too many doubts and fears and certainly fear is a definitely block to the thought process. Fear weakens our faith but a mind that is saturated with faith in God is a powerful mind. This is true because God is the source of all power and promotes our faith in our own abilities and undertakings. Perfect peace is the "something" we need most if we would develop our minds. (A Poem for the Shut-In Readers).

A Little Sunbeam
Shining on a window, is a little bit of gold, casting out the shadows dancing here and there; in my room, Many little suns Come to help dispel the dreary gloom.

Others well and happy, going to and fro, Never even see what I see. In a little sunbeam shining through the glass, But it means so very much to me.

Surrounded by my own four walls, Shut out from all that's dear, You see a little sunbeam reminds me That God is very near.

Deviled Ham Savors Macaroni Ring

A savory, meaty version of the ever-popular baked macaroni and cheese ring is prepared easily and quickly with spicy deviled ham. This colorful, lively-flavored two-toned Deviled Ham and Macaroni Ring makes the most satisfying spring lunch or supper dish with fresh asparagus and tender green peas added to the sides and center.

Two-Toned Deviled Ham and Macaroni Ring
1 8-ounce package macaroni
1 egg, beaten
1 cup milk
1 cup grated cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon celery seed
2 4 1/2 ounce cans Underwood Deviled Ham
Fresh buttered peas
Asparagus stalks

Cook macaroni in large amount of boiling salted water until tender, about 10 minutes. Drain. Blend in all ingredients except ham. Line bottom of greased 1 1/2 quart ring mold with ham. Spoon in macaroni mixture. Place ring in pan of hot water and bake at 350° for 1 hour. Turn out on platter and pile green peas in center of ring and arrange asparagus stalks on sides. Serves 6.

Jelly Peps Up

Dull Meals

Jelly can really pep up an other wise dull meal. It's great on biscuits, as a topping for warm cake, or just with bread and butter, says Belle Downey, Auburn Extension Service food preservation specialist.

With blackberries, dewberries, and other delicious fruit coming on now's the time to start making jelly. Here are some hints from the specialist for successful jelly making. Regardless of the fruit you choose be sure it's not bruised or rotten. This will destroy the true flavor of the fruit.

For a different jelly flavor, choose two fruits that your family likes and combine them. Tart apples, grapes, wild plums and blackberries also make excellent jelly, continues Miss Downey. If you choose blackberries, pick some that are slightly red. The under ripe fruit supplies the acid and pectin while the ripe fruit supplies the color and taste, she adds.

Nations Editors Take Freedom Riders To Task, Blame Kennedy For Forcing Showdown In Alabama

Many newspapers over the nation have come to the support of Alabama in the present controversy over "freedom riders." Here are excerpts from several editorials:

"Freedom Riders came into Alabama hunting trouble. They found it. They are mobile provocateurs. In their own hearts, no doubt, they feel that they are heroic. Perhaps they fancy themselves as martyrs. Almost certainly, it is in headlines and in headlines only, that they have their reward. — The Dallas (Tex.) Morning News.

"The governor of Alabama stood firm, and as this is written still stands for the rights of his state. He deserves the plaudits and support of the other Southern governors, of the Southern citizenry, of all who still believe in local self-government, of all everywhere who would limit the exercise of federal force to those powers set forth in the Constitution. — The Columbia, S. C. State.

"The irresponsible excursion into the Deep South by fixed groups of race-baiters could add neither dignity nor respect to the colored race. The obvious attempt to create another Little Rock could serve only to set back the program of integration, just as the Arkansas incidents made stiffened resistance. — St. Petersburg (Fla.) Evening Independent.

"Just as guilty as the rioters are the Freedom Bus riders who invaded (Alabama). Their motives may have been honorable. But a child could have told them what would happen, that deep-seated social problems are not solved by heroic gestures. Their moral righteousness kept them from seeing that their crusade would only agitate the problem, not relieve it. — The Honolulu (Hawaii) Advertiser.

"We cannot forgive the Roy Wilkinses and the Martin Luther Kinges who are only too happy to blacken this country's name around the world by putting on a useless, senseless demonstration that will only intensify racial feeling. The progress that has been made, in the South as well as the North, in the status of the American Negro is something of which this nation can be proud. — The Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald American.

"How about a few Federal marshals to protect us from agitators? Southerners should ask the government again to look fairly at the whole picture. We have pride in the distance we've come in the last 100 years, and we have the conviction that if left alone we can settle our problems ourselves. — The Reidsville (N. C.) Review.

"The South's racial relations, like those everywhere in today's troubled world, will be established ultimately by men — not by laws, not by courts and above all not by dictation from any outside source. — The Albany (Ga.) Herald.

"In a firm stand against federal intruders who are encouraging out of state trouble-makers to incite racial strife in Alabama, Gov. John Patterson has threatened to arrest U. S. deputy marshals who interfere with local law enforcement procedures. His warning to the interlopers reflects a courage which has been sadly lacking among Southern governors heretofore confronted with the threat of federal domination. — The Shreveport (La.) Journal.

"The present Administration seems almost zealous in this matter as some of the agitators. It seems to believe that by fast, firm action it can clear up this whole question of segregation in the near future. If that is indeed the view at the Justice Department, we fear it is an illusion. — The Wall Street Journal, New York City.

"The Southern white men are not going to take lying down the Kennedy brothers' forcible and dictatorial attempts to change their way of life. There are not enough federal marshals in Washington to sit on the doorsteps of every white man and woman in the South. — The Manchester (N. H.) Union Leader.

"Here is the Federal Government could have stepped in and here is where the Federal Government the trouble that eventually did break out. I could and should have warned these students that while it was prepared to give them full protection for a legitimate interstate journey through Alabama, they had no right to break state and local laws on their panned interstate journey. — Fort Lauderdale (Fla.) News.

"As one factor, the so-called Freedom Riders, though idealistic in their purpose, have chosen to include in calculated provocation. Almost lost in the distressing picture are the legitimate and highly important issues of states' rights vs. Federal encroachment. — New York Daily News.

"While bringing the rioters to justice, we think it also well may in the public interest to ascertain if the cunning and iniquitous band of Communist Moscow is to be found behind the plotting and the abetting. The nation is fairly crawling with Communist spies and agents, thanks in part to extreme civil liberties decisions by the Supreme Court, and one of their jobs is to stir up turmoil and keep the country divided. — The Joplin (Mo.) Globe.

"Our federal government is writing one of the most sordid chapters in Alabama history. Reference is made to the government's zealous persecution of the people of Alabama, a sister state. And if Governor Patterson jails every U. S. marshal who enters Alabama to interfere with that state's sovereign rights, he will be acting with in his jurisdiction. — Hickman County Times, Centerville, Tenn.

"It appears President Kennedy and his brother are determined to have a showdown in the South in the matter of integration. No matter what the cost. Admittedly legal rights, as set out by the Supreme Court, have been delayed there or circumvented. But is the use of armed force the answer? — St. Louis (Mo.) Globe-Democrat.

"A share of (the trouble) must be borne by the freedom riders themselves. They are not citizens of Alabama. They had not particular business or social reasons for going to Alabama at the time. They went there deliberately for the purpose of provoking trouble, and they expected to have trouble. They did not serve the cause of racial equality well. In fact, they 'maged it more than they helped it. — The Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer.

"Conferees have been held with the Pentagon; the troops are ready to move in if called for. There is evidence, too, that in a different manner the Justice Department is trying to keep in close touch with the 'Freedom Rider' crews invading the South. According to CORE officials, Attorney General Kennedy has conferred with these on at least and even offered suggestions on routing. — The Wall Street Journal, New York City.

BIGGEST MAY SINCE THE MODEL "A"

THE MONTH OF MAY WAS THE BIGGEST FOR FORD CAR SALES IN 32 YEARS—SINCE THE HAYDAY OF THE HOT MODEL "A" IN 1929.

MORE THAN 143,000 FORD CARS AND TRUCKS WERE SOLD.

THIS MEANS THAT EVERY SIX SECONDS OF EVERY EIGHT-HOUR DAY, SOMEONE BOUGHT ANOTHER FORD, FALCON, THUNDERBIRD, OR FORD WAGON.

WHY?

PERHAPS THOSE 143,000 AMERICANS FOUND OUT SOMETHING YOU SHOULD KNOW. THEY DID ALL THE SHOPPING, DEALER BY DEALER; THEY MADE ALL THE COMPARISONS, CAR BY CAR. BUT THEY CHOSE FORDS!

WHY?

SOONER OR LATER YOU'LL GET A NEW CAR. WHEN YOU DO, TRY YOUR FORD DEALER FIRST—HE WILL GIVE YOU AN ABSOLUTE YARSTICK OF VALUE IN EVERY PRICE RANGE FROM A TUDOR FALCON TO A THUNDERBIRD CONVERTIBLE.

HERE'S WHAT TO LOOK FOR. IN THE GALAXIE PRICE RANGE, DON'T SETTLE FOR LESS THAN A CAR THAT'S BEAUTIFULLY BUILT TO TAKE CARE OF ITSELF... THAT GOES 30,000 MILES BETWEEN CHASSIS LUBRICATIONS... 4,000 MILES BETWEEN OIL CHANGES... WHOSE BRAKES ADJUST THEMSELVES AUTOMATICALLY... WHOSE WIPER IS BUILT TO LAST THREE TIMES AS LONG AS ORDINARY ONES... WHOSE BODY IS SPECIALLY TREATED TO RESIST RUST AND CORROSION... WHOSE FINISH NEVER NEEDS WAXING.

IF YOU WANT RECORD ECONOMY LOOK TO THE FALCON... THIS IS THE ABSOLUTE RUN-ARAY BEST SELLER OF ALL COMPACT CARS... WITH THE GAS MILEAGE RECORD OF 32.6 MILES PER GALLON, PROVEN BY AN EXPERT DRIVER IN A FALCON WITH STANDARD SHIFT, UNDER THE CROSS-COUNTRY TEST CONDITIONS OF THIS YEAR'S MOBILGAS ECONOMY RUN.

TAKE A LOOK AT THE TWELVE FORD WAGONS, EVERY ONE IS DESIGNED AND BUILT TO GIVE YOU MORE SOLID ROOM-PER-DOLLAR, POWER-PER-DOLLAR OR STYLE-PER-DOLLAR VALUE THAN OTHER WAGONS.

FOR PURE PLEASURE, SEE THE SENSATIONAL NEW THUNDERBIRD FOR 1961, A CAR THAT SOMEHOW BECOMES MORE DESIRABLE EACH MONTH AS THE IMITATIONS COME OUT, AS OTHER CARS COPY ITS FAMOUS ROOPLINE, ITS FOUR-SEAT INTERIOR, ITS CONSOLE—YET MISS THE SECRET OF THE THUNDERBIRD SPIRIT.

THE THING THAT SELLS FORDS IS SIMPLY THE PRODUCT—IT STARTS WHEN YOU TAKE A CLOSE LOOK AT FEATURES OTHER CARS ARE ONLY DREAMING ABOUT. IT GETS CONVINCING WHEN YOU SEE AND FEEL THE HIGHEST QUALITY OF ITS CRAFTSMANSHIP—AND IT'S ALL OVER WHEN YOU LEARN THE PRICE.

THOSE THOUSANDS OF AMERICANS WHO BOUGHT A LUTTERING NEW FORD EVERY SIX SECONDS IN MAY REALLY DID KNOW SOMETHING YOU SHOULD KNOW—THAT NOW IS THE TIME TO STOP IN, SWAP, AND SAVE PLENTY AT YOUR FORD DEALER'S SWAPPING BEE.

Today is the day to STOP... SWAP... SAVE

Growth Of Per Capita Income In Alabama

Comparing the levels and rates of growth of per capita income provides one of the best ways to judge the progress of development in counties and states.

Latest figures just released through the University of Alabama Bureau of Business Research shows that in 1959, 54 Alabama counties registered gains in per capita income. Eight Alabama counties; Colbert, Dale, Etowah, Jefferson, Madison, Montgomery, had per capita incomes above the State average in 1959.

Over a 30 year period, per capita income in Alabama increased more rapidly than in either the U. S. or the Southeast and more rapidly than all other Southeastern states except North and South Carolina and Georgia.

Alabama showed an estimated per capita income of $1,422 in 1959 over 1958.

$1,360 in 1958 for a 4.6 per cent increase. Chilton county showed an income of $937 for 1959 compared to $935 in 1958 for an increase of 0.2 per cent.

The recently released figures also show retail sales in Alabama for March, 1961 took an upswing of 27 per cent over sales in February and total retail sales for March were 6 per cent higher than March a year ago.

Only one of the state's retail-trading center counties recorded a decrease in sales by retailers from the previous March and large increases in some counties in lumber and building material and hardware concerns indicates that building may be picking up in spots over the state.

March 1961 retail sales in Chilton county showed an increase of 29.0 per cent over February 1961, and an increase of 13.6 per cent over sales a year ago.

423 Supper Club To Meet

The 423 Supper Club will hold their regular monthly meeting and covered dish supper, June 9th, 1961 at 7:00 p.m. at the Masonic Temple Banquet Hall. This will be somewhat a special event as they will join the Knights Templar for their Patriotic Program after supper. It is hoped that the ladies will bring the food at 6:30 p.m. and supper will be served promptly at 7:00 o'clock.

The Patriotic Program will be in the main Lodge Room beginning at 7:45 p.m. and will feature the Hon. George C. Wallace as speaker for this occasion. The public is invited to hear this address by such a distinguished orator. All Civic Organizations are especially invited. The new Masonic Temple will accommodate a large crowd, and everyone is welcome and in fact urged to make their plans to attend at 7:45 p.m. on Friday June 9th, 1961.

Clanton's Carroll Mystifies Iowans

One Hitter Let Braves Gain On Waterloo
Clay Carroll short-circuited Waterloer's power plant to a skippy single Tuesday.

Carroll went through five perfect innings before catcher Larry Smoot led off the sixth with a line single to right for the Hawk's only hit as the Braves recorded a 3-0 verdict in eight innings, played in one hour and 48 minutes.

CUT HAWKS LEAD
The reduced Waterloo lead in the Midwest to two games over the Braves. It was the Braves 11th straight victory at home.
Carroll, a 20-year old right-hander from Clanton, Ala., whom some are comparing with St. Louis's Larry Jackson in his actions on the mound, pitched the finest game of his career.
Except for Smoot's single, the

The Ransom Is Wrong - But You Must Say So--

An Editorial

HISTORY bears out the bare fact that you cannot compromise or trade with a lunatic such as Fidel Castro.

We don't know what our State Department or our President thinks of the transaction consisting of 200 American Tractors for several hundred human lives;
but we do know that Castro and his cutthroats will think they have us, in the United States, by the tail and will commence to twist it if we compromise and pay the blackmail.

We call him a lunatic, because we know of no better way to describe a human being who will deal in human life as if it were something less than that

Our opinion of the entire matter is that it is ridiculously shallow in clear thinking and will serve only to get the United States deeper into a mire which is already threatening to completely swallow us up.

You cannot play hanky panky with a bully! The United States can ill afford to fool around with a country and it's dictator who have the misguided notion that they will rule or else.

It is uncomfortably past the time for lopsided trading and red-tinted blackmail. If the United States is to regain it's lost position in the eyes of the world, we must act with the dignity and integrity that has made us the greatest nation on this planet.

We are now forced to act. But we must act with judgement and a clear understanding as to what our intentions are and what the outcome will be.

Paying a ransom is just the beginning unless we take the necessary strong steps to insure that it will not happen again. The United States Government needs to act in the best interest of it's own millions of people. We are one of those millions and we pay taxes and are considered a bona fide citizen of this country. We must put our foot down firmly, squarely and intelligently and finally say "NO" to the rabble-rousers who keep demanding things that we cannot give unless we are afraid of them.

"Render unto Caesar..." Human life is not Castro's to give or take. Anyone who thinks they are God is a menace to our society and our world and should be dealt with accordingly.

There is no need for the United States to give any more ground to the Communists. We have bent over backward trying to reason with them and it seems futile and in vain. We do not think that reasoning is in vain, but we do think that every now and then you have to speak the language they understand and that seems to be firm action... or force! We had better use our muscles, for the good of mankind, before they get so flabby as to become completely useless!

And now to our citizens: Stop talking to the walls and the ceiling and thinking to yourself! Speak! Let your opinion be heard in Washington. Use this newspaper of the U. S. Mail to express your views.
As long as we talk to the wind, we will hear only the wind blowing in answer!

Selma Defeats Local Oilers

The Williams Oil Co. Softball
Club was defeated in a doubleheader
Saturday night at the Clanton Ball Park by Selma. First game the score was 4 to 3 with Mike Mica being the winning pitcher and Glenn Eiland the losing pitcher for Clanton. The Oilers got four hits and Selma collected three.
Watts was the winning pitcher in the second game giving up 5 hits and striking out three. Don Merson 5 hits and striking out eight.
Clanton will play in Alex City,
Wednesday, June 14 against Russell
Mills.

Carroll, who made several sparkling fielding plays himself fanned nine and didn't walk a single batter in the eight innings. In the ninth, however, he did issue a pass and also had another strikeout which the rain rubbed off the books. At one point he struck out four straight batters.

The Braves rapped the Hawks' hurler, Dave Busby, for nine hits four by Don Gans. Yet, only one of their three runs was earned, but that was enough for Carroll who recorded his fourth win.

Waterloo's home-run wins Bob Lawrence and Dave Hall, couldn't get a smell of Carroll's crafty offerings. Hall did get on base once being hit by a pitch.

A collision on the new Inter-State Highway last Sunday afternoon at about 5:30 o'clock resulted in quite a bit of property damage, but no one was seriously injured according to reports reaching the News. Mr. and Mr. W. H. Howard of East Tallassee were admitted to Chilton County Hospital for observation, but were not found seriously injured and released the same day. The Highway Patrol and the Sheriff's office could not be reached Tuesday or Wednesday for information on the other vehicle, but reports from County Hospital were that no one else was injured. The other car had a Talladega County License plate on it.

Local Industry Expands Housing Still Problem

The E-Z Pack Corporation of Mapleville is directly expanding its operations. Arrangements have already been made by the company to bring to Mapleville the company's sales team and bookkeeping department, together with the scheduling department. Previously these departments were housed at Tuscaloosa with the present company, Gulf States Paper Corporation. This new move by the company will bring additional, new and permanent residents to Chilton County. All communities in Chilton County are presently faced with a shortage of desirable houses for rent. Most of these new people will bring with them, their families and furniture.

Speed Is Not An Asset

ONE of the wiser young heads in Chilton County Law Enforcement predicted not too many weeks ago that "when they open up that new road (the Federal Inter-State) there's going to be some slaughter, sure enough!"

It is proving out that the young officer knew exactly what he was talking about. We are having accidents in Chilton County already on the new highway at the rate of about one a week, at present.

What does it prove to the average American that speed can, will and does kill folks? It takes more than talk, because we know of scores of individuals, agencies and organizations who are near blue from talking now.

The terrible thing is, it has to happen to some people, before they will believe that it can happen.

The only trouble with that philosophy is that it's too late then! They, along with portions of their family and possibly some innocent family are dead!

The wise young officer is getting old fast, experience wise; and he can't figure, just as we can't, why people won't die!

DO NOT SPEED!

Ponder Not!

AN interesting subject was brought to our attention this week. It was the fact that people cannot expect worldwide, even national harmony and peace when we can't even set our own household in order!

How can any of us expect the world to get along with itself when families are torn apart through divorce and other misunderstandings.

Taken a little further, the church, which is the bulwark of diplomacy and good will, has as many factions in it as there are pews in the congregation.

It all gets us back to the old truth: Not only charity begins at home, but so does brotherly love and human understanding. Ponder not at the world situation; but rather wonder how you can best serve your family, your church and your community through love and understanding.

If I cannot understand my son, how can I expect or hope to understand my neighbor's?

The Way To A Man's Heart

THE local organization known as the Cow Belles have gone all out, with the cooperation of local merchants and the Cattlemen's Association to promote the sale of beef for Father's Day this coming week-end.

It seems they have left no stone unturned in their efforts to promote this program and it is very evident that the beef cattle business is a growing and enthusiastic one in this County.

The Cow Belles is the auxiliary of the Cattlemen's Association and is very effective in promoting their product... namely, prime Chilton County Beef.

Treat Dad to a good ole juicy steak this Father's Day and we guarantee he will have a better day for it!

A Voice In The Wilderness

THE weekly press is a wee small voice crying in the wilderness. It's small voice is not due to its weakness or its inability, but rather to the immensity of the wilderness in which it is crying.

It is an apathetic wilderness, made up of people who do not care enough about what happens to themselves and theirs to do, say or think anything their own.

If we in Chilton County, are to combat the multitude of things which we say we do not like and that are unfair to human dignity and to human understanding, then we must learn once and for all to stand and be counted... to say what we think is right... not to compromise for the sake of harmony if something greater than harmony is at stake.

We had a gentleman tell us the other day that "there is nothing that will influence a Congressman or a Senator or any public official like the criticism and praise of the hometown newspaper!" This was a man who should know what he is talking about. Use the freedom of speech which is yours through your community newspaper, while we still have freedom of the press. We will have it much longer of the people patronize it and use it for the common good!

THIS WEEK ON CAPITOL HILL

BY CARL GOGGINS

The redistricting show is over in the House. The Ferguson bill supporters won easily by a 60-30 count last week. But things may be different in the Senate. Battle lines seem crossed up at the present, but in reality are pretty sharply drawn.

Chilton Rep. Francis Sparks was one of the 60 House members who voted for the Ferguson redistricting measure last week. The bill passed in the House, 60-30.

Shortly after the passage of the Ferguson measure, which would throw Reps. Kenneth Roberts and Albert Rains in a congressional district heavily populated with white people, there was a good bit of speculation that the last chapter of the redistricting issue has not yet been written, that the secret of the matter may fall into the laps of a conference committee; which would in effect reports go, really be controlled by Gov. John Patterson and Lt. Gov. Albert Boutwell.

Present talk by the senators in Roberts and Rains' districts opposed to the Ferguson bill, with the help of a few others, is that any early attempt to stop or slow up most all legislation, local or otherwise, will be made. First signs of this showed last Friday. Possibly two or three Black Belts will go along with this move, because as long as there is a reapportionment bill hanging in committee or before the House they don't want to fight it head-on this early in the session.

By the same token, those senators who plan to push the Ferguson measure are confident it will pass with at least 23 or more votes. Their thinking is that the bill will probably be on the Senate calendar by July 1, and that it should pass during the latter part of August.

They feel the proposal will pass pretty much as it is written now in order to avoid a conference committee. Indication were they didn't want the matter to get into the Governor or anyone else's hands. The rest of the session then will be presumably spent with the Black Belt searing reapportionment and the Senate finally passing local and appropriations bills.

Black Belt Senators Roland Cooper of Wilcox and Carl Goslon of Lawndale, however, voiced doubt recently of the Ferguson's bill passage in the upper chamber—that if it wasn't out by late August it might not make it. These senators apparently are tying redistricting and reapportionment together and they know full well that is not the case.

Although Gov. John Patterson denied having a hand in allowing the redistricting measure to come out of the administration-packed law and order or the tragedies we all must embrace and support of anarchy will possess the land. We believe we must sustain the Christian attitude in all situations. The basic foundation of the Christian attitude is love and not hate and violence.

Those who came into Alabama and created these disturbances came from areas of the country where there is more racial violence than in the north. There is by far a better relationship between the races here than in northern cities where violence is reported regularly. We need not have an inferiority complex because other sections of the country over-publicize our difficulties and neglect to headline their own of similar nature.

The South is known as the Bible Belt and it could be that certain forces are at work to create disturbances here in order to weaken the predominant which exist. There are a lot of angles to this problem keep calm, obedient to the law and it will be solved, just as we Christian in our attitudes.

The wilful breaking of the law will tear down respect for the state and when law and order are done away with the result is anarchy and all people suffer. We firmly believe that law and order are absolutely to good government.

Those who came into our state with the announced purpose of winning our laws were definitely error, however, those who took the law into their hands and created mob action were performing actions as detrimental to the preservation of law and order as anyone. It is hard to have sympathy for anyone who incites to riot or who yields to rioting to correct a situation in society.

When we resort to violence we are not the exactly what the communists want done and evidently there was some communist influence among those who came to violate the laws of our state. At any rate, we should look for communist purposes in such events and not respond to them in the manner in which those had planned for people in Alabama. This is a legal and political problem but

Rules committee under the leadership of the House and pass before reapportionment, there is conjecture he saw that the only way he had a chance to really get a crack at passing reapportionment was to push the redistricting matter out of the way, and that he and his aides apparently acted accordingly.

Now there is talk Gov. John wants to get out of this redistricting trap. There seems no doubt as they are looking for another redistricting plan. This stems, it has been claimed, from his being fearful of serious political repercussions from the Fourth, Fifth and Eighth congressional districts, where he received his commanding lead during the past Governor's race.

Fitting right in with this, Gov. John and Rep. Roberts reportedly had a confab on the matter Friday morning. More on this to be forthcoming next week.

Meanwhile, last Thursday night, Roberts told this writer he had been offered a redistricting trade from one of the most powerful Blackbelts in the Senate. The trade, Roberts said, would let him off scot free if his legislative forces would join with others to combine Rains' Fifth and Rep. Bob Jones' Eighth Districts.

Roberts boasted he told the senator, "No deal, cin, lose or draw, I'm going to stay with my friends. Roberts would not disclose the senator's name.

Perisoping the News - Under stand Rep. Rains is sure over Marshall County, his original home county, being taken from his district and placed in Rep. Carl Elliott's Seventh District as designated in the Ferguson bill. House Speaker Virgil Ashworth of Bibb performed his speakership duties admirably during last week's lengthy wrangle and vote on the Ferguson measure that although he had the votes and gavel and could have pushed for an early vote, he heard both sides out. A thought with many of the legislators is that the Quickie Divorce bill only attacks half the divorce problem, that the measure in no way affects quickies obtained daily by bona fide state residents, but just ride Atlanta from out of states. Anti-redistricting and reapportionment forces don't think that any one of those who plan will be passed in the legislature this summer. A trial vote on reapportionment in the House, Friday, showed a 53-49 tally for, but failed to pass because constitutional amendments require a three-fifths or 64 House votes. Later, a motion to reconsider, which meant the bill could come up at a later date, carried by a 13-41 count.

On Obeying

The Law

(Used by permission, an editorial by Dr. Leon Meehan, editor of the Alabama Baptist, and printed in the June 8 issue of that paper. Contributed to the News by M. G. Fields.)

In the 13th chapter of Romans we are instructed to be subject unto the powers of the State. We are told there that the power of the State is from God and those who resist this power resist the ordinance of God. In the recent racial disturbances in Alabama this admonition of the Lord was ignored. Outsiders announced before hand that they were coming to Alabama to violate the State laws. They said they were going to test them out, the only right way to get rid of any law is through the decisions of the State or Federal supreme courts of the legislature. Loyalty to our government is a Christian duty and as long as law is on the books it should be obeyed.

The wilful breaking of the law will tear down respect for the state and when law and order are done away with the result is anarchy and all people suffer. We firmly believe that law and order are absolutely to good government.

Those who came into our state with the announced purpose of winning our laws were definitely error, however, those who took the law into their hands and created mob action were performing actions as detrimental to the preservation of law and order as anyone. It is hard to have sympathy for anyone who incites to riot or who yields to rioting to correct a situation in society.

When we resort to violence we are not the exactly what the communists want done and evidently there was some communist influence among those who came to violate the laws of our state. At any rate, we should look for communist purposes in such events and not respond to them in the manner in which those had planned for people in Alabama. This is a legal and political problem but

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Those of us who appeared before the House and Senate Appropriations Committees last week to request funds for the development of Alabama's great river systems were encouraged by the reception we received from the committee members. On the basis of the testimony we presented, we are hopeful that the committees will agree that the funds requested are justified.

In my testimony, I urged an appropriation for the construction of the Holt Lock and Dam to be located on the Warrior-Tombigbee near Tuscaloosa, as well as funds for three structures on the Alabama System - the Millers Ferry, Cliborne, and Carters Locks and Dams.

The federal budget for 1962 includes $750,000 to begin work on the important Holt Lock and Dam that will replace four obsolete structures which present one of the last major bottlenecks to efficient navigation on the water way. In my testimony, I pointed out to the committee members that the Army Corp of Engineers has indicated that from an engineering point of view it could economically use $1,300,000 in initial construction money for this facility in the next fiscal year. I asked the members to look carefully into the possibility of increasing the 1962 appropriation accordingly so as to take advantage of the Engineers' maximum capability during the first year of construction. At the same time, I emphasized that the budget figure of $750,000 should be considered an absolute minimum.

The Holt project, part of the overall plan for the full development of the Warrior-Tombigbee, will complement and supplement the modern Warrior, Demopolis, and Jackson Locks and Dams that have improved 350 miles of the channel by eliminating nine inadequate navigation structures between Tuscaloosa and the mouth of the river at Mobile.

CGOSA RIVER FUNDS

In the federal budget for 1962 a total of $675,000 is included to complete the planning and designing of two very necessary structures on the Coosa-Alabama System, the Millers Ferry navigation and hydro electric power dam to be located Camden, Alabama, and the Carters Flood and hydro-electric power dam to be built in Georgia. An additional sum of $75,000 is included for resumption of planning of the Cliborne navigation dam on the Alabama River.

Testifying before the committee in behalf of these funds, I pointed out that the Coosa-Alabama System, which is second in size only to the Tennessee River in the Southeast, has been aptly described as "one of the nation's last major undeveloped river systems. I also emphasized that its proper development is a sound investment because of the river's many potential uses. It will benefit not only the areas in Alabama and Georgia that will realize direct economic advantages, but it will also be valuable to the entire United States as the waterway will provide a major source of water transportation, reservoirs, and hydro-electric power for national defense.

SAFETY MEASURES FOR POWER LAWN MOWERS

Power lawn mowers have taken the drudgery out of grass cutting and meanwhile they have put injury into it. Each summer adults and children are maimed by power mowers. Most of the accidents could be prevented by applying a few safety rules.

Manufacturers of power lawn mowers have been adding safety measures to make the machines less likely to cause injury. Mowers with poorly guarded moving parts and without sufficient marking of danger areas should be operated with extreme care. Carelessness on the part of the operator is responsible for many injuries. Purchasers of mowers should act according to detailed instructions. Hand and feet should be kept away from the blades when starting the mower. Attempts to remove objects from the mower should never be done until the blades have come to a standstill.

The mower should not be refueled while the engine is hot, for it is possible that the machine may burst into flames; and gasoline should be kept in a tightly sealed container stored in a safe place. Electric mowers should not be used when the grass is wet or when it is raining.

Causes of injury include objects such as stones, nails, wire, and glass being hurled with great speed. All debris should be cleared from the area to be mowed. Children and pets should be kept far away from the power motor when it is in action.

RAYS OF HOPE

By Virginia H. Stover

After spending the last 8 days in University Hospital Birmingham, where my son Bruce is I find it hard to concentrate on anything except the things I've learned while there.

Bruce was thrown from a horse and injured but is improving nicely. real courage is as I met 3 mother I have learned these days what whose children are slowly dying with leukemia. I saw it revealed in another mother's face as her 3 year old son died of a heart ailment. I found out how little courage I had after being asked to tell another family that their 7 year old daughter had died of abscessed brain. Even in and through it, I found the source of courage. It is only through faith in Christ that we find our strength in these hours. Surely the scripture is true - "In Him We Live and Move and Have Our Being."

Next week I hope to do better with this column. Be sure to tune in on your local Radio Station for the "Rays of Hope" program each day at 8:45.

THINGS

We see and hear

by BOB

MR. L. E. Diefenderfer, one of the most level-headed stalwarts in the life of this or any other community is fresh back from a trip up north to see his daughter and family. He and his emissary were up there just about the time the trouble in Montgomery was at its peak. Mr. Dief said that 90% of those people understand our situation down here. He got a lot of chances to talk about it, because everybody saw his Alabama license plate and brought up the subject of our troubles. It would seem then that a mighty lot of our Northern brethren sympathize with our position on the racial trouble we've been witnessing. It also seems that those up North who make the most noise and create the most publicity are the big-mouthed, Communist enclined and the ignorant. Down here in Alabama we have patterned pretty much after the inimitable Teddy Roosevelt. We walk softly, but we carry a pretty big stick. Some of these mentioned above, along with the trouble-making NAACP have found that out, the hard way!

THE new Interstate Highway by passing Clanton and Chilton County's main areas of commerce, is to be sure, cause for concern. It is also, however, cause for local merit.

Two river systems in Alabama are approved first by the subcommittees and then by the full Appropriations Committees, congressional endorsement is likely.

BILLS PASSED

Two more annual appropriations bills were passed by the House of Representatives last week, in addition to a measure extending excise taxes and bill to encourage voluntary pension plans.

The fiscal measure approved provides a total of about six billion dollars for the Agriculture Department and its related agencies and the sum of $8.4 billion for a number of independent agencies of the government. Both appropriations were considerably less than the amounts requested in the federal budget.

If you, Mr. Merchant, reach these people, your present customers, you can do so economically and through consistent and the facilities of your Chilton County News.

Want To Raise Your Yield On This Year's Cotton Crop?

John Sellers, County Farm Agent says that one of the best ways to make sure that the cotton gets plenty of nitrogen. An sidedressing of nitrogen when the crop is up to a good stand can raise yields as much as one-half bale per acre, he says.

"Farmers who applied enough nitrogen at planting time or turned under a good crop of legumes just before planting probably won't need to apply additional nitrogen now. But, those who didn't do one of the two will find that a sidedressing after the first or second cultivation will really pay off," says the county agent.

"The amount of the sidedressing depends on the type of soil and the amount of nitrogen applied at planting time."

In our area of this state, about 70 pounds of nitrogen per acre are needed to produce a good crop of cotton. "If a farmer applied 500 pounds of a 4-12-12 fertilizer at planting time, the cotton received 20 pounds of nitrogen. So he should apply 50 pounds of sidedressed nitrogen now if this hasn't already been done."

ing aspects of Scouting, he said. The flag occupies positions of highest honor at unit meetings, Courts of Honor, all sorts of Scouting functions, and especially at Scout camps with the raising and lowering of the Colors each day.

At Camp Tukabatchee Wednesday the 250 Scouts in camp participated in a special Flag Day Ceremony.

Since its beginning in 1910, the Boy Scouts of America has required its members to have a knowledge of the history of the United States Flag and the proper ways of showing respect for it.

"We feel that in these days of crisis, the American people will want to display their National Colors of symbol of their faith in our democracy," Grady concluded.

Differ From State—

FARM BUREAU HAS STRONG VIEWS ON COCHRANE-FREEMAN FARM BILL

(BELOW are excerpts from a letter to all County Farm Bureau Members and Presidents of County National Affairs Committees from President of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation Walter L. Randolph of Fayette, Alabama.

Recently we published the State viewpoint of the legislation and now we are asked to do likewise for the Farm Bureau. We are most happy to comply!—THE EDITORS)

Concerning Omnibus Farm Bill HR 6400 and S 1643.

"(1). It gives the Secretary of Agriculture sweeping powers over the destiny of American agriculture, including the power to bring every section of the agriculture under complete government control.

(2). It authorizes National Marketing Orders and National Marketing Quotas for every agricultural commodity. This includes, of course, eggs, chickens, beef cattle, hogs, all feed and seed crops, and fruit vegetables. This could and very likely would include a nation wide marketing order for milk.

(3). It authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to make direct payments to farmers as "commodity" payments, diversion payments, incentive payments." This would be "fantastically expensive and there is very little hope that Congress could provide sufficient funds."

(4). It provides for development of farm programs commodity by commodity under a process that would reverse the constitutional and historic roles of Congress and the Executive Branch of government. The Secretary of Agriculture would develop such commodity programs after advising with commodity advisory committees and they would then be sent to Congress and Congress would have sixty days to approve or disapprove without amendment. This would give the executive branch the legislative power and Congress the veto power.

Heretofore, as the Constitution provides, the Congress has passed legislation with the President having the right of veto.

(5). The bill authorizes the Secretary to use a base period of as much as ten years in establishing quotas. A ten-year base period would be bad for cattle, and dairy products. A ten-year base period would obviously discriminate against the producers and areas that have been increasing a particular product in response to changing conditions.

(6). The broad authority in the bill would enable the Secretary of Agriculture to require payment of minimum wages to farm labor, provision for adequate housing or virtually anything else he might choose, as a condition to qualify for price support.

(7) While the bill provides that no program would go into effect until approved by a 2/3 vote of eligible producers, the Secretary of Agriculture would have great power to grant exemptions and thereby limit eligibility to vote in referenda. He also would have broad powers (1) to make the alternative to a proposed program completely unacceptable to producers and (2) to design individual as to force on a step-by-step basis commodity programs in such a way the adoption of government controls for producers of competing or related commodities. For example, a payment program for hogs could make pork so plentiful and cheap that beef producers would be forced to seek controls in self defense.

(8) This legislation would not give farmers the opportunity to write their own programs. On the contrary, the authority of the Secretary of Agriculture would be absolute.

The "National Farmer Advisory Committees" provided in this legislation are mere window-dressing. Committee members would not be elected by farmers. Two-thirds of them would be appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture, from nominees chosen by per diem employees of the Department of Agriculture who have a vested interest in the perpetuation and expansion in the programs they administer. The other one-third of the committee members would be appointed from appropriate farm organizations, but the term of office is not defined.

As we stated in our letter of March 1961, this is a warmed-over version of the Brannan Plan of 1933. It is a bill of last year, both in which were overwhelmingly rejected by past Congresses. However, unless farmers register by individual letters and telegrams will spread objection to this legislation there is great danger that it will be enacted into law by the present Congress."

Record Supply Of Beef To Be On Hand In 1961

The nation's cattle producers are expected to provide Americans with a record supply of beef in 1961.

According to Ray Cavender, Auburn Extension Service meats marketing specialist, the per capita consumption of beef this year should amount to 88.8 pounds. This is three pounds more than the 1960 average, which also set a record, explains the specialist.

Forecasts by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, states Cavender, indicate that average consumption of meat will reach 154.3 pounds per person in 1961.

Supplies of port per person will be about the same, lamb supplies will be down, and veal supplies slightly up from 1960 averages.

INTER-COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION IS INCORPORATED

This past month the Chilton-Calera Development Association was incorporated. Calera has been feeling the economic loss, as have other cities on U. S. 31, as a result of the opening of Interstate Highway 65. From north of Calera, south to Corder's Old Mill, south of Clanton, businesses of all types and varieties which cater to transit traffic have felt the pinch of the loss of much valuable business. To help in this situation, the Chamber of Commerce of Calera sought the cooperation of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce and the municipalities of Thorsby, Jemison, and Clanton for the purpose of advertising U. S. Highway 31's accommodations for tourist and scenic attractions. A meeting was held in May, by dealers from all four communities and the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce and Judge J. C. White, who represented the county, and it was decided to form and incorporate an association of retail merchants for the purpose of promoting tourist trade along U. S. 31 from Calera through Clanton by erecting two large signs at the beginning and at the termination points of present Interstate Route 65. Competitive bids were taken and John Ponder Lawrence of Clanton submitted the low bid and prepared thereafter, for the group, a preliminary drawing of the sign which incorporated all the desires of the association. Construction begun just south of Alabaster. It will measure 12x50 feet. The sign will notify tourist of motels and restaurants on U. S. Highway 31 and will also incorporate the theme of peaches and water sport-recreational facilities. It will be lighted at night by an automatic timing device.

It is hoped that these signs will bring down U. S. Highway 31 much of the valuable transit tourist trade. In the near future local merchants and retail concerns will be called upon to contribute toward the payment of this worthy project.

The original retail merchants listed as incorporators of the association are Ralph Johnston, Jimmy Bell, Sr., John M. Higgins, F. Leo Thompson, and A. L. Kemp of Clanton; Delbert Collins, Thorsby-Jemison, A. B. Baxley, O. C. Farris, R. E. Bowden, Jr., and Roy Downs, all of Calera.

Girls, License Violations Plague State ABC In Crackdown

Reports of activities and results of the Beer Tax and License Division for the month of May, 1961, are being brought into the Division for liquor license revocation and investigation. 10. Number of beer licenses revoked and investigated, 90. Number of routine inspections of establishments holding Alabama A. B. C. licenses, 7864. Number of off-premises beer licenses considered by board approved 25, disapproved 5. Number of retail beer licenses considered by board approved 53, disapproved 5. Number of wholesale beer licenses considered by board approved 2, disapproved 0. Number of liquor licenses considered by board approved 10, disapproved 0.

During the month of May, 1961, the Beer Tax and License Division continued close supervision and inspection of all establishments holding ABC licenses to determine that they fully complied with all laws, rules and regulations.

MINORS

Special surveillance was maintained on places suspected of serving alcoholic, malt or brewed beverages to children under 21 years of age. Violation including the under-aged person is subject to arrest and disciplinary action by the board. One case of this violation was found and acted on by the Board during the month.

NON-ALABAMA TAXED BEVERAGES

Again the Beer Tax and License Division gave attention to the problem of non-Alabama taxed whiskey being brought into Alabama irrespective of where purchased. Such prohibited types of non-Alabama taxed beverages include both out-of-State and military beverages. Persons found with such beverages in Alabama are subject to arrest and prosecution. Establishments holding ABC licenses having such type beverages in their inventory or allowing same to be brought in by a patron, subject their ABC license to revocation or suspension.

BAR GIRLS

The Board continues to look with more disfavor on the practices of licensees using females, commonly called Bar Girls, whose primary duties are to approach patrons to induce them to buy them drinks as well as drinks for themselves, resulting in many complaints. The Board had occasion to review two cases involving the use of Bar Girls, one being severely reprimanded and the other is continued under study by the Board. Much closer supervision will be given by the License Division to this practice in the future.

Vanishing Incentive Due To Unfair Tax System

Robert C. Tyson, chairman of the Finance Committee of United States Steel, today expressed concern over the "vanishing incentives" upon growth in America depend.

He declared that there is no such thing as a tax incentive; and that crusaders who march under the banner of "loophole" may actually shut off any breathing holes left in the thick blanket of taxation now smothering growth incentive.

How ironic if loopholing turned out to be stranglinghold, he observed in speaking before the annual meeting of the Manufacturing Chemists' Association here today.

Any tax at all is a deterrent or disincentive to use a lately-coined word he declared. No one is ever normally stirred to earn or to produce anything by the knowledge that it (or its equivalent) will be taken from him by taxes. People may produce in spite of, but never because of, taxes. This is not to belittle the importance of the manner in which taxes are levied but it does permit the observation that taxes as much as deadly deterrents. This is one case where I readily concede that bigness is bad.

Discussing the vanishing incentives of which he spoke, Mr. Tyson said: "The process of stifling incentives . . . is quite simply to tax unproductive efficiency where ever it shows its head and everywhere to coddle the less efficient or the idle. If carried to the full this eliminates all of both types of incentives and converts everybody from the personal pursuit of productivity to the competitive practice of idleness."

Is there a better way, he asked, to destroy incentive to risk and to invest in new ventures than to tax away at steadily mounting rates any profits derived from so doing, while any loss of the savings so risked remains the investor's hard luck? Americans are adequately reckless but not recklessly foolish.

Inflation has rendered the taxation of corporate income harmful to economic growth in a special way. Under the code the depreciation allowance in calculating taxable income must be based on prices often paid years ago, for the depreciable items. But such amounts cannot at today's inflated prices equal to that originally spent and thus be sufficient to enable the enterprise to just stay even. Taxation of the resulting deficiency, that it (or its equivalent) will be taken from him by taxes. People may produce in spite of, but never because of, taxes. Budding Plants Make Better Quality Hay

The bud or early bloom stage of plants makes the best hay for dairy herds.

Auburn Extension Service Dairyman John Parrish says, During the vegetative growth stage, the plants stock can digest. When the growth accumulates nutrients which live is still in the bud stage or when early blooms are developing, that is the time to cut for hay. Otherwise quality declines rapidly as the plants draw from their nutrient reserve to make flowers and seeds. Also, he adds, as the plants get older more undigestible crude fiber is produced.

In other words, he emphasizes, the amount of total digestible nutrients will be smaller from a mature crop than from the same Laurella Owens will represent THE WINDOW as one of the publications the government of Israel approves because of its fair and sane approach toward racial understanding and international peace. Mrs. McMurry's review of the popular novel EXODUS won her and Miss Owens this good will tour extended by the Israeli government.

While in the country they will visit Southern Baptist mission stations, as well as points of interest such as Jerusalem, Beersheba, the Gulf of Aqaba, Tel Aviv, Caesarea, Haifa, Nazareth and the Sea of Galilee.

Their itinerary also includes the following: an interview with the prime minister David Ben Gurion, as well as an after-dinner reception where they will meet government officials.

While in Jerusalem they will visit the Hebrew University and view the Dead Sea scrolls. They will also sit in on the Eichmann trial if it is still in progress. Other places of interest to be visited include the Queen Elizabeth Archaeological Institute, the Bezalel Museum and the Hadassah Medical Institute. In Tel Aviv they are scheduled to attend a concert by the Israeli Philharmonic Orchestra.

Laurella spent the past weekend in Andalusia with her parents refreshing her memory on her childhood experiences. Her first trip to Palestine took twenty-seven days by sea, making eleven ports of call en route. The trip this month will be made non-stop by jet plane, covering the distance in nine hours.

Shell experts test for knock by accelerating up steep grade. In another test, that "fifth wheel" in the back is lowered onto the road to measure mileage precisely.

TOP PERFORMANCE:

Shell test crew reveals five ways to test your car for top performance—and how the 9 ingredients in today's Super Shell can help you get it

To John Baker and John Watson (below) of Shell Research, top performance is a scientific standard. They measure it with precision instruments. But any good driver can run a version of their basic tests. Here are five they recommend.

Test #1. Quick starting

Count the seconds it takes to start your car. The engine should "snap" in about two to three seconds. A slow start drains your battery. And it may flood your cylinders, causing performance troubles.

If your engine is balky, try Super Shell. It's blended with a frisky ingredient called Butane—to give you quick, easy starts.

Test #2. Smooth running

Pay close attention to your engine in traffic.

Does it vibrate roughly when you stop for a traffic light? Does it seem to "surge" as you pull away, then falter and fide?

The problem may be the wrong blend of gasoline.

In summer, for example, excessive heat can make winter grade gasoline bubble in the fuel line. Bubbles can interfere with the flow, causing rough running.

Shell scientists don't let that happen with Super Shell. When hot weather threatens, they adjust Super Shell's 9-ingredient formula to give it the correct volatility for smooth summer driving.

Test #3. Reserve power

On a turnpike, in light traffic, accelerate suddenly from about thirty miles an hour to the legal limit. Now ask yourself:

1. Did your car accelerate smoothly—with no faltering, no bogging down?

2. Do you have plenty of power to spare?

If you feel you've "run out of engine," it's time to do something about it.

Super Shell may be your answer. It contains TCP* to help restore power lost to combustion chamber deposits.

And another Super Shell inredient, called Platformate, contains components that release 11 per cent more energy than even the finest of 100-octane aviation gasolines.

Test #4. Knock

Accelerate up a long, steep hill and listen carefully. If you hear a sound like marbles falling into an empty oil drum, you've got knock. It could cause engine trouble.

Take no chances. Switch to Super Shell. Its formula includes no less than three ingredients to fight the various causes of knock.

Test #5. Miles per gallon

Don't trust your fuel gauge when you measure miles per gallon. Take these three simple steps and be sure.

1. Start your test by filling your tank. Make sure the gasoline comes up to the brim. Write down your mileage reading.

2. Drive in your normal manner for at least three tankfuls—keeping a record of the exact amount you buy.

3. Finally, fill your tank to the brim again. Add up all the gallons you've bought (not counting the initial fill-up in step 1.) Divide this amount into your total miles driven. This gives you your miles per gallon.

Try this test with three tankfuls of Super Shell. You'll see what top performance really is.

A Bulletin from Shell Research—where 1,997 scientists are working to make your car go better and better.

New Moose Lodge Plans Recreation For Youth

THE newly-organized Lodge of the Royal Order of Moose held its charter ceremonies at the DeWitt Hotel last Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock with 107 men being received into the fraternal organization.

John P. Holder, spokesman for the Lodge, informed us this week they have four outstanding projects already underway for the good of this community.

1. To support the churches of the community.

2. Each Friday night, beginning June 30th, a recreation program is planned for the teen-agers of the community. It will take place at the Lodge Hall, which is now located in the old DeVaughn Food Center building. Their will be chap-erones each night and the teen-ager which will be forwarded to their will be asked to sign a post card upon entering and when leaving, parents to show the time which they were there. Several programs of entertainment, including dancing, ping pong, etc are in the planning stages.

3. To support worthy charity drives.

4. To maintain a weekly hospital visit and to donate blood to anyone in need of it or who can not afford to pay for it.

The new Lodge is getting off to a fine strong start and shows evidence of being an asset to this community already.

Said Accident--

Woman 'Fair' After Shooting

MRS. Lottie Lane was in fair condition at Chilton County Hospital Tuesday morning after a shotgun blast hit her in the chest at her trailer home about 15 miles southeast of Clanton. The accident occurred at about 7:30 p.m. according to investigating Deputy Sheriff, Otis Moore.

Reports stated that Clyde C. Lane the husband, and Mrs. Lane were returning to their trailer home after a fishing trip. Mr. Lane was handing the gun to his wife from the car when it slipped and discharged, hitting her in the chest. She was rushed to Clanton by a Martin ambulance.

Mrs. Lane, 53, and her husband are creditors at the Vandergriff Lake south of Clanton.

The incident was ruled accidental and no one was held responsible, according to authorities.

37 Years In 'Temporary' Job As Principal

JEMISON. J. A. Peterson, one of the first persons in the state to receive a certificate in education from Auburn University, will retire July 1 after 37 consecutive years as principal of the high school here.

When "the new principal" and his bride, the former Etta Palmer of Coosa County, arrived at Jemison in 1924, they rented a place temporarily because they thought they wouldn't be there long.

However, they soon became an important part of the community built a house across the street from the school and are now rounding out 32 years in the same home.

They have a son, Edgar, who with his wife is conducting advanced guidance courses for high school teachers at the University of Alabama this summer.

YOUTH IN COOSA
One of the six children of a Coosa County physician, Peterson spent his youth in the Hanover community, eight miles from Rockford.

A member of the Old Hickory 30th division during World War I, the retiring principal participated in five battles and had a part in capturing 16 French towns.

"Instead of school buses to pick up the children, we had two big trucks. The bodies had oilcloth covers to keep off the rain. There were only eight graduates the first year we were at Jemison and only 253 students were enrolled in the school. There were about 10 faculty members."

Tukabatchee ---

Boy Scout Camp Opens For Biggest Season In History Last Sunday

Boy Scout Camp Tukabatchee opened Sunday afternoon for the Scouts and Explorer of central Alabama, and a record attendance is assured.

According to Council camping chairman Eugene Heippen, Jr., more than 1,000 reservations for summer camp have already been made. During the past two years, Heippen said, Camp Tukabatchee attendance has almost doubled, and we will again add an extra camp period next summer.

Bill Crane, veteran council staff member, will again serve as camp director. Scout Executive Jack Grady listed other central adult staff members as Wynan Ausley, John Meredith, and Tom Coon. Ausley and Meredith are also council staff members. Meredith will serve as assistant camp director, and Ausley will direct the program. Tom Coon, popular waterfront director for the past three years, will again direct the aquatic program.

Selected older Boy Scouts and Explorers will serve in various positions of leadership on the camp staff. They will assist Scoutmaster and their Troops in gaining a maximum participation in the camp program which is designed to fit the needs and interests of each unit. Program activities include swimming, life saving, rowing, canoeing, axmanship, nature, handicraft, ropework and pioneering, marksmanship, archery, fishing and Indian lore.

Camp Tukabatchee is situated on 602 acre Cliff Green Reservation, located in Autauga County. Owned and operated by the Tukabatchee Area Council, the camp is used by Scouts from Montgomery, Lowndes, Butler, Crenshaw, Wilcox, Dallas, Perry, Chilton, Coosa, Tallapoosa, Elmore, Autauga, Macon and Bullock Counties.

Visitor's day on Thursday is climaxed by an evening rampage program featuring the Order of the Arrow Indian dance team. Much of the significance of Indian history in this area is revealed during the pageantry.

The health and safety of the Scout campers is supervised by Dr. Owen Kenan, Sedma, council health and safety chairman. Doctors who will assist Dr. Kenan in conducting the medical checkups each week are Dr. William Tappan Brannon, Montgomery; Dr. Joseph Moore, Clanton; Dr. Cecil Trew, Prattville; Dr. Dave Owensby, East Tallapoosa; and Dr. Ernest Moore, Tallapoosa.

Keep Egg Quality High During Summer Months

High During Summer Months

With hot weather here, Alabama poultrymen are taking steps to keep eggs cool in order to keep quality high.

Allen Brown, Auburn Extension Service poultry marketing specialist, has several hot weather hints for poultrymen.

Produce clean eggs, gather them several times a day, and cool them quickly, he says. Brown explains that in the storage room the temperature should be kept down to 60 degrees, and the relative humidity should be around 70 to 80 percent.

Also, the specialist adds, egg cases and grading and packing rooms should be cooled. The eggs should be packed daily with the small end down, and they should be marketed at least twice each week, he advises.

Overgrazing Is Problem on Most Alabama Farms

Overgrazing is the most serious pasture problem in Alabama.

Auburn Extension Service Agronomist O. N. Andrews says, "A shortage of grass is caused by many things, but it all adds up to the same thing—overgrazed pastures and hungry cattle."

Futting too many cattle on too few acres is almost sure to cause overgrazing, Andrews says that a cow to the acre is a good number to work towards, but in most cases, it is wise to allow more. He advises cattlemen to stock pastures according to amount of forage that is produced in hot, dry months and not by what the pasture is capable of handling.

"A serious weed problem can be

Under the leadership of the camp director, Camp Tukabatchee is a community guided by the ideals of the South Oath and Law. The purpose of Scouting—Character building, citizenship training and personal fitness—is fulfilled by the camp program.

Social Security News

"Payments to Chilton County farmers under the new Federal Feed Grain Program, like sell bank payments, will count as self-employment farm income under Social Security" says Cecil L. Simpson, Manager of the Birmingham, District Social Security Office.

According to Simpson, if a farm landlord has all or a part of his acreage rented out, and he materially participates in the renter's operations, his share of feed grain payments, like sell bank payments, will count as earnings for Social Security purposes.

Farm operators and materially participating landlords should include feed grain payments as earnings they report on their income tax returns. Through their tax returns, these farmers pay the Social Security tax and get earnings credited to their Social Security accounts.

"For the retired farmer who is already getting old-age insurance benefits, payments from the feed grain program will also count as earnings. If total feed grain payments he receives this year, plus other net earnings from self-employment and wages from employment, are more than $1200 in 1961, the farmer may not receive all of his Social Security checks for this year. Retired farmers who want to know exactly how feed grain payments will affect their benefits this year, should get in touch with our office," Simpson says.

Seam puckering on synthetic is usually caused by too high tension on the settings of your sewing machine. Also, if you use mercerized thread on man-made fabrics, the cotton thread may shrink in washing.

The breaking point for any pasture, the agronomist adds. Weeds take up the moisture and plant food that should be used by grasses and legumes. And unless the weeds are controlled, grass shortage is sure to follow. He suggests that all farmers with a weed problem look into a chemical weed control program.

Any use or structure existing at the time of enactment of or subsequent amendment to this ordinance, but not in conformity with its provisions, may be continued with the following limitations: Any use or structure which does not conform to the provisions of this ordinance shall not be:

Application for a building permit shall be made to the building inspector of the municipality on forms provided for that purpose.

Section 23. Approval of Plans and Issuance of Building Permit

"Mr. Seven Million Is Coming!"

He is between 20 and 24 years old — and married...

...he is probably a high-school graduate...

...he is likely to be engaged in a semi-skilled occupation...

...he is interested primarily in a correspondence course in a technical field.

The "Mr. Seven Million" described by these clues will be the seven millionth student to enroll at International Correspondence Schools since the famous home-study institute was organized in Scranton, Pa. back in 1890. While he may not have all these statistical features, chances are he will come close to most of these basic characteristics of the typical ICS home-study student.

The lucky "Mr. 7" — who could be an office worker, an auto assembly-line mechanic or a farmer — is in for plenty of excitement when his identity is revealed sometime this summer. He'll go to Washington to be honored by a leading Government official at ceremonies to which distinguished ICS alumni will be invited.

After letting him catch his breath during an all-expenses-paid weekend at a Poconos resort, a full schedule of radio, TV and press interviews is scheduled for him. "Mr. 7" may turn out to have many of the qualifications of the other 750,000 Americans taking correspondence courses each year, but ICS plans to insure that he receives special recognition for the educational milestones he will have helped to establish.

ANOTHER BIG REASON BEHIND THE BIG BOOM IN FORD SALES:

Galaxie styling is inspiring more admiration (and imitation) than any other car on the road!

This is Galaxie styling—inspired by the fabulous Thunderbird! Many cars have tried to copy the incomparably beautiful 1961 Galaxie. No car has succeeded.

And styling is only part of Galaxie's distinction. This is the car that's beautifully built to take care of itself. The '61 Ford goes 30,000 miles between changes. 4,000 miles between oil changes. Brakes adjust automatically.

Wouldn't it make sense to STOP spending money on an old car that can never do for you what a new Ford can do?

SWAP right now while your Ford Dealer's sales are booming—and the swapping is easier than it's ever been before.

The Peoples' Rights Maintain

IT looks as though we are going to have to go underground for our news sources, due to the impenetrable wall of secrecy and evasiveness which exists in many of our public institutions and public offices in Chilton County.

The people's right to know, which is maintained and represented by their newspaper is being challenged on every hand by those who think they are doing the right thing by withholding information.

There is nothing that will make a newspaperman prick up his ears quicker than the scent of secrecy and that scent is heavy in this particular area at this particular time.

This newspaper is not seeking unwarranted sensationalism, nor does it condone malicious gossip or slander and it refuses to be bribed.

It does, however, intend to keep the people of this County informed to the best of its ability, regardless of prudence, self-appointed judges of what is fit to print and what the people should and should not know!

When we seek information; we seek it with the best of intentions and we wish it only to serve our task of keeping our people abreast of what is happening in their community. And to whom, if it is in a public vein and best serves the public interest.

Keeping the public uninformed is the best and shortest route to misunderstanding and chastisement at the hand of the people. Depriving the newspaper of its sources of factual information is depriving the people of their right to know!

We understand that some of these people, actually believe that they are serving the public's best interests by withholding information from the newspapers! If we were seeking to destroy our community or any individual in that community, we would better understand this attitude. We have always maintained, and have always exhibited the fact that we are FOR this community and that indicates every good citizen in it! Our policy speaks for itself in that respect.

Our policy is, and has been unchanging. If it is the intention of some to withhold public information from the press; then it is the intention of the people's press to seek that information, and find it, without their assistance.

We appreciate very much the cooperation of our influential citizens, and even those who think they are influential, but our first concern is our people's right to know. If we cannot inform them with help, then we will inform them without!

You underestimate the people, and serve only to insult them when you withhold from them, the truth!

Did You Say Save Money, Senator

A CONCLUSION to the Minority of the joint legislative advisory and prison study committee, submitted to us by State Senator Lawrence (Larry) Dumas of Jefferson County, states:

1. "That the Legislature should promptly appropriate $2,100,000 to the Board of Corrections for prison construction, $700,000 from the surplus in the general fund as of September 30, 1961, $700,000 for the year 1961-62 and $700,000 for the year 1962-63.

2. "That the Board of Corrections should be authorized to proceed at once to the sale (at public sale and subject to all possible mandatory safeguards) of the constituent parts of the Kilby properties, the entire proceeds to be used for prison construction."

3. "That no bonds should be authorized for prison construction by this Legislature."

Senator Dufas says that "it differs from the majority report only in that it points a way to finance the cost in cash and with the sale of Kilby prison properties (now appraised as having a value of $5,000,000) and opposes the incurring of $10 million additional debt by the State."

The Senator says that a $10 million bond issue will cost the people $4 million in interest and expenses. "We can save this money, and we should," he says by using a pay as you build prison program.

He earned our support when he said: "We can save this money. . . !"

Evasive Industry

WHY is big industry evading Clanton and Chilton County? This question is heavy on the minds of civic business leaders in our community. Not even the members of the Clanton Industrial Development Board, who are working tirelessly for new industry, can explain the phenomenon.

Clanton and Chilton County have the acreage for industry; we certainly have the natural resources attractive to a large industry; the climate is favorable to most industries and manpower is available.

Some conclude that private citizens want too much for their property when they find out that it is a prime possibility for an industrial site. When appealed to that it is for the good of the community they seem to think it is a joke!

It's no joke that we not developing industrially more rapidly than we are. Other communities are surpassing us in this field, some of which are smaller than we and who do not possess the natural attractiveness to industry that we possess.

Chilton County will not regain it's lost population or add new blood to the community until it gathers in some of the large industry that is settling in the South.

If you are appealed to, "for the good of the community" you should not turn your back on the opportunity to serve in that capacity. It is a privilege and as for the property. . . you will be amply paid for what the property is worth, but you cannot hope to gain, or help the community, if you persist in 'holding up' the buyers!

THIS WEEK ON CAPITOL HILL

BY CARL GOGGINS

Montgomery—Tuscaloosa Rep. Louis Ferguson's House passed re-districting bills which would combine Rebs. Kenneth Roberts and Albert Rains Fourth and Fifth congressional districts is apparently still lost in the high weeds of the Senate and is expected to remain that way for some time to come.

Efforts to keep the measure out of committee or placed in any committee other than Privileges and Elections, whose membership show a majority in favor of the Ferguson-Givhan bill, have been successful over the past three legislative days. Spearheading this move is Calhoun Sen. A. C. Shelton along with Jackson Sen. Donald Word, Cherokee Sen. George Godfrey, Lauderdale Sen. Bert Halton, Chambers Sen. Bill Mims, Cleburne Sen. John Gathers, St. Clair Sen. Ray Wyatt, Teague Sen. Ulysses Leonard, Edmond Sen. Ulysses Jones and Madison Sen. Dave Archer.

Shelton feels that of the senators from Rep. Carl Elliott's Seventh district joined the fight against the Ferguson bill and filibuster for at large congressional elections next year there would be no way for his forces to lose the re-districting battle and that "they (apparently the Black Belt bloc along with the Third district delegation) would have to give up the Ferguson-Givhan proposal."

Also, Shelton and opponents of the Ferguson plan are starting an "honorable" roll of the congressmen "who are not afraid to face the people of Alabama in a statewide race and who are not trying to pressure the members of the legislature in their districts to vote for the Ferguson-Givhan plan." Thus far, Shelton says Reps. Bob Jones of the Eight district, Rains and Roberts are on the honor roll.

Shelton is looking for "new members." He added that those congressmen who don't want on the honor roll will have their congressional records disclosed during the filibuster for at large elections.

Across the hall, the big question being asked last Friday was: Can the Gov. John Patterson-supported Haltom reapportionment bill pass Tuesday? Most of the comments heard: "It can't." That if anything, the longer the delay by the administration forces the less chance it has to pass, because, "No one here wants any one issue to tie up the Legislature for the entire session."

Administration House whip Bob Glehrst of Morgan says the bill only lacks three votes. It was carried over till Tuesday by a 62-43 vote. However, most observers think the bill needs at least six more votes to have the necessary 64 or three-fifths required for a constitutional amendment. Haltom measure would change the House membership from 106 to 120 and the Senate from 35 to 40 members.

The talk is that Gov. John won't be able to move this reapportionment plan, and that if he is serious in his efforts to open the state he will have to do it with a proposal which stays within the present 35 senators-106 House membership. Because that would take only a simple majority to pass both houses. Last Thursday, three reapportionment bills came roaring out of the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee. They were authored by Jeffco Sen. Larry Dumas, Mobile Sen. Will Caffey and Archer. All are reshuffling plans which stay within the present membership. Thinking of the old-timers of why the measures came out of the committee was that the bills were tied in with the re-districting issue—that if these bills were allowed to some out so would be Ferguson's, if it makes the committee, or Givhan's similar proposal.

Both Dumas and Caffey's bills these two men are with the Black were probably brought out because Belters on the re-districting plan to ax Roberts district and that Archer's measure was reported out so that it wouldn't look like a committee fix. The move, therefore, was figured as just another means to "clog up" the Senate calendar.

Members of that important committee are Hines, Chairman, Archer vice chairman; Aubrey Green of Sumter; L. K. (Snag) Andrews of Bullock; Word; Alton Turner of Crenshaw; Hugh Moses of Marion, Dumas; Gathers; Caffey and Jones. Comments on the reapportionment bills is that none of them have a chance to pass—that it just gives Dumas and Caffey something to "hide behind" and another political issue for them to run on back home.

Pericoping The News — Former Gov. James Folsom told this writer concerning his recent allegations to Robert Kennedy over the Freedom Rider incidents: "There has been a lot of 'THEY SAY PROP-AGANDA' put out on me during the past few weeks. When the time comes I'll tell it straight and tell it all." The Senate Privileges and Elections Committee will hear Givhan bill irrespective of whether the Givhan version of the Ferguson bill is reported out to the committee.

Understand the Aviation Gas Tax bill of Russell Rep. Homer Cornett now has about 35 votes and that the reason the count jumped from 44 was because of "trading" on the Haltom reapportionment bill—the measure reduces air fuel from seven to one cent per gallon. A bill which would be submitted to the people, if it passes, on the question of whether to let on state supervised and controlled or not to legalize local county oped parimutal betting on dog races is expected to be introduced in the House within the week, and taxes from the tracks would go to the state's medic-care program, education and old folks. Three competitive bid proposals sponsored by File Rep. Pat Boyd were passed by the House last Friday by a healthy majority.

RAY'S OF HOPE

"I will study the language of gentleness, and refuse to use words that bite and tones that crush."

"I will practice patience at home lest my temper break through unexpectedly and disgrace me."

"I will remember that my neighbors have trouble enough without unloading mine on them."

"I will excuse others' faults as often and fully as I expect others to be lenient with mine."

"I will be a friend under any trying tests, and wear everywhere a good-will face unchilled by aloofness."

The above was printed in the Christian Herald and is good for each of us. It is the nature of man to drift but it takes effort to accomplish things. Too many of us had rather not go to the effort it takes to follow even the simple things mentioned above. Let us discuss these further—gentleness, do you find yourself "biting" when the same effect? The old proverbs remind us that it is "The soft answer that turneth away wrath."

Never have I seen anyone who did not admit that they needed more patience and where else should it be practiced more than at home, we need to exercise patience and forgiveness of each others faults, realizing that we too have made mistakes.

The author of the above lines closes them out by saying, "I will be a friend under 'trying tests', can we say the same for that is when friendship is proven. He adds that he will wear a good-will face unchilled by aloofness. A good way to do this is to think of others more and self less.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

HOW TO OPEN YOUR EYES

When puppies are born into this world, their eyes are tightly shut. They cannot see a thing, and for quite a length of time the puppies remain blind until their eyes open to a big, bright, new world.

As soon as they see the sunshine, the grass and the trees, they begin to move about. I like to think that their first little barks of ecstasy are in thanks-giving to God for opening their eyes.

I am reminded of a man in the Bible who was blind from birth. Jesus passed by and healed him, and the man began to see—his eyes were opened.

Now when a man gets his eyes opened, things begin to happen. He experiences a great change in his life. He begins to compare what he was with what he is, what he had with what he has. And the man in the Bible was no exception. When he was asked how it all had happened, he couldn't answer. He didn't know how Christ had healed him. But he said, "One thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see" (John 9:25).

When a person accepts Christ and turns from his ways of sin and depravity, his eyes are suddenly opened. He feels clean and new and fresh. He feels the joy of the Lord in his heart and soul and God's healing strength surging through his body. If you were to ask this person how he had been transformed, he would not be able to tell you or to explain it. He could only say, "It's different now! Whereas I was once lost in sin, disturbed, worried, tired and diseased in body, and almost down and out, now I have abundant life. Now I am whole!"

God's dealings are always definite and positive. He changes a person from darkness to light—from sin to salvation—from sickness to health—from death to life. Christ opens men's eyes.

Perhaps your eyes have been blind to God's love around you. Maybe all that you can see is gloom and darkness in turbulent world situations—the struggle in the atomic arms race, the threat of nuclear annihilation. You need your eyes opened to the things that are real and positive. Lift your eyes above the fog of negativism and look straight to a good God who loves you and will never desert you. Open your eyes to the strength and protection of God. When you do, you will find abundant life.

by BOB

IF there are any do-gooders or doers-good reading this column this week we have a news flash for you! Sometime around the first of June a youngster by the name of Walter Powell, seven-year-old son of Mrs. Margaret Powell of Route one, Mt. Creek (fell in a hole near his home and cut a big gash above his knee that went to the bone. His mother, who has a 17 months old child besides Walter is also expecting another soon, and is unable to work, according to her statement.

Doctors tell Mrs. Powell that young Walter will need a skin graft because some of the flesh was torn away. She tells us that she is completely without resources to have this done for the boy. If you can help or know of anyone who can, and will, Mrs. Powell may be reached at 1299W-1, Clanton.

OUR sincere condolences to Sheriff of Chilton County Hugh Champion and his family in the death Monday, June 12 of Mrs. Champion's father, Mr. Clyde L. Waldrop of Mycala, Alabama. Also to Mayor Grover Rice of Thorbury and the family of S. N. Bice who died in Atlanta June 5th. There is nothing that will take the place of a loved one, but the thoughts of friends at this time does seem to lighten the load. We are grieved at their heavy loss.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDIN

Congressman, Sixth District

For the first time since the 87th Congress convened, the House of Representative last week gained its total membership of 437.

With the swearing-in on Wednesday of Democrat J. Edward Roush to represent Indiana's 5th congressional district, a seven months' dispute over the seat was settled and the House finally reached its full size.

Rep. Roush, who also served in the 86th Congress, was opposed in last November's general election by republican George O. Chambers. The original vote totals, according to certificates filed with the Indiana Secretary of State, showed Mr. Chambers to be the winner by a margin of three votes. However, the final results as determined by a congressional committee's recount of the contested election declared Rep. Roush elected to the office by a margin of 99 votes.

In cases of contested elections the usual procedure is to seat a member who has been duly certified by state officials pending the outcome of a recount. When other members of the House were sworn in last January, however, a resolution was passed which prohibited either Chambers or Roush from being seated until an investigation had been completed. Thus, the fifth district of Indiana was without official representation in the House until last week, although it did possess two unofficial representatives who both had offices at the Capitol.

After voting to adopt the election report submitted by its investigation committee, the House passed a resolution to reimburse the defeated Chambers by paying him a regular congressional salary for the waiting period between January and June.

Not how many Die... How many will LIVE?

The fact that next Tuesday is the Fourth of July and the major holiday period of the summer means a long holiday period for millions of Americans which will include many citizens of this State.

Safety Director, Floyd H. Mann said today that instead of predicting how many people will be killed on the Alabama Highways because of congested traffic condition and the acts of irresponsible drivers during the holiday period that he was directing all the efforts of the Department of Public Safety toward accident prevention. He said it is his desire that all motorist and pedestrians will walk and drive during these holidays with extreme caution. He said he was asking all law enforcement agencies to join the Highway Patrol with a stepped-up traffic law enforcement program during the Fourth of July holidays.

Director Mann said, "If every motorist and pedestrian will make a sound and sane appraisal of the road conditions, traffic volume, control his temper, obey the traffic laws, demonstrate the meaning of courteous consideration for others, and allow plenty of travel time there is no reason why we can't have a safe and pleasant vacation, or trip during this Holiday Season."

Mr. Mann said that a huge majority of the major holiday accidents are caused by... excessive speed and drinking drivers. There dangers can be overcome by drivers and pedestrian who are willing to practice self-restraint, and apply old-fashioned parlor courtesy when walking or driving a motor vehicle.

Mann concluded by saying the Department of Public Safety will be working overtime at full strength during the holiday period. So that accidents may be avoided during these Holidays, the Director has made an urgent plea that every laboring man, and every member of the Armed Forces carry the knowledge of your safety program with you on your trip.

The traffic condition that will exist during the next few days will test your attitudes, your self-control, and your driving ability.

Two Injured in Boat Accident

According to the Sheriff's office, the other boat was being operated by Miss Judith Gibson of Verbena. The accident happened as Mr. Crowe was leaving the boat house at Blue Creek Lodge south of Clanton on Lake Mitchell.

Witnesses said the accident took place at about 5 p.m. Saturday. John Higgins, County C of C president assisted in rescuing Mr. Crowe and his son from the water.

Another boating mishap involving W. H. Morrow of Verbena, Route 2 and Charles M. Shedd of Birmingham took place Saturday evening between 4 and 5 o'clock near Bird Creek.

Repairs are that the Morrow boat swerved to miss some children who were water skiing and threw Morrow out. The boat ran over Morrow cutting him up badly. He was admitted to Chilton County Hospital according to the County Sheriff's Office.

And How Will You Spend The 4th?

First, he built a portable desk. Friends helped him move it into a rented room at Market and 7th Streets, Philadelphia. Then Virginia lawyer Thomas Jefferson, quill in hand, wrote a 1,817-word manuscript.

("When in the course of human events")

On June 28, 1776, the committee appointed to put together a declaration of independence reported Jefferson's result to the Continental Congress.

Verbal fireworks went off. Congress—which included an ironmonger, soldiers, merchants, a minister, and printer Ben Franklin—didn't "buy" word for word what Jefferson's quill pen had written.

("We hold these truths to be self-evident,")

Members of Congress said the suggestions were "deplorable." But Congress didn't okay Jefferson's arraignment of the British people and King George III for encouraging slave trade, which Jefferson called "an execrable commerce." Some 86 changes were made, eliminating 480 words and leaving 1,337.

("that all men are created equal,")

In the final form of the Declaration, capitalization was erratic. Also, Jefferson had written that men were endowed with "inalienable" rights; in the final copy it came out as "unalienable" and has been thus ever since.

The Declaration was adopted on July 4th—but only two men signed on that date. The President of Congress stepped up and signed his John Hancock to the document; and, as witness, secretary Charles Thomson affixed his name.

("that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights,")

At day's end, the Declaration was turned over to printer John Dunlap to be printed on broadsides. But the original copy was lost and one of his broadsides was attached to a page in the journal of the Congress. It was read aloud four days later in Philadelphia; in Easton, Pa.; and in Trenton, N. J. Then, on the night of July 9, it was read by order of General George Washington to his troops in New York City's City Hall Park.

("that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness.")

The Declaration—engrossed on parchment—was signed by members of Congress on and after August 2, 1776. In fact, Thomas McKean of Delaware rejoined Washington's army before signing and said later he signed in 1781.

True, there were changes from the original document. But not one word, not one letter, was altered in this part of the Declaration:

"That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

Brer Rabbit, He Lay Low

'Tis a funny thing in life; but it seems to be the rule that when the shoe fits, there is nothing, but definite and deafening silence.

Concerning our proclamation last week of serving the people in their need to know and be informed, we drew a call from County Court Judge J. B. Atkinson assuring us of his court's support as well as that of anyone under his jurisdiction.

Another call from Probate Judge J. C. White reminded us that we were welcome at all times, to represent the people of this County when anything concerning them came before the Board of Revenue and Control to be discussed or decided upon.

We thank these gentlemen for their concern and their reassurance and will work with them in any way, with anything at our command, to bring to the people of Chilton County the things they should know and the things which bring about a better understanding between officer and layman for closer harmony, and therefore... progress!

As the people's voice, this newspaper finds it very gratifying to have these men behind the people and ready to serve this community when the opportunity presents itself!

Removing The Ax In Tax

'What this country needs is release from a harassing structure of tax rates and methods which defeats the public interest.'

Credit for the quotation goes to Charles R. Sligh, Jr., chief staff officer of the National Association of Manufacturers. He made the statement during a recent testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee sessions on the government's tax package. And Mr. Sligh knows a fact or two about the onerous taxes on your business.

The NAM spokesman knows something else. He's well aware that personal income taxes hurt like you know what. That's why he's pushing for the Herlong-Baker bills which, among other benefits, would moderate the rates of individual taxes.

Here's where we ALL come in. We suggest that you write your representatives to get behind the Herlong-Baker bills, which have bi-partisan backing. And remind them of this:

THE PROBLEM

The ruthless graduation chokes off venture capital at its source, discourages risk-taking, smothering incentives, chills business starts and expansions—all of which prevents job creation. It is the scourge of small business and the men on the ladder. By exacting stiff penalties on hard work and long hours, graduation is in direct conflict with the universally accepted principle of reward for extra effort and achievement. Rates top out at 91%, hit 96% at $15,000 of taxable income from a start of 20%.

THE SOLUTION

would be stringently compressed Over a 5-year period the rates with the top rate reduced to 47% and the other graduated rates lowered in a consistent pattern. Every personal taxpayer would get a minimum reduction of 25%, with the first rate reduced to 15%. On the principle that no unincorporated business, professional person, or other individual taxpayer should pay a higher tax rate than a corporation, the new top of 47% would be the same as that on corporate income.

Report from Washington
BY
ARMISTEAD SELDEN
Congressman, Sixth District

Passage of the omnibus housing bill by the House and Senate marks the third of the President's major domestic bills to receive congressional approval this year. The others, depressed areas and minimum wage legislation -- have become law. The housing measure has yet to clear Congress, however, since minor differences in the House and Senate versions must be compromised by a committee.

SMALL TOWN LOANS

As approved by the House last week on a vote of 235 to 178 after seven hours of debate, the bill authorizes 35-year loans and 3 percent down payments on home purchases up to $15,000. It provides a total of $49 billion in grants and loans for various housing programs. Two billion is included for urban renewal grants, $12 billion for college housing loans, $500 million for loans for public works projects in small towns, and $407 million for farm home loans. In addition, the bill gives added authority for the government to ease credit by buying mortgages; lowers requirements for FHA mortgage insurance; and includes a new $10,000 loans guarantee for major home repairs.

DEFEATED PROPOSALS

Members of the House defeated a Republican-backed substitute housing bill which would have continued current programs of the Housing and Housing and Home Finance Agency for one year, thus cutting off all new Administration proposals. To delete 100,000 housing units; to require local approval by referendum for urban renewal projects; and to effect rent control in public housing programs.

In addition, a move to prohibit discrimination in public housing was turned down by a vote of 178 to 132. Some integration advocates voted against the proposed racial discrimination for fear its passage would kill the entire housing bill. The housing bill was adopted by the House of Representatives in a form which generally followed President Kennedy's recommendations. In the Senate, the Administration-backed measure was passed without any major changes. Tellingly, approximately $61 billion, the Senate bill contains a billion dollars for veterans' home loans. The veterans program has been passed in separate legislation by the House and was not considered in connection with the housing bill.

AGENCY CHANGES

President Kennedy's score in the House on his plans to reorganize various government agencies now stands at three to one. Last week House members agreed to approve the Administration's plans for altering the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Federal Trade Commission. They had previously approved a reorganization plan for the Securities and Exchange Commission, but disapproved one of the Federal Communications Commission on the basis that the plan amends fundamental law and usurps congressional authority. The three House-approved plans are designed to streamline operations of the affected agencies.

THIS WEEK ON CAPITOL HILL

BY CARL GOGGINS

There is a distinct possibility at this stage of the session where that you could easily see at-large congressional elections in 1962. BUT there are four big reasons why this might not happen, also.

Friday ended the 15th legislative day. If the Ferguson redistricting bill, which would throw Rep. Kenneth Roberts and Albert Rains in a district heavily populated with counties in Rain's district, comes back Tuesday to the secretary's desk as part of Privileges and Elections Committee report, as now expected this means there will be only 20 legislative days left.

The anti-Ferguson bill forces composed of about 10 senators led by Calhoun Sen. A. C. Shelton, who is for at large elections, will have three issues on that bill to filibuster against. Not all the opposition are talking for at-large rates, but some of them have indicated they are for amended redistricting bill.

One filibustering possibility will be against the second reading of the bill. After this talkathon, which could last for days, the measure would be placed at the end of a thick Senate calendar.

The only way for it to get to the front of the calendar would be for the Senate Rules Committee to place it up front by throwing it out on special order. If this happens, the anti-Ferguson bill folks can filibuster here, also. On that committee are, ladies Sen. Dave Archer, chairman; Walter Gribben, vice-chairman, Dallas; Larry Dumas Jeffco; Bob Kendall, Connecuh; Vaughn Hill Robison, Montgomery; Elwood Rutledge, Winston; and Donald Wood, Jackson.

Finally, the "agriers" ran, filibuster the measure's final passage. And all this does not take into account the other legislation the lawmakers are vitally interested in presently on the calendar and which also could be brought up out of order by the Rules group, e. g. Reapportionment, Quickie Divorce, Bankers, Investment, Appropriations bills.

Consequently, there is big talk that with all this "endless legislation to filibuster," the only way the anti-Ferguson redistricting forces can lose their fight would be, first for their endurance to falter and quit; secondly, to be out-manuevered by the opposition; and third, that the congressed by the cagey and capable Black men themselves reach an agreement among themselves; and last, there is every reason to believe that none of the congressmen or senators in Washington want at-large elections and will probably silently apply pressure against it.

Thus, and especially since there are six reapportionment bills now out of Senate Committees and the upper House members really getting down to the short row now, it seems to be extremely interesting to watch.

During the hassle between the redistrict-reapportionment issues, don't be surprised if there isn't soon some talk of combining Roberts and Armistead Selden's Sixth district or Carl Elliott's Seventh district with Selden's forthcoming. Some senators say either proposal would have a pretty good chance of passing as a compromise--north Alabama running against a south Alabamian--yet this may be only talked and not really acted upon.

Another important factor to be considered is that there is a good possibility the "folks back home" may apply pressure to their legislators to stop wrangling over reapportionment and redistricting and pass their local bills--and do this irrespective of everything else!

Meanwhile, in the House, last Friday, the Halmton reapportioning bill met defeat by a 58-44 vote, even with the amendment to allow Jeffco two senators to pick up that county's seven votes. It is believed now another apportioning measure will come out of committee to take its place--but look at it about anyway you like, as of today, this issue has become insignificant to House members and that "there just ain't gonna be no reapportionment passed."

PERISCOPING - With the way the Senate is locked up, don't be surprised if Gov. John calls for a Special Session to get the appropriation bills passed. . . Jeffco Rep. Walter Perry's hopes of a state wide attorney general race about flew out the window last week when he stated, while offering his amendment to the Halmton bill to give Jeffco two senators, "I would not trade small county rule and the looting of the Jefferson County treasury for the continued small county rule and continued looting of Jefferson County." Talk has it he may be planning a race against Jeffco congressman George Huddleston. . . There has been some sentiment running among many of the senators that Lt. Gov. Albert Boutwell has been jumping from pillar to post on some of his recent rulings and that he has contradicted himself on several occasions. . . Crenshaw Sen. Alton Turner renorts the people in Alabama are displeased with the Ferguson bill because it doesn't eliminate all the north Alabama congressmen instead of just Rains or Roberts. . . More than one senator said Gov. John has indicated he wouldn't mind seeing all the congressmen run at-large in '62.

Repton Gov. John has his eye on "chase" they. His ten lessers say, No. . . An Alabama Castleman sponsored constitutional amendment

THINGS We see and hear by BOB

SPEECH is a virtue only if the individual practices it in moderation; just as sleep is a virtue.

CLANTON and Chilton County will come out if it's economical knee-pants only when we, the people make up our minds to grow. Selfishness and spite are juvenile traits which neither fit into the pattern of community growth nor become the people who sacrifice them. This is most definitely a time of choosing for our people. Do you choose backward complacency or are you ready to take a step into the world of progress and growth? It's a fair question; and it deserves your thoughtful answer!

DAVID Lee's department store in Clanton is having a sale, according to their windows which have occasion to pass every day. But there are thousands of people in Chilton County who do not read these windows every day--or seldom ever, who DO read the Community Newspaper. We will bet a half page ad to a full-column peach that this paragraph brings in as many prospective buyers as does the painted windows. And that's not reflection on the painter (artist) either because they just don't make 'em like John Ponder Lawrence anymore! His talent needs no endorsement from us!

NEVERTHELESS, it is advertising, and we're for it. But it isn't merchandising to the extent that it will reach the most prospective customers. . . and we're for that!

We congratulate the Mayor of Clanton and the City of Clanton on the job they have done on the approaches to our fair city. They have widened the highway coming into the City and it is a decided improvement. Now we've still got to work on the bottleneck on main street, which, to some degree, offsets the fine work we've done on the approaches to town. If we're going to put transient trade off of the new Interstate highway through our County we're certainly going to have to make it as attractive as possible. From the new highway clear through the center of town! We can do it too, given time and plenty of cooperation within the community.

AND we might add, a City council such as we are now blessed with!

WE note with sincere degrees of interest that our Legislature has voted, by a clear majority, to pay itself for a 13-day vacation beginning the 27th day of this month. The cost of this paid vacation, at $30 a day will be, according to reports, some $75,000. Naturally they are going to be criticized, but it is not solely because they are in the limelight. We fail to see the good judgement in such a usage of public funds. Actually it would be better if the legislators were not subject to such a temptation through the simple fact that they were not allowed to do such a thing. If we have ourselves a six months, paid vacation right now. Of course, that's a little bit of a stretch. But when such use is made of funds? You know, the more average citizen realizes that that "our money is his money" we'll be on the way to a more stable economy.

With the political our three youngsters, their untoward parents, we have the unfortunate parents of a founding pussy cat who were riding around Saturday noon when we came upon an abandoned kitten on one County roads. We stopped what was what and sizing up the situation as one of inhumanity to the elements we were part of our good turn for the Before we could get back to our car we heard a meowing and number one's sister was on our heels. By the time we got back to the car and saw of them into the back seat, out of there before we could cover" a third or possibly a litter. Good turns are for a female cat, well! Bring me about. In our opinion, we had about two too many at day afternoon! We were wrestling with the bewilderment of how to live with the male humans in our family out bringing in outside intruder. A message to the idiom was away the cats; before we throw away a helpless animal would wash its brains on the door of the house. But no one offers a side arm, we're glad they did. We out! Our family is a unique experience of helping thing in need of help. If whoever threw them gave our kids that opportunity whether they realized it or not! You don't deserve thanks anyway!

WITHOUT a doubt, the interesting presentation we had the privilege of seeing at vision was that of the "American" on the "Globe" the other evening. It was the work of Dr. George Sargis who has been serving as a missionary doctor in Namibia, Namibia, 1922. It was an eye-opening to our in-depth lack of contribution to the race this was certainly not times. We commend the network for bringing this to the public and highly respect that it be shown again. This is truly the stuff of which are made of, at least the American we would all like. This American has dedicated entire life to helping and Burmese. It is the great we are classified as a race with such men as this, we do not deserve such a fate!

Thompson also pointed out that individual county draft calls are based on those available registrants already examined and acceptable.

Tennis Origin Said in Egypt

"Tennis anyone?"

Historians for many decades have wondered who first asked this question.

The origin of court tennis is shrouded in mystery and controversy, but there are many indications that the ancient Egyptians were the founders of this sport.

Even the origin of the word tennis is obscure. It has passed through many transformations and variations and has baffled etymologists.

A prominent theory is that the name tennis was derived from an ancient Egyptian city on the banks of the Nile. The city was named Tanis by the Greeks, but in Arabic it is pronounced Tinnis. According to this theory, late in the 12th century French crusaders brought back from the Arabic-speaking countries certain words and various forms thereof. One of these was the Arabic word "rahatt", which means palm of the hand. This, according to some scholars, is the origin of the word racket. Another Arabic word introduced to Europe at this time was hazard, meaning dice, and later, chance. Hazard is also a term often used in connection with tennis.

The city of Tinnis was known for its manufacture of fine linens, and the earliest balls used for the game of tennis were made of such light fabric. Quite possibly, according to this theory, the famous "tissue de tennis" is actually light fabric made in Tinnis, thus the source from which the name of the game was derived.

According to Egyptologist Kamal al Malakh (discoverer of the solar boats) the ancient Egyptians developed several other sports popular today, among them boxing, swimming, rowing, bullfighting, wrestling, weight lifting and field hockey.

A relief on one of the walls of an ancient Egyptian temple dating back 2,500 years shows pictures of 44 different wrestling holds. Pictures on walls dating back to the period around 4,000 B.C. show Egyptians swimming in the crawl and breast stroke styles.

9,961 ACRES Should Be Planted To Cotton In Chilton County This Season!

COTTON'S NO. 1 ENEMY!

BOLL WEEVIL

Auburn University says:

1. Control of cotton insects calls for good judgment. You want to use ample insecticides at the right time and in the right way to protect the foliage, squares, and, more important, the bolls.

2. Examine each field of cotton once a week. When pests are numerous enough to cause damage, apply an insecticide at once.

3. When 10 percent of the squares are punctured by boll weevils, start poisoning. Treat fields every 5 days when necessary. To protect bolls during weevil migration, dust or spray every fourth day.

Do not stop treating fields until top bolls are about grown. Boll weevils often destroy more cotton during the last 2 or 3 weeks before harvest than at any other time during the season.

4. Bollworms may be a problem throughout the growing season. Good coverage of all parts of the plant is necessary to control this pest. Don't miss the top of cotton plants—that's where bollworms start.

5. Spider mites are hardest to control because they feed on the underside of leaves. Thorough treatment is essential for good control.

County agents have details on how to fight cotton insects.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS
OPEN UP TO GOD

Recently a good friend of mine spoke in the Abundant Life Auditorium. He is a distinguished surgeon, highly respected in the medical field. Dr. William S. Reed is also a very man is the Episcopal Church.

When he spoke in Tulsa, the people were amazed at the extent of his understanding of and belief in his abundant life.

"God has given men gifts of healing, wisdom and discernment," said Dr. Reed in his address. "These are the attributes every doctor and patient want. These are the signs of health and wholeness. I remember one particular patient whom I helped through God's gift of wisdom.

"It had been proved by other competent physicians that the man had leukemia. Everything proved it. I accepted the diagnosis myself in complete negativism. When the patient sought medicospiritual help, we prayed to God, 'Heavenly Father, heal this man who has given his heart and soul to thee.' God answered our prayer, but it didn't happen the way you might think. God gave, in this instance, not the gift of healing but the gift of wisdom. Six days after I first saw the patient, God said to me, during the time of prayer in church one Sunday night, 'What if he doesn't have leukemia?' It was just as if a blackboard had been erased. He said, 'Now, let's start afresh. Here are the signs; here are the symptoms. Now, if he doesn't have leukemia, what does he have?'

"Blood dyscrasias are not my specialty. Leukemia is far from being any kind of specialty for a surgeon, because it is not a surgical disease. But the Lord said to me clearly, 'It is a clinical entity which mimics leukemia.' With this inspiration it suddenly became apparent that the patient had Felt's disease. Why hadn't anybody thought of it? Because we were so imbued with negative ideas that we were unable to see the truth.

"I took the man down to our University Hospital. They proved that God was right. The man did not have leukemia. His spleen was removed and he is well today. Everybody says, 'That was no miracle. After all, he didn't have leukemia!'

But the patient says, 'Well, if I had died, my death certificate would have said leukemia.'

"So God helped because both the man and I opened up to Him. We didn't try to limit Him in the way He solved our problem."

Let us open up to God as Dr. Reed suggested. My friend, I know God wants to give you more than you have. He wants you to be more than you are. He wants to give you abundant life because He is a good God.

Jesus Christ is the answer to all your problems. Open up to God today. Start your life abundant in Him, now!

For The Birds!

A robin sits on the nest she built atop a coin telephone in an outdoor telephone booth in White Oak, Maryland. And rather than disturb her, the local Bell System Telephone Company erected the large sign and installed a temporary phone near the booth. Four fledgling robins are doing well in their protected quarters.

Efforts To Halt Infectious Animal Diseases Cited

Alabama will make great progress toward conquering costly diseases of cattle and hogs if the legislature approves funds for effective control of brucellosis, hog cholera and other infections, according to L. L. Traywick, president of the Chilton County Farm Bureau.

Farm Bureau has joined with other groups in seeking to have the brucellosis control fund increased from $100,000 to $400,000 annually. With federal matching of $600,000 a year already provided of the state does its part, an effective program can be carried out in every county, the farm leader said.

Not only are the beef and dairy farmers concerned, but the state's whole economy is affected by millions of dollars of losses sustained each year as the result of this disease alone," he said. Brucellosis, or Bang's disease, also is a public health problem of considerable importance, since it is transmitted to humans in the form of undulant fever.

In addition to seeking appropriations for swine disease control, the farmers also have recommended an expanded research program. Under these proposals, a swine disease diagnostic laboratory would be set up and operated by Auburn in the principal hog producing area. Research and diagnostic services would be available to farmers throughout the state.

State and federal veterinarians have warned that Alabama's cattle and hog markets are in danger of being curtailed or lost as the result of restricted movements unless steps are taken to rid the state of these communicable diseases.

The timely parody was written by Rebe Gosdin of Montgomery whose "Sunshine Valley Boys" have sung the ditty several times on their daily television show here.
The song lauds Gov. Patterson's stand and says he needs no help from outsiders.
A typical verse:
"Them riders came here stirring up hate,
Arrived at the Capitol,
Their fate:
Law was there, soon quieted resistance,
But Bob Kennedy was on distance."

If you need any help,

This family is the victim of hot weather stalling—one of three infuriating troubles that can strike your car on sizzling days. Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend fights all three.

HAPPY JULY 4th?

Fight hot weather stalls with Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend. Famous 9-ingredient formula now adjusted for top performance when highways sizzle.

You can get Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend at any Shell station on your route this weekend. Read how it just might save you a lot of trouble.

Engines, like people, can suffer from heat prostration. Especially in the kind of hot and heavy traffic you may face during the weekend ahead.

Here are three infuriating troubles that are caused by excessive heat—and what Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend does to fight them.

How Super Shell fights hot weather stalls
If your engine sputters and dies on a hot day, it may have an ailment called vapor lock.

Hot weather can make certain gasolines start to boil right in the fuel line. They literally bubble. Vapor lock takes place when the bubbles choke off the fuel supply.

Shell scientists attack vapor lock by revising Super Shell's nine-ingredient formula in summer.

They reduce its volatility. This produces a Hot Weather Blend of Super Shell that's not likely to boil in your fuel line. It cuts the chances of hot weather stalls to a minimum.

How Super Shell fights hard starting

Here's what can happen when you try to re-start your car after a hot drive.

With the fan stopped and the cooling system idle, intense heat under the hood can actually make gasoline percolate in some carburetors. Just like coffee in a pot.

The gasoline spills over, floods the engine—and makes it hard to start.

Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend is formulated to stand high temperatures without percolating. You get quick starts even after a long, hard, hot drive.

How Super Shell fights rough idling

The same trouble that causes summer starting difficulties can give your car the shakes every time you stop for a traffic light.

Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend attacks both problems the same way. Its formula is adjusted so that it's in no hurry to boil and bubble. Result: smooth idling in hot weather.

Shell trouble-shooter

Your Shell dealer will be glad to prepare your car for summer driving. His trouble-shooting may save you hours of delay on the road.

And ask him to fill your tank with Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend. Then you will really be set for top performance.

Super Shell's 9 ingredients for top performance

- #1 is TCP*—for power, mileage, and longer plug life.
- #2 is "cat-cracked" gasoline—for power.
- #3 is anti-knock mix—for knock resistance.
- #4 is Alkylate to control "high-speed knock".
- #5 is Butane—for quick starts.
- #6 is Pentane mix—for fast warm-ups.
- #7 is an "anti-icer." (Added when cold weather sets in.)
- #8 is gum preventive—for clean carburetors.
- #9 is Platformate for extra mileage.

*Trademark for Shell's unique gasoline additive. Gasoline containing TCP is covered by U. S. Patent 2800218.

Thorsby Man Assigned As Foreman With Southern Bell

Ervin Ray of Thorsby has been assigned as foreman for telephone crews in the Prattville area. Ray is the first foreman permanently assigned to Prattville on a full-time basis. Until recently, Prattville telephone men have reported to Ervin Joiner of Clanton. Southern Bell officials say the growth of the two cities has brought about the need for additional supervision.

Ray and his wife, the former Eugene Lowery, have been life-long residents of Chilton County. They have bought a home in Prattville and expect to move there soon. The couple has two children: Leslie, 13 and Ginger Ellen is 6.

B. V. RAY

Ray's telephone experience began in 1946 as an employee of the Robinson Construction Company of Thorsby. While employed there, he was engaged in the construction of telephone lines. Ray also has worked with the Thorsby Telephone Company. In 1947 he joined Southern Bell as a lineman and in 1955 he became foreman of a construction crew. His work in that capacity has taken him to all sections of Alabama.

Last year an improved method of suspending telephone lines across railroad tracks was developed by Ray. This plan has been adopted as a standard practice throughout the Bell System.

Public Safety Dept. Reports Teen-age Driving

1960 teen-age drivers were involved in traffic accidents. Three of these drivers were involved in fatal accidents. There were 1,221 drivers in the 16-17 year old group involved in accidents. Twenty eight of these were involved in fatal accidents. There were 1,479 drivers in the 18-19 year old group involved in accidents. Fifty nine of these were fatal accidents.

In the 2619 teen age driver accidents, 860 violations were recorded and 169 violations were recorded in the 85 teen-age fatal accidents. Here are the chief violations of the young drivers in total accidents and fatal accidents.

There were 1,037 involved in speed violations. Fifty-five of the violations occurred in fatal accidents; driving on the wrong side of road showed 659 violations, 41 of which were in fatal accidents; failure to grant right-of-way reflected 399 violations of which 19 resulted in fatal accidents. Then there were 126 teen-agers driving under the influence of alcohol; 10 of these were involved in fatal accidents.

Types of vehicles involved in teen-age accidents: Passenger cars 2,393, trucks 210, school buses 41, tractors, 36, and others 48.

Teen-age drivers involved in 244 accidents due to defective equipment. Defective brakes 101, bad tires 68, improper lights 28, defective steering mechanism 14, and all other defects 33.

Director Mann said, "There were 2,822 drivers involved in rural traffic accidents last year. It is noticeable that the boys were involved in 2,487 of these accidents and the girls had only 338 accidents which means that the teen-age males were involved in 87 per cent of all rural teen-age accidents and the females were involved in 13 per cent of all rural teen-age crashes."

A look at the accidents reports reflect these facts about 1960 teen age accidents involving 2,619 accidents, 2,505 accidents occurred in open country, 1,875 occurred on straight roads, 746 occurred on curves, 214 took place on dry roads, 2,092 on paved roads, 1,872 in clear weather and 1,629 occurred during daylight hours.

Teen age drivers were violating the law in 72 per cent of total accidents and 56 per cent of all teen-age fatal accidents due to one violation. . . that being excessive speed.

Mr. Mann concluded by urging all teen-age drivers to analyze the facts of this report, to accept the responsibility necessary to drive safely, and to help improve our traffic conditions on the streets and highways of this State.

What Is A Teen-ager?

They are the people who will carry on what you have started. They will sit where you are sitting and attend to things you think so important when you are gone. They will determine how successful the policies you adopt today will be.

Your reputation and your fortune are both in the teen agers hands. They will assume control of your City, not your contemporaries or your neighbors, but the teen agers are going to say whether or not your job was well done. Your rules will be amended by teen agers and laughter will be made of your mistakes they may think you did well by them or they may not. Move with caution. The fate of our Nation and humanity rest with them.

Early Senate approval of President Kennedy's nomination of Charles Brewton of Scottsboro as Assistant Director for Resources and Production of the Office of Civil Defense and Mobilization in the Executive office of the President was predicted today by Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.).

The Senate Armed Services Committee headed by Senator Richard Russell of Georgia is slated to consider the nomination within the next few days.

"While I regret losing Mr. Brewton as General Counsel of my Small Business Committee, at the same time I am glad to see him move into such a high position in the Executive office of the President," Sparkman said.

In his new job Brewton will direct and coordinate the development and establishment of policies, plans, preparedness programs, and readiness measures for mobilization and sources and production under various management of the Nation's resources degrees of mobilization and emergency situations. Functional areas of responsibility under his direction will be Resources, Programming, Telecommunications, Manpower, Fuel and Energy, Stabilization, Production and Materials and Transportation.

RAY'S OF HOPE

By Virginia H. Stover

Have you given much thought to the power of suggestion? It is amazing what it can do to ones state of mind. Perhaps all of us have heard the saying, "do not walk toward a whirling propeller or you will be tempted to walk into it" or "Don't look off high bluffs or you might decide to jump."

Even greater are the more common suggestions such as pictures of delicious foods. Some of them make our mouths water. A frosty Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Giles, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Holder, Jr.

All teen agers are invited no admission.

Rules that must be followed are: 1. Everyone coming to the Lodge must come inside immediately. Upon entering the Lodge must sign in on a post card furnished by the Lodge. This card to be mailed to the parents of teen agers. Once in must stay until ready to leave for the night. No in and out of Lodge will be permitted.

There will be dancing and miscellaneous games.

John P. Holder, Jr. Governor
Loyal Order of Moose 1992

glass of lemonade can make us suddenly aware of thirst when we had not known we were thirsty.

So it is with the bad things we hear and see advertised as well as the good. On every side our youth is presented with suggestive advertisements on how good of its users the filthy language they use. Never does the advertisement show the broken home it causes, the little ragged children, the heart-broken mothers and wives of the murder and other vicious crimes it causes its users to commit. Neither does it show the slaughter on our highways caused by drink. The same thing could be said about some of the suggestive movies, records and pictures flashed before our children until they must be thoroughly disgusted with a great big part of the adult world.

Each of us add to the beauty of life or take from it by our attitudes, speech, dress, etc. How wonderful if we can use the power of suggestion to make life better rather than pulling the standard of morality down. I know this isn't popular writing to many but on the other hand there are many who feel like we do about these things.

Thank you for your comment in this column and your interest in Bruce. He is doing fine and we are glad to be back home after 15 days in the Birmingham hospital. It was interesting to have people to say when they heard we were from Chilton County, "Oh that's where the peaches are!"

This week of the Civil War one hundred years ago, June 25-July 1, 1861-began at the United States "Napoleon," Union General George B. McClellan, published an address to his soldiers, asserting the superiority of the Union cause and urging Union soldiers to show to the world that you differ from our enemies in the points of honor, honesty, and respect for private opinion, and that we inaugurate no reign of terror where we go.

This week ended July 1, 1861, with the arrest of the Baltimore Police Commissioners by the United States army, on charges that these police were in on a pro-Confederate plot.

News items of special interest to Alabamians this week were William Lowndes Yancey's hopes for British recognition of the Confederacy and discussion of abolitionists within the Confederacy.

The Montgomery Daily Post reported June 27, 1861, that Yancey, Alabama serving as Confederate commissioner in England, had written that the Confederacy's independence would "certainly be recognized by England during the month of August and that he expected to be home in September." Highlighted in the Montgomery Daily Post of June 28 and June 29 were Southern were in their midst.

A letter of June 29, 1861, in the Daily Post urged that citizens committees be formed in every city, village, and neighborhood in the for the purpose of seeking out all persons suspected of abolition principles. Those found plainly guilty of abolitionism should be hung, said the letter. If not clearly guilty suspected persons should be given a week to make preparations for their escape, with understanding that they should never more be seen in the Confederacy."

AST month, we discussed some of the shortcomings of the old classical system of education in America. Also, we talked about the birth of the "new education" movement which resulted in the establishment of our land-grant colleges. This month, let's go back to the old classical system of education and the provisions of the Land-Grant College Act of 1862. One of the major features of this system of higher education.

Many early Americans, including Washington and Jefferson, contributed to the thinking behind our land-grant colleges, but Justin Smith Morrill, congressman and senator from Vermont, started the legislation for the land-grant system. Morrill was a Vermont farmer and a land-grant system was created by President John Buchanan in 1859 on the grounds that it was unconstitutional and would bankrupt the country.

With only a few changes, President Lincoln signed the bill creating our land-grant colleges in 1862. The bill gave large tracts of public land to each state to sell. The money was to be used as an endowment fund to help establish and support the state institutions.

To qualify under the terms of the Morrill Act, each state had to agree to protect these funds and to use the money received to benefit the land at not less than five per cent; to teach agriculture, mechanical arts (engineering), military science, and liberal arts; and to pass a state law upholding the rules and agreeing to submit an annual report to the laws in 1862 and the first states to take advantage followed. And now every state and territory of the United States has at least one land-grant college. Negro colleges were provided for under the second Morrill Act passed in 1890.

Land-grant colleges were created to fill

Increase Peanut Yields With Gypsum

A LABAMA peanut growers can increase "A" yields at least 342 pounds per acre," says Extension Peanut Specialist, Dean Bond. Marketable peanut yields on low calcium soils increased 21 per cent with the addition of 400 pounds of gypsum. And gypsum helped bring the quality of peanuts up and the number of "poppy" peanuts down to the level of the best results, growers should soil test and apply lime or gypsum on the basis of soil test recommendations. In the absence of a soil test, peanut growers have not been able to do so in the past three years, farmers can now apply gypsum to ensure a supply of calcium. Gypsum should be used in addition to lime for Virginia-type peanuts.

Peanuts must have a supply of available calcium in the pegging zone at the time the pods are forming. Without it, pods will be low, fill out, and both yield and grade will be low. It has been shown that the nomenclature about will be reduced by the nomenclature about the time the peanuts are expected by top-dressing, 400 to 600 pounds of gypsum dressing, the plants begin to bloom. This material will fall through the foliage to the soil at the base of the plant. Rain and cultivation will carry it into the area where the pods are forming.

Gypsum may be applied with a lime spreader if some of the holes over the row middle are stopped up. Some farmers have

MORRILL

BROILER LIGHTING. Broilers started under 24 hours of bright light and gradually reduced to a dim light by market age. The first 12 hours of bright light are given in the first 24 hours of life. Under bright light each broiler needs only two-thirds square foot of floor space, whereas with bright light a broiler does best if given one square foot of space.

SOCIAL SECURITY PAYMENTS. A farmer under age 72 is limited in amount of social security he can draw. However, the $1200 per month does not apply to earnings other than income from rental income or self-employment, such as rental income, unless the farmer materially helps with farming operations; interest from such investments as bonds, savings accounts, or shares in a stock; gain or loss from sale of capital assets; and sale of timber or pulpwood.

COVER CROPS FOR VEGETABLES. Turning a cover crop ahead of planting in creases fall vegetable yields. Yields of fall turnips fertilized with 1500 pounds of 8-8-8 were increased 4,455 pounds per acre on a light soil and 11,357 pounds on a heavy soil. Turning cover crops ahead of planting turned in 10,562 pounds on light soil and 14,338 pounds on heavy soil.

MORE HOGS NEEDED. Alabama-produced hogs supply only 65 per cent of the total slaughtered by meat processors in the state, a recent study revealed. The remaining hogs came from other states, usually from long distances. The extra hauling hogs wish to do is to produce more hogs. Alabama farmers should have excellent opportunities for increasing production of high quality hogs desired by local pork processors.

PRESERVING TOMATO JUICE. Well colored, vine-ripened tomatoes are needed for high quality canned or frozen tomato juice. Good quality juice has been made in Auburn studies by washing and sun-drying tomatoes, treating rapidly with sulfur dioxide and passing through a fine screen to remove seed and skins. For canning, the hot juice is packed in clean cans or jars, sealed, and processed for 10 minutes in boiling water bath, and cooled. Preparation for freezing includes cooling the screened juice, and packing in leak-proof containers for freezer storage.

RENOVATING PASTURES. Pastures that are deeply eroded with carpet grass can be improved by destroying the carpet grass, liming and fertilizing, and reseeding to white clover and dallis grass. Carpet grass can be retarded by complete land preparation or by using a herbicide. The herbicide dalapon used at rate of five pounds per acre was as good as complete land preparation in Auburn renovation studies.

DROPSSEED CONTROL. Experiments at the Blackbelt Substation reveal that dropseed can be controlled with dalapon (85 per cent salt) at rate of 5, 10, and 15 pounds per acre. Dalapon was applied in late July when land preparation was begun, and white clover was seeded in September. Considering cost, effectiveness of dropseed control, effect on dallis grass, and rate of establishment, the five-pound rate gave the best results. The land preparation or the higher dalapon rates.

State 4-H Leadership Camp

WHAT week in 1961 will be the most exciting for 700 top 4-H Club boys and girls. State 4-H Club Leader Hanchey Logue reports that he's heard nothing but "good" about it will be the week of July 10-14. That's the week of the annual State 4-H Conference. During this week, 4-H'ers from all 67 counties will be at Auburn University for fun and excitement. Auburn University Extension personnel and assistant county and home agents will supervise the conference.

The clubsters will compete for state honors in 13 different categories. And the top winner in each contest will receive an all-expense paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago the latter part of November. The projects range from the dress revue to the tractor driving contest. This is the time when Alabama's youth will show what they know and do to the best of their ability.

Activities include the election of the 1961-62 State 4-H Council officers, which the voting delegates will elect.

Two big 4-H friendship parties and two nights of 4-H talent will highlight the entertainments.

These 4-H'ers will meet the VIP's of Auburn University. College President Ralph B. Draughon will welcome the youth to the loveliest village of the plains. And Director Fred Leading the State 4-H Camp will be the State 4-H Council officers. From left: Brenda Finkle, 4-H'ers, vice-president; District III; Mary Stanley, 4-H'ers, treasurer; and Larry Wheeler, 4-H'ers, vice-president of District IV.

R. Robertson of the Extension Service will make a brief talk.

No week is a success without recreation. Home with their aims and goals set higher and with plans to make the best better.

Fight Cotton Insects With Latest Control Methods

NOW is the most important time to control cotton insects because the cotton is fruiting and maturing. Some insect control at this time is necessary every year in most fields. However, for best results, gear control measures to regular infestation counts of cotton pests.

Boll Weevils.—Examine cotton fields twice each week and when boll weevil infestation reaches 10 per cent—that is, 100 punctured squares out of every 100 squares examined—make three applications of insecticide. These three applications should be made at 10, 20, and 30 per cent infestation. When the infestation again rises to 10 per cent, continue treatment until the top bolls are grown.

Bollworms.—Bollworms are increasing in importance, and are sometimes a problem when weevils are not; so examine fields for bollworms each week. Use control measures

Spider Mites.—In some sections of Alabama, particularly the Tennessee Valley and Sand Mountain areas, spider mites (Red spider) cause serious trouble. They feed on plant juices and cause foliage to become discolored. A severe infestation can result in complete defoliation.

More cotton is lost each year by farmers stopping the control program before top bolls are fully grown. Remember that boll weevils can still puncture bolls of cotton until the fiber forms. A good way to determine when a boll is mature is to cut through it with a sharp knife. If it's soft on the inside, a boll weevil can destroy it.

For complete details on what and how much insecticide to use, contact your county agent for a copy of the "1961 Fight Cotton Insects" circular.

Eating of a Trend
FARMERS have been in a rough cost-price squeeze for the last nine years. Producers used on farm products has been decreasing.

What's ahead? Evidence from some sectors suggests that this trend is beginning to level off. Production costs held quiet steadily during 1960, where-over all farm prices started to rise (though they averaged slightly lower for the entire year). From month to month we must expect variations in the trend.

It is possible that a national trend may not apply to trends in each region. Nevertheless, there are some agricultural economists who expect to see a national leveling on things farmers have to buy.

The Changing Egg Market

Over the years, the egg marketing pattern has been based on the production in 11 of the mid-western states. These states have been the only area to produce more eggs than they consume. These states have been supplying areas that don't produce enough eggs. Most eggs were produced from small farm flocks that consumed surplus grain.

This pattern is changing mainly because of improved profits, specialized breeding, and much larger commercial operations. The emphasis on egg quality is coming a premium on fast assembly, speedy transportation, and quick retail sale.

It seems likely that much of the commercial egg industry, now moving around like a hive of bees, may settle in some new area of the country. At present, egg expansion is going on in the south-eastern states, including Alabama, faster than other areas. It seems that this expansion is following about the same pattern as broiler development did.

What Attract Mosquitoes?

HAVE you ever been out in the woods and noticed that mosquitoes bothered, you worse than the person with you?

Entomologists have found that mosquitoes will attack some people and leave others alone. The reason for this is a matter of blood type. Mosquitoes are attracted to a blood type called "A." People with this blood type, called "A" types, are most-attracted, while people with blood types "B," "AB," and "O" are least-attracted.

Don't Kill Your Azaleas and Camellias

The other day my family and I were at a neighbor's making homemade ice cream. After we finished, we took the water hose and just happened that the water settled on one of its azaleas. What happened? The plant died. People living near the coast have similar trouble with salty water during a flood.

Extension Horticulturist Troy Keeble says that if salt gets to your camellias and azaleas, apply lots of water to the area immediately after the salt has been applied. The salt will leach the salt from the soil around the plant.

How is agriculture to get its story across? Agriculture should make industry, labor, and the professions in laying its side before the public.

The others have avenues of communication and information to get their stories told. Agriculture needs to do the same. Perhaps farmers through their various organizations, should set up a promotional agency. Success in such a venture would not only help agriculture, but the rest of the country as well.

The result would be a greater understanding of the problems facing the nation's farmer.

Fifteen counties sold more than half of Alabama's market hogs in 1959. The top five counties were Geneva, Houston, Covington, Jackson, and Coffee.

Plan Simple Meals for Your Guests

By Dorothy Overbey Extension Consumer Education Specialist

DURING the hot summer months everyone likes to get outside as much as possible. And parties are in style. They're as popular now as they were in grandmother's day. Although the automobile has replaced the horse, and foods come in different forms, it's still fun for all the family to enjoy an outdoor meal.

There are all kinds of picnics. And their success or failure depends many times on planning and preparation. The main thing to keep in mind when you're planning one is to keep it simple. This will make preparation easier, and it will be more fun for those who eat the food. There are four different foods are usually enough to include in the picnic menu. Make sure there is enough of each kind, but try to avoid leftovers.

Double Duty For Your Washer

An automatic washing machine can be used in two ways for better, easier starching. You can do your family's complete laundry by adding a concentrated hot-starch solution to similar pieces in the washer. Or some people prefer to starch pieces by hand as usual with the starch of their choice and then starch the pieces in the washer. Washer directions vary, so follow the instruction booklet for your machine. In general, however, starching requires resetting the controls after the pieces to be starched have been washed. Turn the controls to the rinse setting, add the hot starch solution, and then the items to be starched.

If sandwiches are made at home, they should be wrapped individually and packed carefully to carry them to the picnic. And cookies and cakes should be packed closely in a box, so that they do not move around to break up during the time they are being carried.

Foods with cream fillings should not be taken on a picnic because they spoil rapidly. And they cannot be kept satisfactorily for any length of time.

Food Quality Products (from 6)

All canned food should be stored in a cool, dark, dry place. Cool temperatures helps prevent the growth of bacteria and mold, and helps prevent the canned vegetables from changing color. Dampness will rust the lids and rings, so dryness is the third fact to remember in storing canned products.

As you can your food this summer, check the maturity of the vegetable, methods of preparation and canning. If all these things measure up, your canned food will be of high quality, and your family will enjoy eating it.

Make Floor Care Easier

By Gay Phillips

FLOOR care doesn't have to be a problem for modern homemakers. Now, a good job can be done quickly and efficiently.

"When a film of wax is on the floor, the dirt embeds itself in that and not in the flooring," says Elizabeth Bryan, Extension economist in home management. "The dirt is removed as the wax is removed. Without the wax, dirt grinds into the flooring, and frequent high polishing is necessary to get it up."

Types of Waxes

There are two basic types of waxes—polishing and buffing. Miss Bryan. And here are some of the characteristics of the two.

Polishing waxes include the two types of waxes that contain a solvent. They are applied by rubbing them soft in the container, making them easy to spread on floors. Both paste and liquid forms are available. And both must be rubbed or buffed to a shine.

The liquid form—somewhat more expensive than the paste—is easier to apply. It cleans during application by softening the dry wax on the floor. Liquid polishes and should not be used on a combination of tile and wood.

Self-polishing wax contains finely divided particles of solid wax in a water base. When the liquid dries, the particles form a clean, smooth, transparent film which reflects light and produces the shine. After the wax dries, a higher gloss can be obtained by rubbing or buffing. Traffic lines or other marks touched up when necessary. Care should be taken with wax wear off. Care should be taken with wax wear off. Care should be taken with wax wear off.

Cork Tile—Liquid polishing wax is the best protective treatment for sealed cork tile. But on vinyl cork, polishing or self-polishing wax can be used.

The type wax that is best for your floors depends on the type floors you have. Miss

Can Quality Products During Summer Months

By Belle Downey

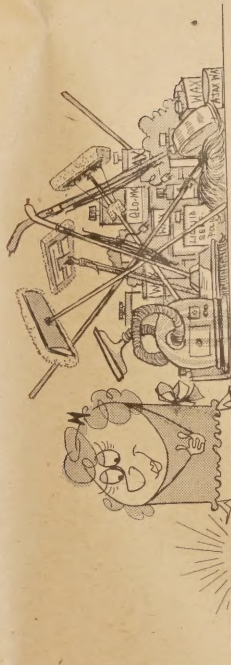

Extension Food Preservation Specialist

If someone comes to your home next winter and asks to see the vegetables in your pantry, will you have a display to be proud of? Or will you be embarrassed because some canned products are discolored, or the liquid doesn't fill with food?

Just aren't you to admit that some of your jars wouldn't "do" to be displayed. And food that is not attractive is generally not good to eat. What homemaker wants to spend time canning vegetables that her family won't eat?

To assure quality products, select good quality vegetables, use reliable methods of preparation and canning, and store canned food properly.

Do you always have some jars with all sizes of butterbeans in them? Some, no doubt, were too old to can and should have Ceramic Tile—Glazed ceramic tile is seldom a problem, but old, discolored tiles look cleaner after they're scrubbed with a polish-scrubber. Ceramic tile rarely warrants waxing of any kind.

Concrete—Polishing or self-polishing wax can be used on sealed concrete floors for easier upkeep.

Terrazzo and Marble—Even though these floors are well sealed, they are subject to staining unless protected with wax—either polishing or self-polishing. The homemaker may prefer a "sealer-type" product which contains polishing waxes, resin, and a slip-retardant finish.

Slate, Brick, and Flagstone—These floors, whether sealed or glazed, should be protected against wear by using the sealer-type product, self-polishing, or polishing wax.

Wood—Polishing wax is best for waxing wood because it removes dirt as the wax is applied. On worn wood floors, only the paste wax is recommended.

More detailed information on waxing is available at the home agent's office. Ask for Circular 474, "Modern Floor Care."

Cold packed vegetables will float, for they have not been preshrunk before placing in the jars, but hot packed vegetables are not as likely to float. Too tight a pack and not allowing enough liquid will often result in the canned product not being covered with liquid when removed from the pressure canner.

Another reason why "canned food" loses liquid in canning is because the canner was not exhausted long enough before closing the petcock, and air was left. Letting the pressure fluctuate too often—go up and then down—also causes loss of liquid. Sometimes the homemaker opens the petcock just after the pressure reaches zero and does not wait a few minutes; therefore, liquid is drawn out of the jars.

Start with a tender, mature vegetable. As soon as it is gathered, bring it in, and spread it in a cool place. Vegetables left in a tub or piled in a heap go through a heat which will give them an off-flavor. Start at once by washing and preparing the vegetable for the canner. From the garden to the canner in two hours is a good rule of thumb to follow.

This Month In Rural Alabama

Depends On Working Together

THE broiler business is one of Alabama's fastest growing industries. Many things have helped the success of this ever growing enterprise in Alabama, but one thing stands out: it has been built on a contract basis. Everyone—the producer, the contractor, the serviceman, the county agent, and other agencies—has been working together for the benefit of all.

The county agent has his best job possible. The contractor gets good birds and feeds and sells the chicks. Managing the birds and furnishing the equipment is the responsibility of the grower.

The serviceman—a specialist in his field—is hired by the contractor to assist the grower. He knows diseases and feeding techniques and how to deal with people.

The county agent works with the serviceman, contractor, and producer, keeping them informed on the latest production procedures. This is done through servicemen's schools arranged by the county agent and presented by specialists and personnel of the Auburn University Extension Service and Experiment Station.

A good example of the relationship that exists in the poultry business is the partnership between the poultry farm in Calhoun County, Roberts started producing broilers in 1935. He has since become more experienced, he gradually enlarged his enterprise to a full-time operation. He said, "To do a good job with broilers, you must stay with them. You can't just see the chickens in the morning and then again at night. You must be around them all the time." Calhoun County Farm Agent A. S. Mathews says, "This is just what Roberts has done."

Serviceman Jim Anderson says Roberts cooperates and takes suggestions well. He adds that most people think the job is done after they build a house. He says Roberts is different because he always tries to do something to improve his operation.

Anderson tries to do something to improve his operation. He has four 24-inch fans in each side of the house can be ventilated easily. The producer has put in every labor-saving device he can find. He has side sheeting fastened on a rod that he can raise or lower in less than a minute.

Roberts' contractor, Dewey Watley, says the producer is equipped for the critical months during the winter. This shows he is a top producer. He gets good feed conversion and livability during this time.

Farm Agent Mathews says, "This poultryman looks ahead for ways to do a more efficient job. He studies the business with the idea of finding better ways to improve feeding and management practices."

These are just some of the reasons why the broiler business has grown in Alabama.

Top right—

Many things have played a large part in the development of Alabama's broiler industry—the state's fastest growing industry. But the lead role has been the county agent. Shown from left examining one of the labor-saving devices on J. E. Roberts' Calhoun County farm are Serviceman Jim Anderson, Contractor Dewey Watley, Producer Roberts, and County Agent A. S. Mathews, Jr.

Bottom right—

Alabama poultrymen are always finding new ways to increase the life of their equipment. Here, Calhoun County Farm Agent A. S. Mathews, right, examines J. E. Roberts' way of hanging curtains on the side of his broiler house to protect them from the weather.

Chickens Are Cheap

Fill Your Freezer Now!

FOR the next few weeks, chicken will be inexpensive and supplies will be large. Allen Brown, Auburn Extension Service poultry marketing specialist, says, "With these big supplies available, it's a good time to buy chickens. With all the picnic coming up, that won't be too hard."

The large amount of chicken on the market now is due to changes in production. Research has made it possible for a chicken to reach the market weight early—8 to 10 weeks. And at this age, they are tender and nutritious.

"Modern plants built just for poultry processing and improved equipment have helped reduce costs," adds Brown. "Now a farmer can grow thousands of birds at this time through effective feeding and management. And all this means better chicken buys."

Why Is Peach Income 'Barely Fair'?

ACCORDING to a Fruit Marketing Specialist Chilton County's million dollar industry - The Peach - does not bring to Chilton County growers as much money as it should!

Any peach grower in Chilton County would classify that the understatement of the season. The question is why?

LACK OF ORGANIZATION - The answer lies in the lack of organization in the Peach industry, and though it has improved greatly in the past three years it is still far short of a goal which would insure a good income for Chilton's growers, packers, etc.

COUNTY'S 400 GROWERS - Chilton has some 400 of the commercial peach growers in the State. There are about 500 in Alabama. With this corner on the market so to speak it is difficult to understand why we are not progressing more rapidly toward a stable market for our crop of fruit, which is said to be "better than ever!"

Prospects this year are for a yield of 1,500,000 bushels on some 100,000 acres of trees. These are figures which cannot be easily displaced.

CANNERY IS SOLUTION, SOME SAY - Some farmers agree that a large cannery is the answer to our marketing problem. Others feel that this would bring the income of the crop up very little and still others are entirely against that avenue of solution.

FASTER TRANSPORTATION - Discussions with some of the foremost growers in the County have brought out the opinion that what we need is a "faster transportation system to a market that will pay top prices for top fruit." Others say this is not a solution, but a dream!

IT IS NO DREAM - It is definitely not a dream that we must work out some solution of our peach marketing problems before too long or lose our top position in the south as a peach producing area. Growers are discontented, and rightly so, when they lose 50% of their crop, either to low grading, the rain or loss of profit in the open market.

Many other counties envy our top position in this field of agriculture and are doubtless eyeing us very closely to see if we're going to drop the ball. And they may be more able to handle the problem, than we seem to be!

NOT HOW WHEN? - However, it is not so much a question of ability as one of when are we going to something about this? It is not the fight of the peach grower and the graders alone! There is hardly a businessman or a family in Chilton County that does not feel the effect and influence of the peach, be it good or bad. When it's bad we all suffer!

EVERYBODY'S PROBLEM - It is therefore a job which we should all be concerned with and the door is wide open for solutions to the problem. Chilton County has gained a name throughout the nation for growing top quality, luscious peaches. It would be a shame if we were to lose that good name through neglect, inaction and apathy to our own needs!

MUST FIND GREATER DEMAND - We must find a market for our peaches. One which will insure the greatest number of growers that their crop is wanted and will be used.

IT HURTS THE GROWER - Nothing hurts the peach farmer

worse than seeing his crop go to waste. And it isn't the money he loses so much as it is the food that's wasted that bothers him.

The farmer knows that someone somewhere needs and wants the fruit he grows! It is disgraceful that our farmers have developed this talent, in fact, art and then cannot serve the needs of hungry people.

Peaches, like people, are perishable and must be marketed rapidly or they will rot. Our task seems evident enough! What are we going to do about it?

Selden Blasts Cuban Policy

Rep. Armistead Selden has told the House of Representatives in a blistering attack on the Administration's Latin American Policy that we need swift, firm action to meet and turn back the communist offensive in Cuba.

Describing current U. S. policy toward Latin America as "one of drift rather than drive and response rather than initiative, Selden warned that unless collective action is taken against Castro's government, "the American people ultimately will demand a unilateral solution or a multilateral solution supported by those American nations which will honor their hemispheric commitments."

He said the Administration's efforts to enlist support for collective action from members of the Organization of American States have been "tentative and mincing."

"In my opinion," he added, the past half-year has seen an ominous continuation of the policy of drift and wait that has characterized our relations with Latin America in recent years."

Congressman Selden who is Chairman of the House Subcommittee on Inter-American Affairs, said he recognized that the Administration and the Congress have made a beginning at long-range

Fight For States Rights; Patterson

Gov. Patterson Blasts Federal Encroachment, Urges Governors To Fight For States Right

Honolulu, Hawaii — Alabama Gov. John Patterson called on the nation's governors this week to stand their ground and halt the spread of federal encroachments.

"The authority of the States is continually challenged by a policy of superseding federal authority," the governor charged. "If the present trend continues, the States will shortly be reduced to the status of mere 'counties' in a federal system."

Gov. Patterson spoke out strongly in defense of the States during the annual National Governors Conference, which is meeting here this week. He is a member of the conference's committee on federal-State relations.

The Alabama chief executive cited the use of federal marshals in Alabama as an example of unwarranted federal intervention in State affairs. The problem is not just Southern in nature, he said, but one confronting every State.

In a 20-page prepared speech, Gov. Patterson ripped into what he called "federal almightiness."

The present Washington policy seems to favor the creation of a federal government "master" with all States relegated to the role of "servant," the governor said. The inherent rights of States are now in danger as never before.

He reviewed the circumstances of the disorders in Alabama and urged other States to take full cognizance of federal intervention. If the forces of the federal government can be set into my State, they may also be dispatched into any of the other 49 with equal disregard for all State law.

The Alabama governor accused the federal government of offering official encouragement to the so-called freedom riders and giving them implied sanction to break State laws under the cloak of interstate commerce immunity. He called the federal position on race relations disturbing and distressing.

The U. S. Attorney General is demonstrating a schoolboy's innocence in his actions, Patterson said.

The governor also had strong words to use in referring to Northern politicians who wink at shameful conditions in their own back yards and jump with regularity on the South's neck. He admitted he did not appreciate such castigations for the sole reason of hometown political expedience, and the people of the South resent such attacks.

"I believe the South is being unfairly chastised," he said.

Gov. Patterson blamed what he called freedom writers for slandering the South in the eyes of the world. In recent weeks he said, "we have been subjected to an extremely vile hate the South campaign by prejudiced writers who accuse us of harboring prejudices."

In his speech to his fellow governors, Patterson outlined recent progress in Alabama and voiced a plea that the State be allowed to work out its problems on its own schedule, in its own way. The customs of generations are not changed in a single year or perhaps even in decades, he said.

If Washington pushes integration by force, he predicted the South would be in for what he termed "a deconstruction era."

Such action would also worsen federal-State relations to such an extent that the Southern States might be engaged in a full scale cold war within our own government, Gov. Patterson said.

The National Governors Conference opened Sunday, and ended Thursday. Gov. Patterson will return to Montgomery this week end.

In Support Of So-Called 'Speed Traps'

So much noise has been made recently regarding "speed traps" and alleged rackets of fine motorists with out of state tags that the Alabama Motor Club believes it's time to remind the motoring public of the other side of the picture. While some few claims have been substantiated—and, in most instances, measures taken to correct the situation—all small town lawenforcers have suffered a black eye and are expecting an undue amount of criticism.

Certainly the motorists have the right to scream at unjust arrests and the right to demand the privilege of a trial. But the majority of drivers caught and charged with speeding have to admit that they were guilty, even though they were speeding "just a little bit."

The speeding "just a little bit" is elected, appointed, law enforcement officer has a real job to do. He is protecting the lives of his community and that of the traveler passing through. Investigation into some complaints of speed traps has revealed very good reason for the strict enforcement of the law. A high accident rate on one particular stretch of highway justifies a local community crack-down on offenders exceeding the specified safe speed limit, even if the motorist is going just a few miles over the limit. The extra few miles may be just enough to result in tragedy.

Better to offend an out of state driver with the cost of a fine, reminding him of the local speed laws, than to permit a possibility of the supreme price—the cost of a life.

The national traffic death toll is too serious to allow us to resent the officers patrolling our streets and highways, or think of them as villains. The game may still be cops and robbers, but the robber is Death—and the cop is on our side!

Should Be Planted To Cotton In Chilton County This Season!

HARDEST TO CONTROL!

SPIDER MITE

Auburn University says:

1. Control of cotton insects calls for good judgment. You want to use ample insecticides at the right time and in the right way to protect the foliage, squares, and, more important, the bolls.

2. Examine each field of cotton once a week. When pests are numerous enough to cause damage, apply an insecticide at once.

3. When 10 percent of the squares are punctured by boll weevils, start poisoning. Treat fields every 5 days when necessary. To protect bolls during weevil migration, dust or spray every fourth day.

Do not stop treating fields until top bolls are about grown. Boll weevils often destroy more cotton during the last 2 or 3 weeks before harvest than at any other time during the season.

4. Bollworms may be a problem throughout the growing season. Good coverage of all parts of the plant is necessary to control this pest. Don't miss the top of cotton plants—that's where bollworms start.

5. Spider mites are hardest to control because they feed on the underside of leaves. Thorough treatment is essential for good control.

County agents have details on how to fight cotton insects.

Policy Of Secrecy Of R.E.A. Hit By Alabama Power Company

Gordon L. Robertson, district manager of Alabama Power Company here, said this week that "Certain practices of the Rural Electrification Administration with respect to loans to co-ops have become such that Walter Bouldin, the Company's president has suggested to employees of the Company that their congressmen might be interested in their views about these practices."

Of special concern, says Mr. Gordon L. Robertson (local Power Company representative), is the policy of secrecy of the Rural Electrification Administration with respect to loans to co-ops for generating plants and its failure to consider such costs, including Federal income taxes.

These policies were protested by Mr. Bouldin before the Agricultural Subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee.

A point on the Northeast boundary line where the Jemison and Collins Chapel Road crosses said boundary line, thence run North 210 feet, thence West 210 feet, thence South 210 feet, thence East 210 feet, back to point of beginning. Committee on Appropriations during May, after Company representatives had inquired at the REA office in Washington whether or not application had been filed by the Alabama Electric Cooperative for a loan to build additional steam generating facilities and were told that it is the policy of the REA, not to disclose the pendency of any such application. Mr. Bouldin in his statement to the Subcommittee also invited attention to the fact that the generating co-op does not pay Federal income tax and "therefore destroys a source of government revenue" to the degree that taxable incomes of investor-owned companies are diminished as a consequence. "It seems to me," he observed, "that a branch of our government in effect says to us: We are going to take your business and give it to the co-op because you pay income tax to us and they don't."

Mr. Bouldin's entire statement to the Subcommittee was sent to all employees of the Company. In the letter received by Mr. Gordon L. Robertson and other employees Mr. Bouldin wrote:

"The use of public funds to duplicate existing facilities and to destroy a source of Federal revenue is unnecessary and particularly indefensible in the light of the present world situation demanding the utmost of our Government resources."

"This statement has been sent to our Senators and Congressmen in Washington who would, I am sure, be interested in an expression of your views."

ed glad to receive the things we carried them. We really enjoyed doing this for them.

You already may have installed one or more air conditioners in your home or will before the summer is over so you'll be physically comfortable. To avoid getting "hot under the collar" when your electric bill increases, as hot weather continues and you use your air conditioning more, remember that as in the case of any electrical appliance, the operating cost of an air conditioner depends entirely upon the amount of current used.

Urban residential customers who use 100 kilowatt-hours a month pay an average of only about 2 1/2 cents a kilowatt-hour. Those using 250 a month pay only 2-1/5 cents a kilowatt-hour, and those using 1,363 or more kilowatt-hours a month pay an average of less than 1 1/2 cents a kilowatt-hour.

It's difficult to say in advance exactly how little or how much the comfort provided by your air conditioner will cost per month. Under some circumstances the cost for air conditioning homes can be $10 or more per ton of capacity (or per horsepower) per month. Many families, of course, enjoy air conditioning comfort for less than this, depending upon conditions.

Besides the weather, the cost of operating an air conditioner of any kind is dependent on a number of variables such as:

- the number of hours operated each day;
- the difference between the temperature outside and the temperature you want inside;
- whether your home is in sun or shade;
- how often doors are opened or left open;
- the amount of space to be air conditioned and the right size air conditioner for the job;
- adequacy of insulation;
- location of your air conditioner;
- cleanliness of filters in your air conditioner;
- adequacy of wiring.

NOTE: Some types of air conditioners used for cooling in summer also can be used for heating in winter. This is the type known as the heat pump, suitable for heating flamelessly a complete residence or one or two rooms. If you are planning to build or remodel or add on rooms, ask for full information about the heat pump.

Lazy As A Hound Dog

IF the average motorist is as lazy and as unconcerned as the average businessman the day before the Fourth of July and the day after, then we can understand why there are so many fatal traffic accidents on those days!

The Art Of Speaking Out Of Turn

FOR those people who believe in arguing and fighting to prove themselves, here is a case in point against that philosophy: Two sparrows were sparring in the middle of the roadway, paying no attention to anything except their own differences. A two ton vehicle bore down on them and one of them was killed in the resulting tangle. Now, we ask you: "Is fighting over a petty difference of opinion worth that?"

Horses And Shorts

IN Gurnee, Ill. it is against the law for a woman weighing over 200 pounds to ride a horse with shorts on! Now you see how you can mess yourself up with an adjective here and a noun or two there! We don't know about the horses, but we think shorts on a 200 pound woman is better'n nothing! And we can imagine that shorts on a horse is better'n a 200 pound woman -- at least from the horses point of view anyway!

Isabella Boy

FULL-grown now, and able to compete in the world of politics and big business is Winfred A. LeCroy. But it wasn't always that way! "Bing", as he is known around Clanton and Chilton County came all the way up from an obscure farm boy in the Isabella Community of Chilton County to one of the highest political offices in the State of Alabama; that of Superintendent of Education.

We are confident that W. A. LeCroy will serve the people of this State as efficiently as he did we here in Chilton County. We sincerely hope that he will continue on the road along which he started out to make his mark in the world. That of progressive service to the people of his community, his County and his State. Our blessings to the task ahead of him and our prayers for the strength he will need for that task!

What's Mine Is Mine And What's Yours Is Mine

TAKING the term "Free Press" in it's most literal sense... there's no such thing!

And now they're trying to hike the mailing costs to newspapers, a field in which the newspaper has enjoyed some bit of immunity in the past years. But why that immunity? Why has the nation's press received special attention at the hands of the Post Office Department? Because they want an informed public and they know that there is only one way to achieve that... through the community newspaper! There is no other business or public media that gives more "free" space to the Federal Government than does the community press. Apparently the Government no longer sees fit to use those services as a vital link in the chain between government and people. The weekly newspaper is fighting for it's very life against taxes, rising costs, mailing expenses and "free" releases from the Federal Government.

What we want to know is: Why is it that everything the Federal Government does for us costs us money and everything we do for the Federal Government costs us money? We don't know how the statisticians in Washington figure a setup like that, but our feeble mastery of elementary arithmetic tells us that it can't be done! Not on the income of a weekly newspaper, anyhow!

"D. H. Moreau, publisher of the HUNTERDON COUNTY DEMOCRAT, suggests that newspapers do more than just write their Congressman asking him to vote against the abolishment of the free-in-county delivery of newspapers. He suggests they send along a marked copy of the paper indicating the items that benefit the government and make for a more intelligent electorate.

Here are his suggestions: Mark all releases sent

THIS WEEK ON CAPITOL HILL

BY CARL GOGGINS

The legislators may ignore a few firecrackers over the Fourth and their two week paid vacation but the bang will probably be slight as compared to the fireworks expected on July 11 when the Legislature reconvenes--especially in the Senate.

There seems no doubt that when the lawmakers return to work in the upper chamber they will run head on into an anti-Ferguson-redistributing-bill filibuster. That measure, which chokes up Rep. Kenneth Roberts' Four Congressional District, along with the Halmot reappointment bill is on the Senate calendar now.

I was believed by some observers that the Black Belt bloc would lobby at length against the Halmot bill when the Senate resumes work. However, the Black Belters were boasting last week they had enough votes to kill the measure or at least substitute it for a 67 senator plan sponsored by Hale-Greene Sen. W. F. Wilson. Halmot's plan is identical to the oppositioning bill which was defeated in the House recently 40 to 50.

Besides voting themselves a two-week paid vacation, other highlights of the Halmot bill committee of last week's session were the re-passage of the Quickie Divorce bill in the House and a ruling by Lt. Gov. Albert Boutwell that newly-introduced bills do not have to be read, which was upheld by a 10-9 vote. The first and second vote of the Senate, 17-15.

Although the Senate got into a lengthy wrangle over whether or not to go along with the over chamber to give themselves a two-week paid vacation and continue to draw their $30 per day salary, some of the senators had to do an about face to do so. Voting for the pay were: Archer of Madison, Crawford of Perry, Farmer of Henry, Halmot of Lauderdale, Gaither of Cleburne, Godfrey of Cherokee, Graham of Autauga, Hines of Chambers, Jones of Elmore, Leonard of Talladega, Moses of Marion, Porter of Washington, Roberts of Fayette, Rutledge of Wilcox, Turner of Etowah, Webb of Escambia, Wilton of Hale, Word of Jackson and Wyatt of St. Clair.

Voting against the paid vacation were: Andrews of Bullock, Barnett of Dale, Berryman of Lawrence, Caffey of Mobile, Clark of Barbour, Cooper of Wilcox, DeGraffenried of Tuscaloosa, Dumas of Jefferson, Givhan of Dallas, Green of Sumter, Kendall of Conecuh, Robison of Montgomery, Samford of Lee and Shelton Gaither, Graham and Wilson of Calhoun. On the original vote not receive pay. The initial vote on the matter failed 18-16.

RAY'S OF HOPE

By Virginia H. Stover

We may conquer kingdoms, accomplish great things but if we do not learn the art of self-control we are utter failures. None of us are so good (if we are worth our salt) but what we have need occasionally to put a restraining lid on our emotions. Even then we have to say with Paul that we count not ourselves to have attained but we keep striving to do so.

Self control is something we all should practice. It should begin in the cradle. All of this philosophy about not restraining the child for mere bosh! The ones among us who have reared children to be parents themselves know they can not teach self-control too early. If the child isn't learned to control his feelings when he is young how is he ever going to control himself when he is older and learns that decent people do not give away to their emotions with every wind that blows.

Christ living in the heart can make the difference in people but let us never forget that we have a will power that he expects us to keep under subjection and divert in to the high channels. We close with this saying by Charlotte roset the English novelist: "Life appears to me to be too short to be spent worrying over the things we say in a fit of anger or rebellion too. Let's remember that. To rid ourselves of these sins we may do as the poem suggests:

Dusty eaves by the roadside lay, Hot and dry and parched today, Rain, that refreshed and blessed But as darkness came, I heard the 'rain. Within my heart lay the dust of sin. Neglect of duty, mistakes within, In darkness kneeling, hewed down with care. I was refreshed in answered prayer.

100 YEARS AGO

This Fourth of July week of the Civil War one hundred years ago saw more action in the war of ideas and the war of nerves than in the shooting war.

On July 4th, 1861, the United States Congress convened in special session and proceeded to back up measures Lincoln had taken since the fall of Fort Sumter to combat the Confederacy.

In Montgomery, Alabama, this Fourth of July, 1861, business reportedly was measurably suspended and a national salute was fired. Montgomery newspapers had debated whether the Confederacy should claim the Fourth as a national holiday.

NOSEBLEED Nosebleeds are common, occurring in children who fall on their faces and elderly persons with hardening of the arteries. Fatal nosebleed is usually caused by head injury, cardiovascular disease, or a blood vessel tumor in the nasal chambers. A number of such fatal nosebleeds cases have been the result of being struck on the nose by a fist. The usual local causes of nosebleed are foreign bodies in the nasal passageway, infection, blood disturbance, failure of the blood to coagulate properly,

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB TUCKER

A most encouraging turn of event presented itself this week. Our own has spoken out against the weak Congressman Armistead J. Selden policy of the present administration on the Cuban situation. We have been of the opinion that Mr. Selden could do this all the time and were wondering what was holding him back. Now that he has made this somewhat bold step into the "new frontier" we would like to see him back him up all the way. We can think of no one man who can do the South and our Country more good than can Mr. Selden simply by standing forth and holding up his convictions. Strength of character is what we seem to be considerably shy of in Washington these days. Selden has it. It is with thankful hearts that we see him exercising it. And he will persist, if he will persist.

ONE of the most unique facets of our peach industry here in Chilton County is the growers' apparent inability to accept defeat at the hands of Mother Nature. Every year we hear untold numbers of farmers saying "After this year I'm going to pull up every peach tree I ever owned!" Or something to that effect. And every year they change their minds after they have a bit of good luck at the hands of Mother Nature. We don't know what it is that makes them so "defeatist" at least it is encouraging, that they do not go through with their claims. Any kind of farming is one of the greatest of risks, but it does look as though a man who has been doing it for years and years would take a more philosophic view point of his lot in life. And of course, some of them do just that!

THIS could very well be titled: "Chilton County (half anyone) Editor, The Alabama Baptist, Alabama Baptist, A luncheon and fellowship will be enjoyed at this meeting.

At Carthage, Missouri, 100 years ago, pro-Confederate Missouri State troops forced Union troops to retreat.

An editorial, entitled, "Lincoln's Conspiracy against Liberty" in the Montgomery Daily Post of July 2, 1861, attacked Lincoln for "fomenting civil war" among the people of Kentucky and Missouri. The editorial also castigated Lincoln for arresting and imprisoning pro-Confederate citizens of Maryland, a move which did not succeed from the Union.

and rheumatic fever. Prolonged blood pressure in the older person causing and straining and increased are frequent causes of nosebleed.

The first account of a fatal nosebleed in this country was reported in 1809 and described the case of a 42 year old male miner who, was struck on the face while working. This patient died 38 days after the accident from loss of blood. Since then there have been many cases of fatal nosebleed reported in medical literature.

Control of nosebleed in most instances is obtained by precise and firm packing over the bleeding vessels sometimes in combination with the use of chemical coagulation at the bleeding point. The physician treating a nosebleed case is concerned with the cause, and, once bleeding has been controlled, a search of the patient's history can provide clues as to the possibility of disorders in the cardiovascular system, the blood-forming tissues, or the blood-coagulating mechanism. Nosebleed can be fatal.

The increased benefits will be financed by higher payroll taxes beginning next year. For employers the payroll tax will be one-eighth of 1 per cent more on the first $4800 of annual income of each employee. The employee tax will match this amount while the self-employed will be required to increase their tax by one-fifth of 1 per cent.

ANOTHER BIG REASON BEHIND THE BIG BOOM IN FORD SALES:

No other wagon can match Ford's features (or popularity!)

Ford wagons have features that only America's station wagon specialists can bring you.

There's more room. Ford's extended load deck is the longest and widest in its field. There's more convenience. You can have a power-operated roll-down rear window in any Ford wagon.

There's more distinction. The Country Squire (above) is the only wagon in its field with body panels that look like mahogany, wear like steel.

There are more savings. Ford's Ranch Wagon is America's lowest-priced,* full-size wagon. And like all Ford's, every Ford wagon is built to be more service-free: goes 30,000 miles between chassis lubrications, 4,000 miles between oil changes.

Stop waiting for that wagon you've always wanted. Swap for a '61 Ford wagon now! Save for a '61 Ford, the wagon America loves most!

Today is the day to STOP...SWAP...SAVE

PASTORS MEET PRESS IN CONFAB

ON Monday, July 10th, the pastors of the Chilton County Baptist Association, along with church reporters and representatives from the Alabama Baptist, official organ of the Church, were present at a panel discussion of "What Is Church News?" and "The Proper Form For Church News."

Members of the panel were T. E. Wyatt, editor of the Union Banner and Bob Tucker, Managing Editor of the Chilton County News.

Opening remarks were made by Rev. M. G. Fields, pastor of the Clanton Baptist Church.

REV. M. G. FIELDS

the newsman panel and then questions from the group of about 35 church people were answered by them.

David K. Morris, Public Relations Director of the Baptist State Executive Board gave a brief summary of "What Is Public Relations."

It was the opinion of the presiding minister, Rev. M. G. Fields, who is also the Associational Missionary for this County, that the Conference was a success and served to bring the churches and their newspapers closer together.

DAVID MORRIS

The editors attempted to bring out the fact that the business of the church and the newspaper is very closely related and bring about greater harmony and progress in the community by working together.

Bob Tucker, of the News, stated: "It is my opinion that this conference is, or could be, the beginning of something great for Chilton County. If more organizations would prevail upon themselves to learn more about the working of their community newspapers, a long step would be taken in the relationship of the individual and its means of expressing his opinion and ideas to his fellowman, through the pages of the community press."

Pastors and reporters will now One of the best baseball games to evaluate and compile news of their churches and communities which go to the people through the community newspapers.

New Pastor At Samaria Baptist Takes Census

Rev. Don Graham has accepted the call of the Samaria Baptist Church of the Chilton-Union Association and began his ministry there July 1, 1961. He immediately made plans to launch a soul winning campaign by bringing all the Deacons of the church together and challenging them to help win the lost by taking a religious census, organizing a visitation program, and a revival in which he will be bringing the messages and the Associational Missionary to lead the singing.

Bro. Graham moved to Clanton this week and is residing at 607 8th Street North, the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Walker. He is a student of Howard College and will attend school two days each week. The rest of his time will be devoted to pastoral responsibilities. Several members of the Samaria church attended their pastor's ordination to the Gospel Ministry last Sunday, July 9, 3:00 p.m. at his home church Union Baptist of the Bessemer Baptist Association. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Graham of Bessemer who are devoted members of the Union Baptist Church.

The people of the Samaria church have already experienced an arrival of Brother Graham and with welcoming of new life since the help of the Lord and the continued spirit of cooperation among the members it is felt the church will reach new heights as a soul winning organization under the leadership of this fine young man of the Lord.

Bro. M. G. Fields, Associational Missionary has great hopes for this young man and O. N. Glenn Superintendent of the Church is happy to announce his acceptance to their call.

My Neighbors

"What in the world has become of all the budget balancers we used to hear about during the campaign?"

"CHILTON COUNTY PEACHES ARE TOPS"

There was a peach named "Chilco",
And he fell upon the ground,
Nobody heard his fervent plea,
No market could be found.

It happened that the place he fell,
Was in the farmer's stie;
And old Belle sow was standing there,
And he looked her in the eye;

"You'll not eat me, or my cousins yet,"
Young Chilco cried with glee,
"You've had your last meal off of us,
A fact, just wait and see!"

It seems the peaches had a plan,
With the long-range thought in mind,
That if they worked together,
They could lick their woes, and find

A solution to their troubles,
Which were many, dark and sad,
If they could find a market
All the growers would be glad!

Chilco peach stood up, brushed off his fuzz,
And climbed upon the crate;
"We've got a problem before fruit,
It's awesome, old and great!"

But if we work together,
We can bring to pass a market,
Which will give our farmer friend
At something in his pocket.

The time has come, we all agree
Let's shout it, sing and dance;
The market that our growers need
Is one that's 'in advance!'"

The last we heard of Chilco,
He was spreading out the news;
That the only way to get things done
Is to stand, and give your views!

Law Officers--

Accident Puts 2 In Hospital

SPEED was the culprit when Officer W. J. Lawrence and Deputy Sheriff T. J. Lockhart were seriously injured in a smashup about mid-afternoon Tuesday, July 11th.

According to reports the officers had received a call to proceed to the scene of a possible fight near the Three Points Grocery. Topping the hill at the Gap of the Mountain on the Lay Dam Road an oil truck was making a left turn in front of the Highway Patrol car. Lawrence, who was driving, slammed on the brakes and skidded some 100 to 150 feet before hitting the truck an going under the back end of the vehicle.

Spigener Ambulance answered the call and according to a spokesman for them, the two men were banged up pretty badly.

Hospital reports were that Lawrence suffered a broken jaw, several teeth knocked out and three ribs broken. Lockhart had internal injuries and an unauthorized report said that he had a broken toe. He was still somewhat shaken up early Wednesday morning.

Both officers had a good night Tuesday night and were resting well Wednesday. They are in the Chilton County Hospital.

The driver of the truck was injured.

Chilton County Sheriff Hugh Champion is still recuperating from injuries he received in a similar accident two weeks ago!

Poison In Autauga— MOONSHINERS QUIET IN SUMMER MONTHS ACCORDING TO CASES MADE IN CHILTON

IN Chilton County, during the month of June only 6 cases were made against the illegal activity of making moonshine whiskey, out of a possible 480 over the State of Alabama.

The highest number of cases made in the State for June was in Tuscaloosa with 40 cases.

Autauga had 7; Bibb had 9; Coosa had 1; Dallas had 5 and Shelby had 6.

Persons arrested in Chilton County numbered 7 with 4 stills destroyed 960 gallons of mash seized or destroyed. Amount of whiskey seized in this County was 31 gallons. Also 180 pounds of sugar was confiscated.

Fines and costs assessed by courts over the entire State amounted to $12,402.85.

Poisonous moonshine whiskey was found in 12 counties in the State, one of them being the Booth Area of Autauga County.

140,329 gallons of mash was destroyed by Federal, State and County officials in June. That's a lot of 'would have been' rot-gut misery. Especially when you consider that it doesn't take near a gallon of the stuff to kill or cripple you for life!

Peaches And The Ostrich

OUR front page lead last week concerning the Chilton County Peach and what we are doing, and are going to do about it's continuance as a money crop in this County drew some attention from individuals in the County who could mean a great deal, indeed, to the success of a concentrated effort to increase the market value of our crop.

We are most greatly encouraged by the interest shown and are now of the opinion that the time is ripe to do something about this situation.

If enough of our growers, packers and businessmen, as well as agricultural leaders will show an interest in an all-out drive to better the conditions surrounding the peach industry we will make some progressive steps.

It seems that our people are not as arathetic about the peach economy as they are hesitant to stand forth and say something. We don't know which is worse, apathy or shyness, but we do know that nothing is accomplished by an Ostrich who hides his head in the sand to avoid responsibility!

Let's put it in gear and go!

Election Year Conting Up

AS you know, next year is a big election year in Chilton County and the State of Alabama. The News is planning a series of articles concerning VOTING and we think the people of this County will find it helpful and challenging to their responsibility and their right to vote in a free election.

Personally speaking, we care what political party you are affiliated with and are loyal too! As an American citizen, however, we cannot advocate a light vote or a heavy vote just because we think it would help our Party's chances in an election. If you are a citizen, and are eligible to vote -- then by all means you are derelict in your duty to your Country if you do not exercise that privilege and vote your honest convictions.

The Jet-Age

WE are not hearing nearly enough about the proposed airline service to Chilton County that was brought to our attention a few weeks ago. If there is a possibility that we could get this service in Chilton County, then it is the opinion of this newspaper that we make every effort to acquire same.

It would mean untold benefit to our Chamber of Commerce, to many industries in this County and also mean a great deal in attracting new industries. This is an age of fast communication and air travel. If we can obtain these facilities we should be most gratified at an opportunity to assist in getting them!

Shopping Center

GRAPEVINE talk has been floating around Clanton for several months now concerning a new Shopping Center to be built here. We have no definite word on this particular bit of action, but are intrigued by the possibilities. A center of this type would mean much to the economic "pick up" of this community. We have a feeling that anyone with such plans in mind are waiting to see what we are going to do about industry in this area. A shopping Center would go over big here if we had the population increase that such a venture demands. We are listening attentively!

The American Way

IT has always held true, in this Country of ours, that a man, any man, could rise above his present status in life, or if he so desired, could dive into the depths of poverty, ignorance and laziness.

But the outstanding feature of the American way of life, has always been that of personal freedom to choose what path we wish to take.

Disregarding the numerous facets of the racial strife in this Country, let's look at it purely from a social standpoint. If one person or a group of persons seeks to take another person or group of persons out of their economic and social atmosphere and place them in an entirely different one merely because that first

Old Portraits Never Die
They Just Fade Away

THE appeal made last week by the Board of Revenue & Control through this newspaper has met with some success. Probate Judge White and the Board Members decided that it would be an interesting gesture if the pictures of all previous Probate Judges and Board Members of Chilton County were placed in a prominent position in the new Courthouse building. We have already had some folks in to the News this week bearing pictures of relatives and we anticipate many more in the next few days. It will mean a lot to our County and, we think, to the pioneer's families!

We guarantee that your photo or portrait will not be harmed and will be returned to you in good condition if you so request.

BILLIONS OF BUGS DEFY MAN... SCIENCE

person or group feels that it is the "doo-good" responsibility to do it, then they are not only imposing on the persons they are trying to "help" but are also treading heavily on the rights of those with whom they would mix the group.

That is a form of creeping socialism which we are against. To seek freedom is one thing; to impose on other freedoms for the sake of one is another!

Every individual American has the right to choose his own way, be it forward or backward. No American or group of Americans has the right to impose a "so-called" freedom on another American simply because they believe in it. No friend we now enjoy as a friend, has ever been thrust upon by a third party. Friendship is mutual understanding or common ideals and principles.

We do not condone the discrimination against a man because he is a different color from us or because he has a physical disability or because he comes from a different part of the country or a different social background. Neither do we condone the practice of transplanting social and economic differences. If a social and economic climate is favorable to an individual nature and time and the ambition of the individual will transplant him. No man has ever invented a way to artificially do this and no man ever will. You cannot uproot an entire forest of full grown trees and plant them in another forest which is already crowded and with it's own individual problems and trials and expect either one to fare very well. The racial agitators would do well to consider this basic principle of nature and the world.

How To Kill 500

Persons In 100 Hours

The motoring public has just completed the fourth of July holiday massacre on the streets and highways of the State and Nation according to a news release by safety Director Floyd H. Mann.

He said, "It is sickening to think that almost 500 lives were lost during the Fourth of July holiday weekend in the Nation and 16 of these lives were lost on the highways of Alabama during the same period."

The Director says, "The investigations conducted by the Highway Patrol Officers clearly indicate that these Alabama Highway fatalities resulted from these three violations:

1. Driving on the wrong side of the road.
2. Excessive speed and running off the road.
3. Driving under the influence of Alcohol."

THIS WEEK ON CAPITOL HILL

BY CARL GOGGINS

The first half of the 1961 legislative session is over. What's been accomplished so far?

Sen. Al Turner of Crenshaw about summed it up in a talk before Alabama county farm agents at their annual convention in Birmingham recently. In a speech entitled "Legislative Achievements During the First Six Weeks, Turner expounded humorously: The only thing we've done so far is give ourselves a paid two-week vacation.

Although the lawmakers have done a little more than this, there is more truth than poetry in his remarks. Yet, to many politicians "no laws are good laws." In the 17 legislative days of the 36 day session before the members took off on their two week July 4 holiday, only 31 bills and one constitutional amendment were passed and sent to Gov. Patterson.

What has caused this apparent slowdown, especially when you compare this session to that of the last session, one of 1959? The deadlock has resulted mostly from the fight over congressional redistricting and unless the lawmakers decide the stat into eight districts instead of the present nine, then all the congressmen will have to run at large in 1962.

Rich Mountain and Laurel Hill in northwestern Virginia, were the scene of the Confederacy's first important defeat in the Civil War, in fighting July 11-13, 1861, one hundred years ago this week. Union success in this action kept the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad from Washington to the Midwest open for Union use in northwestern Virginia.

Exhausted by many hours of climbing and marching around rain drenched and laurel thicketed Rich Mountain, 500 Confederate soldiers surrendered to Union Brigadier General W. S. Rosecrans July 13th. Other Confederate detachments in the same area were forced to retreat.

The South lost its first general to be killed in the Civil War in this fighting, at Rich Mountain. He was Brigadier General R. S. Garnett, a Virginian, who hoped to make northwestern Virginia safe for the Confederacy.

The reverse of Garnett's expectations occurred. General George B. McClellan, Union commander in northwestern Virginia, issued July 14, 1861, the following communique: "We have annihilated the enemy in Western Virginia... Our success is complete and secession is killed in this country." Western Virginia later seceded from the Confederacy and became the state of West Virginia.

Meanwhile this week, July 9-15, 1861, newspapers in Montgomery Alabama carried items on support of the Confederate cause.

Merchants of Tuskegee, it was reported July 12, 1861, had held a meeting and resolved to take Confederate bonds in payment for debts due them.

Citizens of Marengo County had subscribed 8,000 bales of cotton to the Confederate loan and would subscribe more, according to another report of July 12.

Radio of Montgomery was praised July 13, 1861 for their needwork which had furnished sandhams to make batteries at Pensacola and

He said, "These are the violations that all news media have been continually warning the motoring public to avoid. It was great tragedy in each of these 10 fatal accidents during the holiday period because one or more lives were lost in each of them. The greatest tragedy was the deaths that came to innocent passengers, especially the children who were killed."

Except for one car-pedestrian death during this period, all fatal accidents showed that the accidents were caused by drivers who were doing on the wrong side of the road and drivers who were traveling at excessive speed and ran off the roadway.

In conclusion Mr. Mann said, "We have suffered another slaughter on our streets and highways because motorists insisted in violating the traffic laws. Surely, the living will profit from the tragic errors that resulted in a blood bath on the highways of our state during the recent 'Holiday Season.'"

THINGS

We see and hear

by BOB

WE make it a practice not to patronize persons places or things when they do not conform to our personal convictions of right or wrong. This may not be according to your way of doing, but each to his own conscience! It is disgusting that the entertainment field especially the movies are of the opinion that people will not accept entertainment unless it deals with sex, immorality, crime or violence. They underestimate the discrimination of the American people. It is not the theatre owners, but the publicity agents and advertising representatives who seem to thrive on this unadulterated exaggeration.

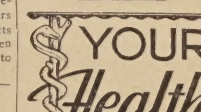

In particular is the way a movie is played up in advertising to look like something it is not. A case in point: "A Fever In The Blood", a movie which played recently at the Clanton Drive-In Theatre was advertised with the obvious intent to look like a "sex movie". We went to the show that night, against our better judgement and thoroughly enjoyed a fine movie about politics! The basis of the plot did deal with the sex theme, but aside from that it was entirely in the realm of Americanism integrity and great people! Who do they make you feel like to lose in a good, wholesome, entertaining movie by trying to sensationalize it through the use of sex? We'll never understand why, but they are biting off their nose to spite their face and we still contend that they underestimate the moral standards of the majority of the American people! Anyway, thanks to Mr. Jackson for bringing us one of the most entertaining movies I have long time -- and one with a message, if you could see past the girl on the poster and in the advertisement. Undoubtedly some folks went with the intention of seeing a "red hot number". They were obviously disappointed. They'll never know how many persons missed a very good movie because it looked like something it was not! We were pleasantly surprised!

WE have a stock of "SALE" signs here at the store now as well as "POSTER". You can get as many as you want for 10c a piece. Get 'em got 'em.

AT the top of this column read our opinion of "hordes of evil-minded weirdos" who are reading (and viewing) that exciting story of the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" dark passions was the fleeing? Was the bloody really as virtuous as the U. S. Income Tax Guide-drama of a man and his wife.

"Little Black Sambo" -- drama of... pitying the of the jungle against the fighter for racial integrity. The Telephone Directory drama in the lives of the day men and women! Tremendous cast of characters assembled in a single film. See what we mean by alism?

IT'S a funny thing, but people who work the hardest something for nothing, wind up with the latter!

Pain is not always confined to one part of the body; it can be felt anywhere from toes to top of head. reaction depends to a considerable extent on what the sensation means to the individual.

A person's attitude toward pain is involved with mood, emotional status, will, state of mind, and presence or absence of anxiety. The perception of pain, as with perception of temperature and touch, is a neurophysiological process associated with the sensory nerves.

Pain is said to be measurable and is known to be eased by drugs and psychic factors and can be completely checked by nerve block or surgery that interrupts the path-

MOST OF US will expound the merits of Alabama with little provocation. We're quick to tell tourists and acquaintances from other states about Alabama's beauty and the abundance of its wildlife. Many of us however have never fully appreciated the variety and abundance of salt-water fish in waters adjacent to our state. The Dauphin Island area is sometimes called "the tarpon crossroads of the world". Other species available to sportsmen include cavalla, ling, amberjack, barracuda, bonita and sailfish.

ON JULY 28th, approximately 2000 sportsmen representing more than 20 states will gather at Dauphin Island for the 29th competition of one of America's most famous fishing events, The Alabama Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo. One of the 2000 may be "Yours truly". If this comes to pass and my luck is good, there'll be pictures to prove it.

WHY YELLOW? Why are the Yellow Pages of your telephone directory yellow? Why not blue, or pink, or purple? Did someone, back during the telephone's infancy, like canaries? Not at all. (At least, that's not the reason Yellow Pages are yellow.) The reason is purely scientific—determined by an eye specialist. Black print on yellow paper is the second most legible color combination! Black print on white paper is first, but that's "taken" by the alphabetical section.

Glamorized Canned Siew

Cracker Onion Dumplings

Last-minute menus are often in order during the busy spring cleaning and shopping season. For a quick meal that will satisfy the hungriest member of your family, try serving a canned siew (there are some quite tasty ones available) with new "Cracker Onion Dumplings". A quick blend of crispy saltine cracker crumbs, onion, egg, milk, butter, parsley, salt and pepper makes these delicious dumplings which require only 15 minutes of steaming on top of the stew. So easy, but the perfect touch to make a simple dish seem special. Here's the recipe:

Cracker Onion Dumplings

3/4 cup milk	1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter or margarine	Dash of pepper
2/4 cups finely crushed Krispy saltine crackers (about 35 single crackers)	1 egg, well beaten
	1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
	1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Scald milk. Remove from fire, mixing thoroughly. Shape mixture into dumplings. Add remaining ingredients, one 1-inch balls. Drop into simmering stew; cover and simmer 15 minutes. Makes about 20 dumplings.

Child's Arm Turns Hard, Stony; Medical Treatment Slows Process

Christine Versluis, who is nine and lives on the shores of Lake Ontario at Hilton, N.Y., is unable to straighten her right arm because of rheumatic disease.

Her arm and parts of both shoulders are becoming increasingly calcified, which means change of the muscle tissue into a hard stony substance.

This somber-faced child is the tragic victim of dermatomyositis, one of the forms of rheumatic disease. Another form is rheumatoid arthritis. The majority of people don't know that children suffer from arthritis; they believe mistakenly that arthritis afflicts only the aging—someone's grandfather or grandmother, surely not the very young.

But there is urgent reason today why grownups and parents especially should be intelligently informed about arthritis among children. Dr. William S. Clark, director of medical care of The National Foundation, whose expanded program embraces arthritis, birth defects and continued work in polio, said this week:

"Rheumatoid arthritis is a type that can make children ill indeed. They may become severely crippled. Their joints may 'freeze.' Happily we can now demonstrate today that with proper treatment and care, most of the crippling caused by juvenile rheumatoid arthritis can be prevented."

But the cardinal point, Dr. Clark emphasizes, is that thousands of children have rheumatoid arthritis without knowing what the disease they suffer from really is. Their parents may dismiss the aching in neck, knees, wrists or elbows (or more rarely, in all these joints simultaneously) as "growing pains"; or for a variety ety of other reasons, the right diagnosis is not made.

Nine-year-old Christine Versluis must hold her right arm in this awkward upright position because it is turning into hard, stony substance. But there's hope for her in research sponsored by The National Foundation.

We now estimate that in the United States, more than 50,000 adults who suffer from rheumatoid arthritis had their actual onset of the disease in childhood," Dr. Clark added. "And they received modern treatment at that time, most of the crippling in maturity could have been prevented. That's one reason why The National Foundation's program in arthritis and patient aid for the young is so significant."

Child victims of rheumatoid arthritis are estimated to total 20,000 in this country alone, with 16,000 a year ill enough to need medical care. About 5,000 or 6,000 of these may require treatment as intensive as the rehabilitation needed for those stricken by paralytic polio.

There are at least 11 millions in the nation today who suffer from some form of rheumatic disease, including arthritis. Rheumatoid arthritis victims total about 1,500,000. The disease is the nation's No. 1 crippling.

To return to Christine, the little girl with the arm and shoulders turning into a stony element, she is receiving treatment at the March of Dimes-supported Arthritis Study Center at the University of Rochester School of Medicine—one of four National Foundation arthritis centers around the country. Her doctors hope they are slowing the advance of calcification but the outlook at this time is not certain.

Uncertainty, then, is the disquieting prospect facing this little girl. Her mother, Mrs. Eugene Versluis, hopes that if enough people support National Foundation research, perhaps in time Christine's right arm will fall back where it belongs and the stoniness will disappear; and that eventually the appalling figure of 30,000 children with crippling rheumatoid arthritis each year will decline.

THE FHA ANSWERS YOUR QUESTIONS

By Neal J. Hardy, FHA Commissioner

Q. If I make several payments in advance on my FHA mortgage and then for some reason am unable to meet a future payment, will I get credit for the extra payments I have made and not be considered in arrears?

A. This is something to be arranged between the mortgage lender and you. The mortgage lender is not required to report principal payments to FHA, and consequently can use its own discretion in agreeing to credit the amounts you have prepaid to future scheduled payments of principal.

There are two methods of making pre-payments on your insured mortgage.

First, you can make extra payments of principal only in order to save interest and pay your loan off faster. If you do this and later on find it difficult to make a payment, the lender can agree to credit you for the amount of principal you have paid in advance; but you will be required to pay the interest, the mortgage insurance premium, and all the other items included in the monthly payment, except principal.

Second, you can make one or more complete monthly payments in advance—principal, interest, mortgage insurance premium, and whatever other items are included in the regular payment. If you do this, you can later, with the lender's consent, skip your monthly payments to the extent you have prepaid them.

Q. Is it possible to have FHA mortgages outstanding on more than one house at the same time?

A. Yes, if you can show the ability to make payments on both loans without difficulty.

One thing to remember is that under the FHA system the down payment required when you buy a home for your own occupancy is less in relation to the property value than that required if the property is not to be your home. So, if you were to buy one house to live in and another as an investment, the minimum down payment on the investment property would be proportionately larger than on the home property.

Of course, if you were to buy a property as a home, and later rent it out after buying another house for yourself, it would be possible to finance both properties on the terms available to an owner-occupant.

Family doctors are America's first line of health defense. Yet, today there are fewer family doctors to treat more people. By 1980, if specialization and population trends continue, there will be only one family doctor to more than 4,000 patients!

The graph above points up a serious problem in American health care. Today, more and more doctors are specializing in a few diseases or parts of the body. Consequently, it is increasingly difficult to find a family doctor to take responsibility for the total and continuing health care of the family.

Though specialists are absolutely necessary, 85 per cent of medical problems can and should be handled by the family physician. Moreover, only the family doctor, who knows the patient as a person as well as a case, can choose the correct specialist when one is needed. If the patient attempts to do so himself, it can be expensive at best, fatal at worst.

Newspaper editor newspaper has chronicles the plight of communities in need of a family doctor. Medical journals warn of the danger in thinning family doctor ranks. The American Academy of General Practice, national family doctor organization, receives over 3,000 letters yearly from people seeking a doctor who will specialize in the family.

On the economic side, the family doctor can keep the lid on family medical costs because his fees generally are lower and his exercises of total responsibility rules out "hopping" from doctor to doctor. Also, because he accepts this responsibility, he is generally more available when needed.

The Academy urges communities to help insure good future medical care by encouraging high school students to consider a career as a family doctor. This is the new frontier in service to humanity and still one of the most personally satisfying careers.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

HOW TO PUT YOUR FAITH INTO ACTION

Have you ever heard someone say, "I just don't have any faith?" I have heard this often.

Perhaps you feel that you have no faith. But, don't you expect the sun to come up every morning and to slip away in the evening just before the moon and the stars appear in the darkening sky? When you start down your front steps, you are not in the least surprised when gravity keeps you from floating off into space. When the trees become bare, the grass turns brown and all outdoor showers under winter's icy blasts, you are confident that in a few weeks spring will come and the earth will blaze with new life.

But that's not faith! Those things always happen by natural law, you say. But isn't natural law actually a part of the law of God? When you believe in the normal functions of what we call natural law, you are expressing faith—faith in the law of God.

The Bible says that everyone has a certain amount of faith. However, not everyone uses the faith he has. Faith must be put into action before it becomes a real force.

When I first started the Abundant Life Ministry, I resigned from the church I was pastoring in Enid, Oklahoma, and drove to Tulsa. I had exactly $25 to my name. My wife and I looked all day for a house to rent but didn't find one.

We went to a friend's house to spend the night. He told us that he had sold his house and that the man was coming that evening to close the deal. Suddenly, I had the funny feeling that I was sitting in the house God wanted me to have. I thought, How absurd! I have $25, no income, and I want to buy a house that is already sold.

The man who was to buy the house didn't show up. The next morning my friend asked, "Oral, do you want this house?"

I answered, "Oh, maybe."

"I'll let you have it for $6,500," "That's too much to pay," I replied. "I'll give you $5,500." I had only $25.

"I'll split the difference with you," he said. "You can have it for $6,000."

"Sold," I exclaimed.

My friend went to the bank to get the paper for me to sign. When he got back he said, "I was $3,000 down and you can take up my mortgage. Sorry, I didn't know what to say."

As we looked over the papers, he suddenly said, "I'm not building my new house until next year. Why don't you pay the down payment a little later—say half of it in six months, the other half in twelve months?"

I caught my breath and said, "Oh, just as you say." Because I put my faith into action and because God is good, what I believed for came to pass.

Your faith can be just as powerful. Just use it—put it into action. You are not taking a chance when you use your faith.

Headed For Trouble

The pleased smile on this tippler's face may soon be wiped away. Right now he is only drunk. But if he succeeds in making his car he may become even more dangerously so. He may become, indeed, dead drunk.

Every day hundreds of drinkers around the world sip with cups and drive to their deaths. Unfortunately they are to a society. Alcoholism is a mental health problem WHO and the Pan American Sanitary Bureau, its Regional Office for the Americas, working to aid nations in fighting down the tragic human economic wastes that result from too much drink.

Deaths and injuries on road are only one of alcoholism's more dramatic damage to a society. Alcoholism disease. Like all diseases, evils are not limited only to those who suffer from it, but to society as a whole.

Several years ago the World Health Organization devoted a special issue of its bimonthly magazine "World Health" to alcoholism. One of the photos illustrating the lead story was captioned: "The Man is Sick. Not Drunk." Pictured above was an alcoholic who had reached an ultimate state of depression.

Hot Program for Developing Peach Outlet

Finance For Our Peach Crop;
We Act Now . . . Together

Mr. John Sellers, County Agent, and his department have under way a project in cooperation with Auburn University to find uses for the thousands of pounds of peaches grown annually in Chilton County which will not pass grade at the paking sheds. The department at Auburn is experimenting with new uses for their laboratories on peaches. And, Sellers is to initiate within the next few days a pilot project to determine the best basis for the state peach program. The process is basically as follows: The peaches would first be bathed in a solution which would remove the peeling and skin, then they would be dipped in an alkaline solution to remove the lye, and what remains of the peeling. Thereafter they would be quartered or halved and then each of the peach next to the seed which has a deep red color, would be treated to remove this dark coloring. The peaches will be packed in a heavy syrup in large cans, and taken to Birmingham by truck where they will be put in deep-freeze storage. There are no available funds for this extensive pilot project and therefore, Sellers, who estimates the project will cost $3,600, has been soliciting contributions over the county from local business men and farmers, who can envision the benefit Chilton county could derive from such a process.

Frozen peaches could be used not only in the public school lunch room program, but also in the numerous food industries which use such fruit, including ice cream, pies and pastries, jellies, preserves, etc.

This past week, Mr. Curtis Sumrall from the Alabama State Industrial Planning Board in Montgomery, had a conference in Clanton with the Chamber of Commerce's Secretary and County Agent, Sellers, wherein the possibility of finding suitable markets for dried peaches was discussed. Sellers stated that Auburn University would in his opinion, be happy to explore the possibility of drying Chilton county fruit, and would explore a process to be used. If a suitable drying process could be obtained for surplus Chilton county peaches, it would work well with Coosa county's new project for raising apples in that apples in this area begin to ripen near the end of the peach season, and continue to be harvested long after the peach crop is gathered. Your Chilton County Chamber of Commerce fully realizes the great need our county has for a suitable processing industry to accommodate the thousands of bushels of fresh fruit produced annually in this area, which is not fully consumed by the fresh fruit market. For a favorable solution to this situation it pledges its full support to the fullest agricultural potential of Chilton county.

Tomator Diseases

Do you know what tomato diseases cost Alabama growers every year? Well, a lot but that's besides the point. What do tomato diseases cost you? If you've watched the leaves on your tomato plants die and drop off - it could be that early or late blight has hit you. There blights are foliage diseases - and you know that without leaves the plants can't produce well. You can stop this tomato blight by using Zineb or Maneb dust or spray. But you have to treat before the disease gets started and dusting should be done weekly.

Iron Deficiency

Your Centipede or St. Augustine grass may be showing a yellowing effect about now. If it is, it's probably due to iron deficiency. Iron deficiency is common in Centipede and St. Augustine about this time of year, but you can stop it. Your local garden sup-

Flower Gardens

Most flower growers are mighty particular about their mulching - and well they might be. A mulch serves two good purposes in a flower bed. First, it helps hold moisture in the ground, and it stops many weeds from coming through. But don't overdo it, about two inches of peat moss or sawdust or about three to five inches of leaves or straw will be plenty.
